'GHOSTS' CAST SHADOWS

It really is 1971 and today's corner of Pandora and Douglas with all its modern buildings, despite this parade of 19th-Century costumes. Victorian dress was worn by members of Victoria Days committee as they headed for Mayor Courtney Haddock's office Monday for signing of proclamation. Victoria Days, to take place May 24 to 29, will include ethnic dances in city squares, treasure hunt, Indian cultural festival, street dances and sports events. — (William E. John.)

Surtax Bite Squeaks By In Commons

OTTAWA (CP)—By a scant 11-vote margin, the Commons Monday approved a government bill that continues for another year a three-percent "temporary" surtax bite on personal and corporate income taxes.

The vote on third and final reading squeaked by 68 to 57, with only Liberals in favor. The bill, extending the tax through 1971, now goes to the Senate.

By the same vote the Commons defeated a Creditiste attempt to delay third reading of the bill for six months.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberal, 151, Conservative 72, New Democrat 23, Creditiste 13, Independent 1, vacant 4.

Along with extending the surtax the bill would allow manufacturing and processing industries to value investments in machinery and structures at 115 per cent of their actual costs in writing them off their taxes.

Both provisions were announced in Finance Minister Edgar Benson's Dec. 3 budget. The capital cost allowances is retroactive to that date. The surtax extends a measure introduced in 1968.

The surtax has been renewed each year since and some opposition MPs expressed fear that it has achieved permanent status.

Ontario Sues Chemical Firm In Major Anti-Pollution Test

Dow Target Of Action

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis announced Monday that Ontario has launched a $35 million damage suit against Dow Chemical Co. of Canada Ltd. and its parent company in the United States for mercury pollution of the St. Clair River and Lake St. Clair.

Davis said a writ has been issued seeking another $10 million to pay for the cost of dredging the bottom of the waterways to remove the pollutants.

Under a mandatory order requested in the suit, the companies would have the option of removing the existing polluting materials, or give the province $10 million to do the job.

It is the first time the province has attempted to sue a company in relation to mercury pollution of provincial waterways.

Attorney-General Allan Lawrence, who attended the news conference along with George Kerr, energy and resources minister, said the suit would be a test case before the Ontario Supreme Court.

If the suit is successful, suits may be launched against other polluters.

In Sarnia, a Dow spokesman said the company had not been informed of any legal action by the province but that when informed of-

Women Rob Ex-Minister After Industrialist Slain

Strauss

NEW YORK (UPI) — Franz Josef Strauss, former West German defence and finance minister, was robbed of about $240 in German and American money outside the Plaza Hotel Monday by three women who attempted to force him into a car.

The incident bore some similarity to the fatal stabbing 48 hours earlier of Italian industrialist Pasquale Bottero outside the New York Hilton. Bottero told police before he died that he had been accosted by three women.

Strauss told police he was robbed at 2:45 a.m. as he was walking at Fifth Avenue and 59th Street outside the Plaza, a fashionable hotel at the south end of Central Park, where he was staying. He said a car pulled up and three women got out and told him, "Get into the car."

"Go away," he said. "I'm just out for a walk."

He said the three then tried to drag him into the car. They failed. But one of the women reached into his right rear pocket, Strauss said, and took his wallet containing $160 in American Bills and 300 deutschmarks, valued at about $80.

At about 4 a.m. police spotted a car that matched the description given by Strauss two blocks away. Two women in the car were taken into custody and 300 deutschmarks were found in the glove compartment.

Socreds Firm on Pension Vote

Teachers' Issue Survives Fight

By IAN STREET

A lone Socred voted with the NDP and Liberal members in the legislature Monday night in opposition to the principle of a bill which will provided new pension benefits for active and retired teachers.

Ernie LeCours (SC Richmond) had indicated he would vote against the government unless he could be convinced the new pension formula would do justice to retired teachers. When the vote was taken shortly before 11 p.m. Opposition leader Dave Barrett shouted: "Scrooge" at the standing Socred majority.

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, in a lengthy account of the workings of the pension plans, ignored opposition pleas to withdraw the bill while consideration was given to improving benefits for teachers who retired prior to 1967.

The minister argued that no other province can match B.C.'s record in this regard and added in reply to a question that the government had received no indication the B.C Teachers' Federation was prepared to share in any additional costs for retired teachers' pensions.

B.C. Teachers' Federation president James Killeen said in an interview from Vancouver the federation would not take any action at this point. The teachers were waiting, he said, to see if the government would make any changes in the bill at the committee stages, before deciding the strike or take other action.

During debate Allan Williams (L—West Vancouver-Howe Sound) said he "implored" Black to "take this bill back and look over it" with the help of actuarial experts to determine how best to provide adequate assistance to retired teachers.

The Liberal member said it was "not so," as the govern-

Ottawa to Shield More Industries

OTTAWA (CP) The government will expand areas of industry which will not be allowed to fall under foreign control, Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday in the Commons.

He said in reply to George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) that banking, communications and uranium are already areas in which foreign control will not be permitted.

The government would announce as soon as possible other areas where the same rules will apply, the prime minister said.

He did not indicate what industries will be covered or when the announcement will be made.

Last week, he said policy on foreign ownership will be announced "in due course."

Hees raised the matter at the start of the question period by asking why the government was following an apparently inconsistent policy in relation to uranium and oil.

Hees said the government has instructed Denison Mines, a uranium company, not to sell control to U.S. interests. But in the current case of Home Oil Ltd. of Calgary it was negotiating possible pur-

Trudeau Stays Mum On Services' Union

OTTAWA (CP) Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday the government is looking at "various aspects" of collective bargaining in the public service, but he didn't say whether this involves the armed forces.

The question of possible unions in the forces was raised in the Commons by former prime minister John Diefenbaker who asked assurance from Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey that the organization of such unions would not be permitted. Mackasey said it wouldn't come under his department.

Michael Forrestal (PC—Dartmouth-Halifax East) then asked Trudeau whether he discussed the question with Claude Edwards, president of the Public Service Alliance.

The prime minister said he had correspondence with Edwards in which he said the government is reviewing collective bargaining in the public service. Various aspects mentioned by Edwards were being examined.

Plane Hits Inflation

WEST MILTON, Ohio (UPI) — A single engine plane ran into a cluster of balloons at 1,800 feet Sunday and crashed into a muddy field. The pilot and a passenger escaped injury.

The balloons had been released as a promotional gimmick by the Grace Baptist Church. The plane flipped over and was demolished, but pilot Wayne Kepp, 43, and Robert Dayton, 33, both of Dayton, Ohio, walked away from the wreckage.

Plague on Plague in South Africa

Trains Halted by Locusts

JOHANNESBURG (AP) A locust attack so bad curtains are being eaten off windows has hit farmers with the worst plague in South African history.

The brown locusts have mutilated crops and many other things that stood in their way in Cape and Orange Free State, two of the country's four provinces, and moved into neighboring Botswana and South-West Africa.

"Infestation occurs in patches over approximately 100,000 square miles," Deputy Agriculture Minister Hendrik Schoeman told Parliament.

Hardest hit has been an area known as the Karoo in central Cape province between the communities of De Aaar and Middleburg.

Several railway trains slithered to a stop because their driving wheels were spinning on masses of mashed locusts.

First caterpillar set back new grazing about two months ago. Then came moths, followed by millions of locusts. Butterflies arrived after the locusts and the latest report is that corn crickets have started swarming.

Householders who neglected to seal premises were invaded in some districts by locusts nibbling curtains, linens, clothing, flowers in vases and uncovered food.

Some experts are convinced the plague is completely out of control and that only the coming of the southern hemisphere winter will curb the plague.

Bail Motion Opposed For 'FLQ Leaders'

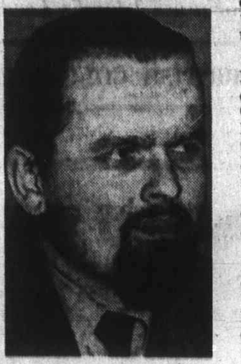
MONTREAL (CP) — Chief Crown Prosecutor Stephen Cuddihy told a bail hearing Monday that Pierre Vallieres and Charles Gagnon are the leaders of the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec.

Cuddihy, opposing bail applications by the two men charged with seditious conspiracy and membership in the outlawed FLQ, said:

"The real reasons for our objections are the events of October. We know that Vallieres and Gagnon are the leaders of the movement."

Judge Francois Chevalier, of Quebec Superior Court in Hull, who presided over the bail hearing, reserved his decision until next Monday.

Vallieres, an author, and Gagnon, a former sociology professor, have been in prison on charges connected with terrorist activities much of the time since 1966.



Vallieres

The latest charges were laid following the kidnapping of British diplomat James Cross last Oct. 5. and the kidnapping of Quebes labor minister Pierre Laporte Oct. 10.

Laporte was strangled to death Oct. 17 and Mr. Green was released unharmed Dec. 4.

At Monday's hearing, Vallieres also was challenging court jurisdiction in a sedition charge laid in connection with his book Negre blancs d'Amerique—White Negroes of America.

Mr. Justice Chevalier reserved judgement on this motion also until next Monday.

Socreds Firm on Pension

ment had claimed, that teachers who retired prior to 1967 would receive a 7 per cent average pension increase. He said the increases range from $10.50 to $21.

The proposed amendments, Williams said, do "an acceptable job" for teachers who are still employed but fail to meet the government's responsibility for upgrading the pensions of retired teachers.

He also took issue with a statement by Resources Minister Ray Williston, who told the House Monday night that if the position of retired teachers was to have been treated on a different basis from those still employed, this issue should have been raised at the time of negotiations.

"It is the government's responsibility," Williams said, "to remember these people."

Barrett called Williston's statement "sheer rubbish," saying that the whole question of teacher salaries has been a public issue for the past 18 months.

"Teachers have said very clearly they are prepared to support retired teachers in their fight for better pensions," Barrett said. "Eighty-eight per cent of them have said they are prepared to go on strike if necessary."

The strike vote was completed last fall by the B.C. Teachers' Federation and the executive of the federation recently reaffirmed the stand that the strike should go ahead if a better deal isn't obtained for those already retired.

Barrett cited the example of one of his former high school teachers, who wrote asking his support, disclosing that at age 64 after 35 years in the classroom she was getting a pension of $131 a month.

"I could tell her that by playing it right and rejecting half of her pension she could go on welfare and be much better off financially," the NDP leader said. "One year from now she'll qualify for the old age pension. But do these people have to rely on welfare and charity after all their years of service?

"Emotion," said Agnes

Kripps (SC—Vancouver South).

"Certainly it's emotion," retorted Barrett. "But if you can't get emotional about the plight of these retired teachers who are getting $131 a month pension after 35 years then you're pretty cold-hearted.

"These aren't deadbeats or ne'er-do-wells; they're not even greedy. So why does the question of a fair pension have to become a political issue?"

Barrett admitted he knows nothing about pension funds but added he does know the fund administered by the government contains $165 million, that it is growing by $18 million annually, and that payments amount to only $8 million for a net yearly increase of $10 million in the fund.

LeCours suggested that present-day teachers might be prepared to contribute a further ½ of 1 per cent to make the pension of the retired school teacher a little higher.

Those teachers, he said, had worked for low wages, were able to save very little and were now suffering because the federal and provincial governments had allowed inflation to overtake them and decrease their life savings.

"Now we are going to call on them to suffer some more."

"Unless the minister can convince me that the formula as it is now is just, unless it is doing justice to those who have retired in the past, I plan to oppose this bill, said LeCours.

His objections were echoed by Dr. Scott Wallace (SC—Oak Bay) who suggested that the government has a moral obligation to retired teachers.

Ontario Sues Dow

ficially it would turn the matter over immediately to company lawyers for study.

Davis said the government was forced into its decision by the failure of Dow to cooperate in resolving "all matters." Dow had indicated early last year that it was prepared to help those who suffered damage and to cooperate in other ways. But Kerr said the company informed the province last summer "they couldn't cooperate."

The damage action also seeks an order to prevent the company from continuing "any process that would create further pollution."

Mercury pollution was first discovered in the St. Clair system a year ago and led to a federal ban on the export of fish from those waters. Since then, the federal and provincial governments have cooperated in establishing loan funds to help fishermen affected by the fishing ban.

Dow was placed under ministerial order a year ago to reduce its discharge of mercury and to report periodically on its pogress to the Ontario Water Resources Commission. A. K. Watt, a member of the commission, said later Monday in an interview the company has cut mercury dumpage into the waterway to less than a pound a day.

chase of controlling interest in the firm.

Trudeau said he did not see any inconsistency though he acknowledged that the two decisions were ad hoc—that is, made for a specific purpose.

The prime minister said that constitutionally the government had authority in the field in uranium, but not in the field of oil.

Hees asked when a consistent policy will be adopted.

Trudeau said one is being brought forward as soon as possible. However, such policy would not cover all cases. There would still have to be specific decisions for specific cases.

The elements of a general policy already existed in that the government had determined that banks, financial institutions and mass communications industries would not be allowed to fall under foreign control.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Ulcer, Weight Curbed

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: About two years ago after a strict routine of diet and exercise prescribed by my doctor, I lost 33 pounds and felt so much better, and needless to say looked much better.

But last year I developed an ulcer. Now I am gaining weight — 14 pounds so far. Is there any way to keep an ulcer under control and not gain weight? I drink quite a bit of milk. — Mrs. A.L.

Yes, there are ways to do it, although they aren't exactly as easy as falling off a log. Still, not too difficult, either.

First of all, keep this firmly in mind: the main principle of an ulcer diet is to keep something in the stomach of a protein nature. It combines with the excess hydrochloric acid in the stomach and, by absorbing such free acid, protects the ulcer from being irritated.

Note that protein-type foods, and not fats, are the main essential element. Milk is a convenient food for this purpose. Whole milk contains 160 calories per cup. Skim milk (with much of the fat removed) contains only 90 calories per cup, a saving of about 45 per cent in calories. So switching to skim milk ought to help quite a bit.

There are other ways. With meat and poultry (both high-protein foods) keep them just as lean as possible. Cut off visible fat; roast or broil rather than frying, because frying adds to the fat and hence the calories.

Cheese is a protein food, but some types have fewer calories than others, and cottage cheese is lowest of all.

Customer Shattered By 25-Cent Coffee

VANCOUVER (CP)—A man entered a White Lunch cafeteria during the weekend and asked the price of coffee. When he was told it was 25 cents, he dumped the cash register on the floor, smashed five glass partitions in the serving area and knocked glass out of two doors at the front entrance. No one was arrested.

Occupation Policies

'Israel Violates Rights'

GENEVA (CP) — The United Nations Human Rights Commission passed a resolution Monday condemning Israel for its policies in territories occupied as a result of the six-day war in June, 1967.

The resolution, accusing Israel of violating human rights in the territories, was approved 14 to 2, with 14 abstentions. The United States and Guatemala voted against the resolution.

The resolution strongly deplored Israel's policies, which it said were aimed at placing the population in a general state of repression, fear and deprivation.

It condemned denial of the right of refugees to return to their homes, collective punishments, deportations and expulsions, arbitrary arrests, ill-treatment and torture of prisoners, destruction of villages, town quarters and houses and confiscation of property.

It also condemned what it described as the evacuation and transfer of sections of the population of the occupied territories, and the transfer of parts of Israel's own civilian population into the area.

It deplored "the requisition of hospitals and their transformation into police stations," and called on Israel to enable all refugees and displaced persons to return to their homes.

Israeli Ambassador Mordecai Kidron said Friday that his country did not consider the resolution to be morally valid or binding. He said the Israeli military administration of the territories was "one of the most liberal and humane in modern times."

The World Jewish Congress in a letter to the commission appealed for help in getting Jews out of Arab lands.

Congress delegate Dr. Maurice Perlzweig wrote commission Chairman Andres Aguilar that some Arab states inflict on "the pitiful and defenceless remnants of once great communities . . . brutalities which would be incredible if the facts were not fully attested by eyewitnesses."

Red Training Taken in Vain

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The government announced Monday it had broken up a plot by North Korean-trained Mexican guerrillas to overthrow the government and establish a communist regime.

Attorney-general Julio Sanchez Vargas made the announcement at a news conference following the arrests of 19 guerrillas who he said confessed to robbing a Mexico City bus terminal of the equivalent of $84,000.

The money was to be used to finance guerrilla activities in Mexico, he said.

The 16 men and three women received training at a "military base in North Korea to overthrow the existing order and establish a Marxist regime here," Sanchez Vargas said.

The attorney general said the suspects were arrested "at different hideouts and guerrilla academies in Mexico City, Acapulco, Jalapa and Pachuca."

Sanchez Vargas said the guerrillas left Mexico to study at Patrice Lumumba University in Moscow where they had received grants, but in reality were organizing and studying in a camp about 25 miles from Pyongyang, the North Korean capital.

Robbers, hostages leave unchecked —AP

Police Swell Take

TOULOUSE, France (UPI) —Four armed bank robbers, surprised by police in their getaway, bargained their way out of a Toulouse bank Monday with twice as much money as they had originally stolen plus getaway cars supplied by the police.

The four men, holding hostages with an array of weapons, ransomed their freedom from police after a 10-hour siege of the bank. Police brought two luxury cars to the front door of the bank shortly after 8 p.m. and stepped back with guns lowered to allow the robbers to leave.

In what one policemen described as an "incredible performance" five men burst into a branch bank in downtown Toulouse early Monday morning and demanded all the money that could be put into a sack. Bank teller Raymond Taillerfer, 51, was able to set off the alarm.

Police quickly encircled the bank as the five men made a dash out the front door. The police captured one of them but the other four retreated inside the building and took the employees hostage.

For 10 hours they bargained over telephones with police for their freedom, demanding 300,000 francs ($54,545) ransom, plus the 120,000 francs ($21,800) they had stolen from the bank, and getaway cars.

Police finally agreed to the terms after the four released the women prisoners they held.

The four emerged from the bank shortly after 9 p.m. with a satchell containing the ransom and the take.

Police said it appeared the robbers had two hostages with them, both held at gunpoint.

Waste Discharge Given Approval

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — The department of ecology gave approval Monday for the construction of a discharge pipe at Atlantic-Richfield's Cherry Point refinery, north of Bellingham.

The pipe would discharge three million gallons of treated wastes daily into the Strait of Georgia.

Final approval is up to the army corps of engineers. The department of ecology has the right to approve or disapprove the permit as does the Federal Environement Protection Agency and the department of interior.

The corps may or may not have public hearings on the pipe.

"We have given the problem back to Atlantic-Richfield," said Russell Ekstrom, the corps' chief of operations in Seattle. "If they can not settle their differences with opponents of the permit, and ask for a public hearing, we will hold one."

But White House Silent

Alaska Pipeline Plan Finds New Coolness

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The Nixon administration has indicated further signs of coolness toward the plan by seven major oil companies to build a pipeline across Alaska from the rich North Slope oil reserves.

But the White House declined Monday to comment on whether the United States government now is opposing the project because of possible damage to the Alaskan environment.

Presidential spokesman Ronald Ziegler said the administration is investigating all possibile alternatives and no final decision will be made until these have been fully discussed.

The Environmental Protection Agency, possibly reflecting high level views within the administration, has asked the interior department to delay issuance of a permit for the pipeline pending a thorough study of a possible alternative route through Canada.

The oil companies want to build the 800-mile pipeline to carry oil from the North Slope to the port of Valdez in the south.

The EPA comments also focused attention on a possible alternative, a longer 2,400-mile route to Chicago and Toronto that would avoid the earthquake-prone areas that the trans-Alaska pipeline would traverse.

Bonn Eyes Canada's Control Bid

BONN (AP) — The West German magazine Der Spiegel says the Canadian government is trying to break the predominance of American firms in the Canadian economy.

In a report on United States investment in Canada, the magazine says:

"In no other industrial country in the world have American economic bosses captured as much economic power as in Canada.

"Since 1960, American firms have gained participation in more than 1,000 Canadian enterprises.

"Now, Canada's Finance Minister J. Edgar Benson wants to bring about the creation of strong enterprises which would be managed and controlled by Canadians."

Something Haywire

NEW YORK (UPI) — The word haywire, used to mean something that is out of order, derives from the term haywire camp, used in Maine to denote a logging camp with equipment so poor it had to be tied up with baling wire.

Masquerading Foods

THE PROOF OF THE PUDDING is in the eating, and that holds good for a sketchy recipe put before the B.C. legislature for its approval. In this case the pudding is control of the sale of synthetic foods. The recipe is a bill described as giving the government power to ban all synthetic food products from sale in the province, but which actually prohibits the sale of such products unless they are exempted by the regulations which the government later will make.

Much, of course, will depend on how the government defines synthetic. An apple pie doesn't grow on a tree. It's synthesized. We are sure the government doesn't mean to ban apple pies, and we agree with its antagonism to the sale of "apple" drinks, so-called and bearing pictures of apples, which contain never a drop of apple juice. But the placement of the dividing line is of some concern. How much acquaintance with a real chicken will chicken soup be required to have for exemption?

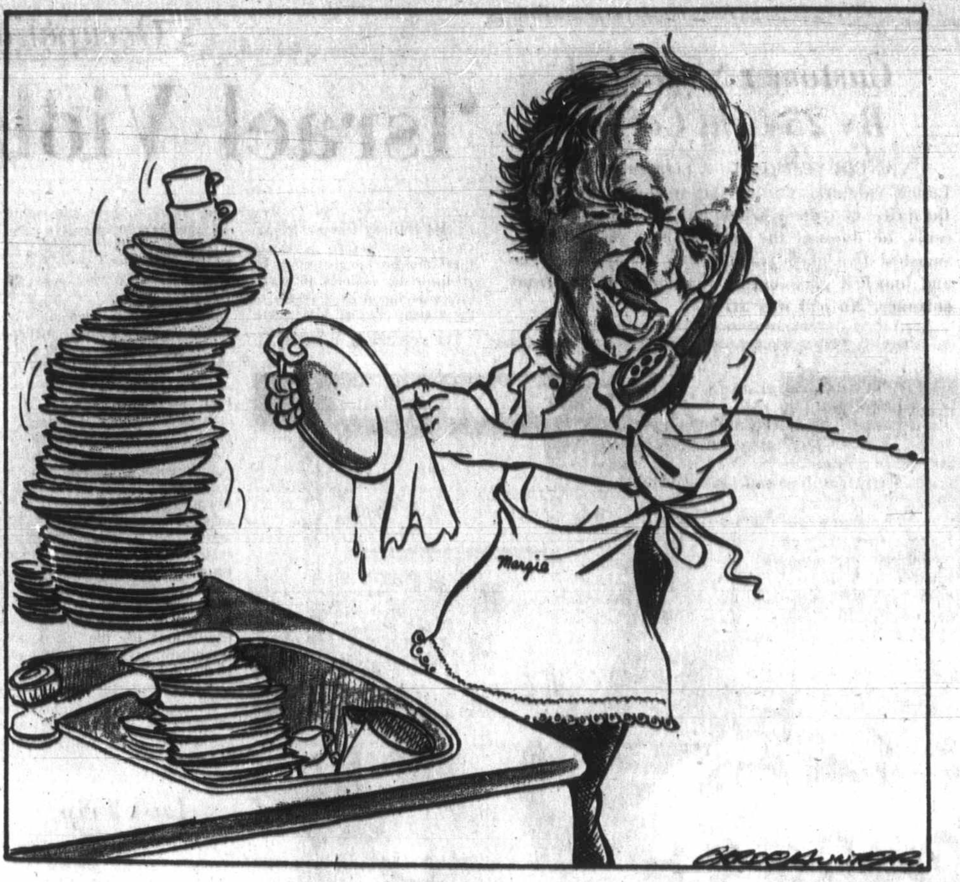
Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford says the purpose of the bill is to protect both consumers and producers of natural food products. Consumers in Canada spend about $10 million a year on synthetic food products, he asserts, mainly without realizing their synthetic nature.

But it must be observed that some of these "synthetic" foods, put together from nature's products of various sorts, have the virtues of being both nutritious and cheaper than the "natural" foods they resemble.

It is to the consumers' advantage that margarine is not kept off the market as synthetic — but also to their advantage that it goes under its own name and doesn't pretend to be butter. If, presently, processed protein derived from oil wastes or other low-cost sources is available, looking and tasting as good as other foods but at less cost, should it be banned by the hidden process of not making it exempt?

For the consumers, the masquerade of one product as another is the offence, and therefore the shoppers of the province can universally welcome the clause of the bill requiring that no synthetic food shall be advertised or described using words or illustrations the same as, or similar to, a natural food product.

But it remains to be seen (or screened) how far the government will go if the bill is passed in its present form. The minister says not many products will be banned provided they are clearly marked as synthetic and not natural foods. Is a concoction of nuts and vegetables, or wheat, not a natural food? To label it in this way would be absurd. Would it not be sufficient to rule that it must not be represented in any way as being meat?



"Yes it's true Barbra, but can't we still be friends?"

Dockyard Charleyhorse

THAT THERE IS STRENGTH of union in numbers goes without saying, but at times muscles can tie up in agonizing knots as the dockyard workers have discovered. There are 2,900 of them in 11 trades at Esquimalt and Halifax, and they are banded together for contract talking despite the 4,000 miles separating them.

When the federal government made pay offers for the two widely-separated zones, economic factors were taken into consideration, as they should be, and Halifax would have received increases amounting to 54 cents an hour over two years while Esquimalt's advance would have been 84 cents. This would have brought the Halifax rate from $3.31 an hour to $3.85 and Esquimalt from $4.16 to $5, with an increase in differential from .85 cents to $1.15.

When a vote was taken the pain took hold — Esquimalt said yes and Halifax cried no, demanding parity of pay. There are 500 more workers on the east coast, and that extra weight of numbers pushed the percentage rejection to three-quarters of the total.

Extent of the discomfort was shown when Esquimalt delayed its walkout a week, ostensibly to make preparations, while Halifax struck immediately.

In the meantime, a new offer was made which had all the earmarks of a one-against-the-other play on the part of the government. The 54 cents offer to Halifax was increased to 74 cents and the 84 to Esquimalt was given another 10 cents, to 94, reducing the difference between the two by 10 cents — from $1.15 to $1.05.

This time the total yes vote carried by a meagre 34 affirmative ballots, with only 47 of Esquimalt's 1,200 workers opposing.

Whether the west coast tradesmen accepted for purely selfish reasons, or they don't really believe in wage parity is a debatable question. But the fact remains they have divided and could find themselves in more painful predicaments if they continue to hold to the strength-of-union-in-numbers maxim.

There is a real need here to face realities — that for a vast majority of Canadians equal pay for equal work in different regions is a long way off because of economic inequalities.

Costs of living as well as standards of living must be considered in all discussions of pay parity in areas far removed from one and other economically.

The entire wage structure of the Maritime provinces could have been thrown out of kilter in disastrous consequences if the Halifax dockyard workers' theories had been accepted, setting unreasonable heights for other labor groups of the area to seek.

Road Out of Vietnam

By WILLIAM MILLINSHIP

PRESIDENT Nixon's "State of the World" message to Congress provided further evidence of his determination not to lose the Vietnam war. In the absence of a negotiated settlement, U.S. troops will continue to pull out of Southeast Asia, but only as fast as the South Vietnamese are able to "compensate for our presence." The American withdrawals are not designed, the message says, "to allow the North Vietnamese to impose a political future on the battlefield."

A high White House official, commenting on this section of the 180-page foreign policy review, said: "The goal of the administration is to enable the South Vietnamese to stand on their own feet and to withdraw American forces without handing South Vietnam over to the other side." He repeated President Nixon's pledge to keep some U.S. forces in South Vietnam as long as American prisoners of war remained in North Vietnamese hands.

The message, although generally optimistic about the progress of Vietnamization and the growing ability of the South Vietnamese to defend themselves, concedes that this policy "cannot, except over a long period, end the war altogether." It adds: "Still, if Vietnamization leads to perpetuating the war it is not by our design, but because the other side refuses to settle for anything less than a guaranteed takeover."

The State of the World message should finally bury the notion that President Nixon is engaged in what has been called an "elegant bug-out" in Vietnam — extricating the United States whatever the consequences but without appearing to let down its Saigon ally.

The president explains that the policy of Vietnamization was adopted as the only alternative to "the status quo, escalation and capitulation." To gain the support of the American people while the war continued required a reduced American involvement. But "the health of the American society after the conflict called for a solution that would not mock the sacrifices that had been made."

In his message, Mr. Nixon explains why the two main alternative choices of escalation and capitulation are rejected.

"Some urged that we escalate in an attempt to impose a miliary solution on the battlefield. We ruled out this approach because of the nature of the conflict and of the enemy, the costs of such a policy, the risks of a wider war, and the deeply-held conviction of many of our people. Increased military pressure could not alone win a struggle that was in part guerrilla war as well as conventional invasion, and included political as well as military aspects.

"It would have entailed a greatly increased toll in lives, treasure and diplomatic objectives. It would have heightened the prospects of direct intervention by Hanoi's allies. It would have split apart our own society."

An immediate and total unilateral withdrawal would have been "a disastrous path; for the South Vietnamese people, who would have lost their collective political choice and countless individual lives; for other non-communist countries, especially in Asia, among whom not a single leader recommended such a policy; for the global credibility of the U.S. word; for those Americans who had made such a heavy sacrifice — and for the integrity of American society in the post-Vietnam era."

The message places these arguments historically in the context of the early days of the Nixon administration. They also clearly reflect the president's present thinking about the future of South Vietnam. A conventional military victory over North Vietnam is out of the question. Neither Russia nor China could be expected to stand by and see that happen. But President Nixon evidently would regard the military defeat of South Vietnam as a disaster. His aim is to preserve a non-communist government in Saigon — at least a kind of victory.

The extent of his commitment may be measured by his remark that "with assistance from us and other allies the South Vietnamese have made their country the most dramatic and concrete example of the partnership principle of the Nixon doctrine." This one sentence places the Vietnamization at the very heart of the new U.S. strategy in foreign affairs that President Nixon is trying to fashion.

The long message to Congress is essentially an explanation of the aims of and reasons for the Nixon doctrine with illustrations of how it was applied in practice in 1970.

It is based on the need to adjust to a situation in which the United States no longer has a nuclear monopoly or even overwhelming nuclear superiority, and in which it can no longer act as a world policeman. What Mr. Nixon has proposed is a new role for the United States which would reduce its burdens and encourage its allies to help themselves. His message to Congress recognizes that the transition is a difficult and delicate one.

President Nixon, while admitting that considerable problems lie ahead, emphasizes the achievements of his Vietnamization policy.

The president reports that by May 1 it will have allowed him to withdraw 265,000 troops from Vietnam while at the same time improving "pacification" to the point where 80 per cent of the South Vietnamese population can now be considered under the control of the Saigon government.

He goes out of his way to demonstrate that the attacks on the communist sanctuaries in Cambodia were worth the upheaval they caused in the United States, because they allowed the Vietnamization program to go ahead on schedule.

The message, which confines itself to the events of 1970, does not mention the current South Vietnamese incursions into southern Laos. Neither does it spell out a time-table for future American withdrawals. But it is now clear that the president hopes to wind down the war to what he considers a politically acceptable level at home, and in the meantime will make unrestricted use of American air power to prevent a communist build-up for a new offensive against South Vietnam. This policy means that, failing a negotiated settlement of the conflict, American forces, both ground and air, are likely to be in Vietnam for a long time to come.

It is this prospect that is prompting new efforts in the Senate to impose a deadline on the country's military involvement in that part of the world.

But having elevated both Vietnam and Cambodia to the level of "concrete examples" of his new doctrine, President Nixon seems to have committed himself to ensuring their survival.

The Indochina section of his State of the World message concludes by saying: "A negotiated settlement for all Indochina remains our highest priority. But if the other side leaves us no choice we will follow the alternative route to peace — phasing out our involvement while giving the region's friendly countries the time and the means to defend themselves."

The end of that route is not yet in sight.

ITALY'S RESPECTABLE COMMUNISTS

By BORIS KIDEL

ITALY'S POWERFUL Communist Party has injected a new element of confusion and uncertainty into the country's already complex political situation by adopting a policy of tacit co-operation with the government.

No longer do the Communists, who won 27 per cent of the votes in the 1968 parliamentary elections, seek the overthrow of the capitalist regime but they are out to prove their respectability as a "loyal opposition." They are prepared to act constructively and to look for points of convergence with the policies of Premier Emilio Colombo's centre-left coalition.

Already they have helped the government by warning workers that continued industrial strife could lead to economic recession, harmful to the entire nation. In Parliament they have been willing to vote for government-proposed reforms and to side with the coalition parties in silencing filibuster attempts of left and right-wing extremists.

Increasingly, the Communists are betraying themselves as the party of law and order. When the populist revolt in Reggio Calabria seemed to be getting out of control they stepped forward and offered to assist the government in restoring order. Taking a firm line against both left and right-wing extremism, Luigi Longo, the party leader, has called on the government "to defend freedom and the constitution and to break the criminal action of the extremist groups."

Even in the face of neo-Fascist provocations, the Communists have reacted so far with unusual restraint. At party headquarters, Sergio Segre, one of the top Italian Communist spokesmen, explained to me that the party had no intention of waging a private war against the Fascists. "We have no intention of substituting ourselves for the state," he said. "We merely want the government to do its constitutional duty and prevent the resurgence of fascism."

Two main reasons motivate this new conciliatory approach. Above all the Communist leadership realizes that its 8,000,000 voters are in no mood for violent confrontation. Rather than revolutions they want reforms by peaceful means. At the same time, Longo and the other leaders take the view that restraint and a show of responsibility are the best means for the party to break out of the political ghetto into which it found itself condemned by the Cold War, and to exert influence inside the existing parliamentary system.

This new strategy does not represent an abrupt reversal of policy. Ever since Stalin's death, the Italian party has been trying to assert its less dogmatic brand of communism. Under the leadership of the late Palmiro Togliatti, the Italian Communists became the first to challenge Soviet infallibility and to emphasize a specifically "Italian road to socialism."

As the most powerful Communist Party in the West, the Italians increasingly made their influence felt inside the international communist movement.

In recent years the Italians not only took an independent line by refusing to condemn Communist China, but they also expressed strong disagreement with the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia. This winter they condemned both the repression which followed the workers' revolt in the Polish cities along the Baltic coast and the persecution of Soviet Jews. In their internal party affairs, the Italian leaders have allowed far greater freedom of discussion than in other parties.

Almost inevitably the Communist decision to play henceforth the role of a "loyal opposition" has caused new disarray among the other political parties. The Communists are becoming rapidly politically respectable. Faced by neo-fascist violence, Premier Colombo has not hesitated to urge all parties allied in wartime anti-Nazi resistance to stand united against this new threat. Without actually naming them, Colombo was also appealing to the Communists.

Increasingly, the Socialists and left-wing Christian Democrats are urging a parliamentary alliance with the Communists to push through urgently-needed reforms. For the moment these proposals for closer ties with the Communists are largely no more than pressure tactics to soften up the right wing of the coalition. By using the threat of a possible pact with the Communists, the left wing the coalition wants to force the conservatives to accept drastic changes in Italy's antiquated system of social structures.

However, a growing number of left-wing politicians has come to believe that no meaningful changes are possible in Italy without co-operation with the Communists. Next year's presidential election is likely to accentuate flirtation between part of the centre-left coalition and the Communists. Under the Italian electoral system the victorious candidate, who is expected to be a Christian Democrat, will need Communist votes to secure his election. It can be taken for granted that the rival candidates will outdo each other in trying to solicit Communist support.

More than ever it will seem as if the Communists are being integrated as respectable partners into the Italian political system. Already alarm signals are being sounded that Italy is due to become another Chile, the first European country where the Communists attain power by legal means. "Rome is moving in Chile's direction," said a recent headline in West Germany's leading political weekly, Die Zeit. "The Communist party . . . is slowly inching towards seizure of power by elections, just as the Communists working with Allende did," wrote C. L. Sulzberger, the New York Times columnist, after visiting Italy this winter.

Despite all surface appearances, the situation is in fact far less dramatic. The Communists themselves are in no hurry to rush into government participation. "The situation is not ripe for such a development," it is said at party headquarters. The Communist leaders are far too apprehensive about the reaction of their hard-core activists to risk more overt co-operation with the government at this stage.

They are nervous about the mounting challenge of Communist rebels who accuse Longo and the other leaders of betraying the party's revolutionary ideals by becoming part of the parliamentary system and by accepting the framework of capitalist society. The dissidents, who use the monthly Il Manifesto as their political platform, are no longer just disgruntled intellectuals but include a growing number of workers.

At a recent conference of the Communist-led Metal Workers' Union, about 10 per cent of the delegates supported Il Manifesto's criticism of the party leadership.

As long as the Communists refuse to sever their connections with Moscow and to give up the principle of "democratic centralism" whereby all internal party opposition is silenced, Italy is unlikely to experience under present circumstances a real alliance between the Communists and the parties of the Centre-Left coalition.

Unless a major economic crisis erupts or fascist-inspired disorders sweep across the country, Italy does not appear destined to become another Chile in the foreseeable future. However, by adopting the strategy of "loyal opposition" the Communists have added greatly to the country's political instability.

Demonstrations in Lagos

Unions Spearhead New Nigerian Politics

By SUZANNE CRONJE

THE WAVE of strikes and demonstrations that hit Lagos earlier this month shows the growing political and radical outlook of the Nigerian trade union movement. Riot police, with tear-gas, were brought in to disperse workers who were protesting against the detention of Wahab Goodluck and Samuel Bassey, president and secretary of the Nigerian Trade Union Congress.

Their arrest at the end of last month followed nationwide industrial unrest resulting from union demands for the payment of an interim cost of living pay rise, awarded in December on the recommendation of a special government commission. Chief Enaharo, the federal commissioner for labor, told a delegation of workers that the detention of Goodluck and Bassey had nothing to do with their trade union activities and, while the federal government has refused to be more specific, the implications are that they were arrested on security grounds.

A few days later it was reported from Lagos that another leading left-wing figure, Dr. Tunji Otegbeye, had also been put under detention, as well as the editor of Advance, the radical trade union magazine. Goodluck and Bassey had already been stopped from leaving the country in January, on their way to Cairo to attend a meeting of the All-African Trade Union Federation, and their passports were confiscated. Otegbeye has complained for some time of being under security surveillance.

There is little doubt that these arrests are an attempt to stop the politicization of the trade union movement, particularly the growing influence of Nigeria's radical left. Political activities in Nigeria are still outlawed, and although the ban was meant to apply mainly to the largely ethnically-orientated parties which dominated the federation before the 1955 coup, it has clamped down on the formation of all political groups. As the trade unions were allowed to remain in existence, they now form the only organizations capable of disseminating and expressing political views.

The official return of politics to Nigeria has been delayed for some years by General Gowon's plan to stay in power until 1976, and the unions are therefore bound to play an increasingly political role. In so far as this combines economic grievances with political ideas their influence must be radical. The removal of union leaders can only give an impetus to this as recent violent demonstrations in Lagos showed.

It might be too early to say that tribal politics have lost their appeal in Nigeria and that future parties will take their stand on economic issues on a nationwide basis. If political parties were allowed to reappear today they would still form around tribal and local interests, whatever provisions might be made to prevent ethnocentric groups. But the present experience has given the unions such a unique chance to demonstrate the importance of national issues such as employment, development and the effects of inflation on ordinary people throughout Nigeria, that the lesson will not be forgotten.

Man Destroys Another Species

AP, from Washington

The ivory-billed woodpecker, a colorful, rakish bird rarer than the whooping crane, appears to be the latest to join the ranks of the passenger pigeon and other vanished species.

The last reported sighting was made by ornithologist John Dennis, in 1967.

Decline of the ivory-bill followed extensive lumbering operations throughout the South that felled the once-large stands of virgin timber. The birds fed primarily on the larvae of wood-borers that lived under tree bark. When the timber was cut, the birds' food supply was cut off.

The ivory-bill, largest woodpecker in North America and second largest in the world, is (or was) a particularly handsome species. Both sexes have black and white plumages and are larger than crows. The males have a rakish scarlet crest, while the female's crest is black.

Russia Behind Libya's Oil Stance

By OSGOOD CARUTHERS, from Vienna

In what may be one of its biggest and boldest gambles, the Soviet Union is believed to have offered powerful incentives and encouragement to Libya to push her "blackmail" demands for higher revenue from the Western companies for the oil they extract from that North African country.

Soviet offers of large-scale arms deliveries and long-range industrial development assistance in return for the bulk of Libya's rich oil production are now thought to be behind the tough stand being maintained by Libya's strongman, Col. Moamer Al Kadhafi.

This is the considered belief of experts here who have been close to the deadlocked negotiations between the Western oil companies and Libya.

The growing belief among these experts is that Kadhafi feels that he has nothing to lose in the gamble no matter which way the negotiations go.

If the Western oil companies bow to his demands for double the rise in price for crude oil they have just agreed to with the Persian Gulf producers, the gain in money wealth is obvious. If they reject his terms, he is assured of a market among the Soviet bloc countries.

The profits will be in military hardware — with which the regime hopes to make Libya a major African and Middle East power — and in development and industrialization projects.

The diversion of Libyan oil to the Soviet bloc would cause serious industrial and commercial difficulties for Western Europe, which now uses about a third of that country's annual production of 150 million barrels.

But this does not appear to be the primary purpose behind the Kremlin's gamble. The immediate factor is rather one of taking pressure off its own production without having to spend hard currency to do so.

Despite Soviet claims of impressive increases in oil production (from 98 million tons in 1957 to 353 million tons in 1970) there are clear signs that this is not sufficient to supply the rapidly growing home needs and those of its nonproducing allies in Eastern Europe.

The Soviet Union already has given the green light to Czechoslovakia, East Germany and Poland to negotiate deals with Iran and Iraq for the purchase of crude oil to supplement the supplies they now get from the Russians and the Romanians. Such purchases, however, cost hard currency which those countries can ill afford.

The foundation of Soviet pledges to provide good markets for Libyan oil were laid less than a year ago when that regime's minister of petroleum production, Ezzedine El Mabrouk, returned from visits to Moscow and East Berlin with unspecified "trade agreements."

Mabrouk is now carrying out the other side of his regime's gamble by seeking the support of Algeria, Saudi Arabia and Iraq in presenting a solid front against the more or less united Western companies.

The oil ministers of those three countries were in the Libyan capital of Tripoli Monday to confer on the negotiations.

The mood of the Western companies, backed by their governments, appears for the moment to be equally tough. And a breakdown of the negotiations would mean a halt in the flow of Libyan oil to Western Europe.

The prices of petroleum products already have risen sharply after the Western countries acceded to the demands of the Persian Gulf producer nations for higher prices during the next five years.

With the possible shutdown of oil from Libya, which is much closer to Western Europe and therefore costs much less to transport, the spectre has been raised of strict oil rationing such as has not been seen since the Second World War.

The experts are considering the possibility also that if the Soviet Union obtains Libya's oil output (for guns instead of gold) the Russians would have a good surplus which they could then resell to Western Europe for hard currency — at prices considerably lower than Libya is now demanding from the Western companies.

Western negotiators in Libya — and their colleagues in the organization of petroleum exporting countries which worked out the Persian Gulf deal — have expressed complete mystification over Kadhafi's motives.

But the Libyan regime is believed to have enough reserves of cash from the sales it has already made to the West to ride out its bluff.

Boss of 7,000 Chinese Building African Railroad

Canadian 'Accepted'

By DAN TURNER

From Dar es Salaam

Seven thousand Chinese — and one Canadian — are currently working on one of black Africa's most important projects, a rail link between the copper fields of Zambia and this port city in Tanzania.

Besides opening up development, the railway called Tanzam is designed to eliminate a major political problem: Zambia's dependence on a railway through white-minority-ruled Rhodesia to get tis copper to international markets.

The new 1,056-mile Tanzam line, on which construction began last October, is being funded by China through an interest-free loan of more than $400 million.

It is by far China's largest foreign aid project anywhere. Other Chinese aid to Tanzania includes construction of a naval base in Dar es Salaam harbor, a $6 million textile mill, military advisers who took over when Canadian advisers left in 1970, medical personnel and a munitions and small-arms factory.

China also is a supplier for some of the southern African guerrilla groups which have their headquarters here.

Canada, apparently welcomed by President Julius Nyerere to counteract in a small way the heavy Chinese influence, has scheduled a total aid program of $8 million this year, with prospects for growth but no hope of matching the Chinese contribution.

When External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp arrived here Saturday on his tour of black Africa, he was told by Nyerere and Finance Minister Amir Jamal that Canada's aid is appreciated, especially since Canada does not try to interfere in Tanzanian affairs.

One example of Tanzania's confidence — and apparently China's too — is the presence of a senior Canadian official on the Tanzam railway project.

He is J. R. Bernard, of Canadian National's Montreal office, who has been working as comptroller of the project for 11 months.

His presence is not widely advertised by the Canadian International Development Agency for fear of upsetting the delicate balance of co-operation that China has allowed to exist.

When Tanzania went to the Chinese with a list of more than 20 countries from which to pick a comptroller, only four were satisfactory to the Chinese.

Canada was one, and the Tanzanians chose Bernard.

They have also put out feelers as to whether Canada could provide for a five additional senior staff members for the project, including a chief mechanical engineer, a chief personnel officer and a purchasing agent.

The gesture is significant, considering the fact that in 1969 Tanzania and Zambia agreed that no Western personnel were to be involved in the project.

On Monday, Sharp signed an agreement in Arusha, Tanzania, for a $14 million interest-free Canadian loan to the three countries involved in East African Community —Kenya, Uganda and Tanzania.

The loan is to enable the community, a kind of common market, to buy 35 locomotives for the Tanzam railway.

The original feasibility survey for the railway was completed in 1965 by a consulting firm sponsored by Britain and Canada. Its report, suggesting a route for the railway, was turned down by the World Bank as uneconomic.

Nyerere took the project to China on a visit and the Chinese committed themselves immediately.

The project appeared to be going slowly until Rhodesia unilaterally declared independence from Britain, leaving a white-minority government on Zambia's southern border.

Zambia has since gone to great lengths to decrease its dependence on Rhodesia. The Chinese began an arduous railway study by foot beginning in 1968, which they completed in late 1969, and agreed to the loan to build the railway along essentially the same line as the Canadian-British survey had charted.

There now are between 7,000 and 7,500 Chinese in Tanzania working on the project. By 1972 there are to be 13,000 Chinese at work with 30,000 Tanzanians and Zambians.

The project is scheduled for completion in five years.

Labor Wages War in Britain

By RICHARD RESTON, from London

An estimated two million British workers will go on strike Thursday in a one-day political protest against the government's industrial relations bill. The strike will be the second of its kind this month and, more importantly, it reflects a new phenomenon in British society — militant industrial action for purely political purposes.

Such strikes are a direct challenge to the government's attempt to reform the dismal state of affairs between labor and management in this country. Despite a political debate more stormy and divisive than any in recent memory, the Conservatives remain committed to industrial reform as the cornerstone of their entire legislative program.

The state of labor-management relations in Britain these days is remarkable if only for its record of chaos and failure. Labor unrest is at an all-time high. The country is in a tough anti-union mood and the Tory government is determined to capitalize on public sentiment.

The government hopes to enact sweeping reform legislation by the time parliament recesses for the summer. The proposals draw heavily on the experience of other countries, including the United States. Britain, in effect, is trying to do in one parliamentary bill what it took the United States nearly three decades to accomplish.

The British legislation would: Introduce a 60-day cooling off period where strikes might force a national emergency to do serious damage to the nation's economy; establish a network of industrial courts; set forth a detailed list of unfair practices for both labor and management; determine a majority bargaining unit in cases where trade unions compete against each other during negotiations with a single employer; make contracts enforceable and binding.

These and other provisions are alien to the development of the British trade union movement.

Thus the labor movement in this country is deeply suspicious of new government proposals to introduce formal machinery into the bargaining process. Its commitment, with the full support of the Labor Party, is to fight the legislation to the end.

U.S. Faces New Explosive Issue

Zoning Laws Protect Rich

By STEPHEN SCOTT, from Mahwah, N.J.

This town in pleasant rolling country 40 miles out of New York City is providing an example of a problem that may become as much trouble to the United States government as school desegregation did in the past.

The problem is a practice by a growing number of suburban communities around large industrial cities to enact zoning laws that have the effect of making it impossible for the poor and lower middle class to move in.

As many of those kept out are black and Puerto Rican, civil rights leaders charge rank discrimination on the part of suburbs seeking to remain predominantly white.

Federal Housing Secretary George Romney has admitted that the situation is beginning to generate as much emotion as the existence of white and black schools did in the recent past.

He said it would be some weeks before the federal government decides what action, if any, it should take.

But he indicated that President Nixon would not intervene in the affairs of communities as the federal government did in the earlier school desegregation battles. Instead Nixon apparently hopes the zoning practices can be ended through private lawsuits.

Romney gave a good description of what has been happening. He said people have escaped into the suburbs from crowded, crime-ridden cities and then passed laws that made it impossible for minority groups to follow them.

This town is doing what many such communities around large cities are doing. Some years ago the town lured Ford Motor Co. and some smaller industries into the community.

Later it passed a zoning law that forbade construction of a house on less than an acre of land.

Now it is considering a law that would limit apartment building to one living unit per acre; a 100-unit apartment building would require 100 acres of land.

The United Auto Workers union and some civil rights groups are challenging Mahwah's zoning which they say violates the spirit of anti-discrimination legislation that came into being to halt more flagrant attempts to keep minorities out of the burgeoning suburbs.

They say that 40 per cent of the 5,000 Ford employees here are non-white and that few of these workers can afford to live in the town.

They point out that some Ford workers must travel through 40 miles of suburban "bedroom" area from New York to their place of employment. They are making a test case out of the Mahwah experience.

Some Mahwah citizens meanwhile are forming "home rule" groups in an attempt to mobilize public opinion against interference by senior governments.

Such groups as the UAW and the National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing say the zoning practices are locking minority groups into inner-city ghettos and preventing their escape.

Some civil rights leaders want strong Washington action, such as threatening to cut federal housing grants.

But President Nixon has said this would be unconstitutional. He doesn't mention that many of his supporters in federal elections come from the white suburbs and already feel overtaxed.

If he forces low-rent housing, with its resulting strain on school and other facilities, on these voters, they could turn against him.

Civil rights leaders at the moment seem content to attempt to break exclusionary zoning in the courts. But in the past there has been violence in the suburbs and there is no telling whether it will occur again if the zoning practices are not stopped.

UVic Administration Criticized

Faculty Joins Attack

By DOUGLAS ROWE

The administration of the University of Victoria was sharply criticized by students and faculty alike at a public teach-in in the UVic Student Union Building Sunday afternoon.

The teach-in, held to discuss the current contract disputes at UVic in relation to the UVic tenure document and the B.C. Universities Act, drew about 70 people.

Dr. Richard Powers of UVic's political science department, one of the authors of the tenure document and a member of the committee which selected Bruce Partridge president of the university, told the audience there was a "fundamental miscalculation" in the UVic tenure document.

"When we drew up that document we put in a clause that if a negative decision (on contract renewal) was given by the department or the faculty advisory committee, the person concerned could argue his case and ask for reasons," Powers said.

"We assumed that any reversal of positive decisions at a higher level would be under very extreme circumstances, and that the dean or president would most certainly need to justify himself."

In 11 of the 12 contracts that are not being renewed this year, departmental recommendations for renewal have been reversed at higher levels. None of the faculty members involved have been given definite reasons.

Another member of the political science department, Dr. Edgar Efrat, said Canada's "whole system is based on the giving of powers that are not expected to be used."

"If the governor-general wanted to use all his powers, he could effectively run Canada."

Efrat said that secrecy has no place in a university except in "extreme circumstances "I can't think of any," he added.

Dr. Kenneth Rankin, head of the philosophy department at UVic, said the powers of the dean and president should be of "a discretionary nature" and "should not be negatively used."

Rankin also asked for "alternative measures" which would take the final decision on contract renewals from the dean and president.

Gerald Lassen, an assistant professor of economics, said that the "legalistic attitude" of the administration in refusing to give reasons for its decisions had created "a feeling of mistrust" in which it was "difficult to work effectively."

The most heated debate came when university information officer Floyd Fairclough, only administration member present, defended a letter which was published in the student newspaper, The Martlet, March 1.

The letter asked administrators to "stand up and be counted" against "the latest defamation attempt of The Martlet to destroy the university."

The letter referred to a Marlet article questioning the legitimacy of president Partridge's degrees from Blackstone College of Chicago.

One faculty member charged Fairclough with effectively stating that "anyone who disagrees with you commits slander."

At that point a member of the audience stood up and said "it makes me sick to hear persons drawing a salary from this institution criticize the administration."

Most of the faculty members present were openly critical of the administration.

A student organizer said he had asked faculty members known to be sympathetic to the administration to attend, but that they "had chosen not to speak at a mass meeting."

Also Sunday, the Alma Mater Society's Representative Assembly voted overwhelmingly in favor of a motion asking that a one-year extension of contract be given to each of the 12 faculty members, during which time the current contract dispute could be worked out.

The motion demanded a reply from the university's board of governors by 5 p.m. Wednesday.

AMS president Ian McKinnon's opposition to the motion resulted in a non-confidence motion later in the evening.

"We feel he's selling the students up the river," one member of the assembly told the Colonist.

"He's selling our cause short."

The non-confidence motion was defeated by a vote of 12 to 8, with one abstention.

Action Against 269 Taken by Police

Action was taken against 269 drivers when 1,735 motorists were stopped in the latest Victoria police road check, officials of the police traffic division disclosed Monday.

Officials said 11 policemen and 15 auxiliaries took part in the check between 5 and 11:30 p.m. last Friday on Gorge Road, Esquimalt Road and Oak Bay Avenue.

The results included two arrests for impaired driving, 85 summonses with the majority for lack of an inspection sticker and 182 warning tickets — mostly for failure to produce insurance, registration and driver's licences.

Officials said the check will be held periodicially "when manpower is available."

Three Killed

GAZA CITY, Israeli-Occupied Territory (UPI) — Three Arabs, two of them young children, died in a series of overnight Arab guerrilla attacks in the occupied Gaza Strip.

Sewage Plant Order Given

B.C. Pollution Control Board announced Monday the city of Prince George has been ordered to proceed immediately with construction of a primary sewage treatment plant.

PCB Chairman F. S. McKinnon said the board has denied the city's application for an extension of a pollution control permit which would have allowed discharge of raw sewage into the Fraser River to continue until 1974.

The PCB's decision also requires Prince George to prepare and submit preliminary plans for a secondary treatment plant by 1973.

McKinnon said objections to extension of the permit came from the provincial health branch, the fish and wildlife branch and the citizens of Prince George who had signed a petition calling for secondary treatment.

Provincial COURT

A 38-year-old man may be sentenced today in Victoria Provincial Court after he pleaded guilty Monday to a batch of charges laid after a Saturday incident in which a shot was fired while the man struggled with a Simpsons-Sears security officer.

Henry Patrick McBryan, no fixed address, pleaded guilty to one charge of possession of heroin, one of false pretences involving less than $50 and one containing four counts — use of a revolver in a manner dangerous to the safety of others, possession of a restricted weapon, possession of a stolen car and fraud.

A Victoria policeman testified McBryan received clothing items worth a total of $43.12 Saturday afternoon at Simpsons-Sears through use of a stolen credit card. In the parking lot outside, he said, McBryan was "confronted" by the security officer, identified elsewhere as Blaine Berg.

The policeman said McBryan pointed the revolver at Berg and "made verbal threats." The gun went off during a struggle which subdued McBryan, the spent bullet hitting a parked car and five bullets being found in the revolver.

The policeman said the car had been stolen Feb. 16 in Vancouver. In it, he said, police found groceries and clothing worth a total of $190.40 obtained earlier Saturday from Woodward's through use of a stolen credit card — and they also found 19 capsules of heroin in a cigarette package.

The policeman said McBryan had 10 stolen credit cards and may have taken a fix before the Saturday incident. Judge William Ostler ordered the remand to today after prosecutor John McIntyre said other charges were possible.

Sylvester Gutkowski, 19, of 1834 Stanley, was sentenced to four months definite and six months indeterminate and Ostler said he hoped the time could be served in a forestry camp. Gutkowski pleaded guilty March 4 to a charge of trafficking in a narcotic — one piece of hashish sold for $5 last July 17 to an RCMP undercover agent in a downtown Victoria hotel.

Gerald Robert Johnson, 20, of 1346 May, was remanded to next Monday for further hearing on a charge of attempting to procure a miscarriage and, in so doing, unlawfully using a knitting needle. The charge was dated "on or about March 13" in Victoria.

Allen Myron Blocka, 20, of 1337 Grant, was committed by Ostler to a higher court for trial following a preliminary hearing on a charge of possession of heroin Feb. 2 in Victoria for the purpose of trafficking. Bail was set at $3,000 pending the high-court hearing.

Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, 61, of 1955 Forrester, was fined $250 after she pleaded guilty to a charge of theft involving less than $50—the shoplifting of five clothing articles worth a total of $22 last Saturday from The Bay.

In the court section of Judge E. F. N. Robinson, a one-day jail term and $100 fine were ordered for John Bruce Barber, 21, of 1127 Pandora. He was found guilty March 5 following a trial on a charge of mischief laid after a rock was thrown through a plate-glass window of the federal income tax offices at 1005 Pandora in February, and was ordered to pay $78.52 to repair the damage.

Police Chief Victim Of Break-In

A number of recent break-ins which appear to be related include one at the home of Victoria Police Chief J. F. Gregory at 3240 Uplands, Oak Bay police confirmed Monday.

Persons who ransacked the home reportedly entered by breaking the glass in a rear kitchen door. Gregory is out of the area on holiday and the amount of loss will not be known until after his return.

Political Pattern Followed

Bert McPhillips, who was Victoria member of Parliament during the Diefenbaker years, was buried Monday in Vancouver following his sudden death at 67 last Thursday in Ottawa.

Burial followed a short, simple ceremony in a Vancouver funeral chapel after a Roman Catholic mass conducted Friday in Ottawa. The small crowd in the chapel included family members and such prominent politicians as Davie Fulton, McPhillips' cousin.

Albert DeBurgo McPhillips, represented Victoria as a Progressive Conservative MP from 1957 to 1963 and was the son and grandson of leading B.C. politicians of the same conservative leaning.

His grandfather was A. B. Davie, a former premier and attorney-general. His father was A. E. McPhillips, attorney-general from 1903 to 1913 in Sir Richard McBride's Conservative government and a B.C. appeal court justice from 1913 until his death in 1938.

Bert McPhillips was born Jan. 18, 1904, in Victoria and educated at St. Michael's school and Victoria high school. After he was called to the B.C. bar, he worked in Vancouver with his lawyer-uncle L. G. McPhillips, coming to Victoria in 1950 to open his own firm.

He was an unsuccessful candidate in the B.C. elections of 1933, 1941 and 1952 and then was elected in the first John Diefenbaker victory in June of 1957, defeating incumbent Liberal MP Dr. F. T. Fairey by 17,693 to 10,369.

The next year, when the Diefenbaker government won a huge Commons majority, he defeated Liberal candidate Geoffrey Ellis by 24,377 to 7,971.

By 1962, the political tide had swung against the Progressive Conservatives, Diefenbaker being reduced to a minority in Commons and McPhillips scoring a 216-vote win over Liberal Foster Isherwood.

McPhillips

In that last Diefenbaker year, Victoria's MP was appointed parliamentary secretary to the minister of fisheries.

He did not run in 1963 when the Lester Pearson minority government took over. One of Diefenbaker's last acts was to name McPhillips to a 10-year term on the Canadian Tariff Board as of March 2, 1963.

McPhillips then made his home in Ottawa.

Outside politics, he was a member of the Knights of Columbus and was active in children's aid groups and the Community Chest. During the Second World War, he was in the Duke of Connaught's Own Rifles, rising to the rank of captain.

Survivors include his widow, Dorothy; one son, Edward of Vancouver; one daughter, Mrs. Jacqueline Abbott of Prince George, and one brother, Dr. A. St. G. McPhillips of Delta.

Constable Hit, Aids Attacker

Anarchy could result in Canada if the attitude of disrespect toward police goes on, Judge William Ostler said Monday in Victoria Provincial Court.

And, he added, "the people who show this disrespect could bitterly regret what they reap."

The judge was speaking to Alvin Hunter, 33, of 3870 Wilkinson, Saanich, who pleaded guilty to a charge of assaulting a peace officer early last Saturday in Esquimalt.

His comment came after the Esquimalt constable involved, James Donald Askew, said he knew Hunter and added "this type of incident is not in keeping with his character" and probably could be blamed on liquor.

Askew said he was on routine patrol Saturday when he noticed two intoxicated men in the parking lot of the Gorge Hotel, 1075 Tillicum. He said he advised Hunter to take a taxi home but Hunter became abusive and then punched Askew in the chest.

Askew said Hunter's companion told Hunter to stop and also used the radio in the police car to call for help.

Ostler told Hunter that Askew had "acted as advocate for you ... you should be ashamed ... No wonder younger people show disrespect toward the police when people of your age do it."

The judge said higher courts had favored jail terms for assailants of peace officers but, mainly because of Askew's advocacy, he would fine Hunter instead — $400.

Ex-Victorian Dies in Crash

Former Victoria resident Gerald I. North, 49, of Whitecourt, Alta., was one of three persons killed Friday night in a two-car collision near the Southern Alberta community of Gleichen.

North who left Victoria for Calgary early last year, was well-known in riding circles and, at one time was president of the Colwood Trail Riders.

Former club associates described North as a very popular man. "If there was a sick horse, he'd get up at three in the morning and stay with the animal," one of his former fellow-club members said.

Ballinderry Takes Dive

VANCOUVER — Ballinderry Oils fell 1.00 to 2.50 in very active trading to provide the day's feature. The company has been drilling two wells in the Flatrock area east of Fort St. John.

Mines were stronger with Brenda up .15 at 8.85; Churchill up .24 at 1.25. Gibraltar up .40 at 4.65 and Western Mines up .15 at 3.70. Improved price of copper on the London Metal Exchange spurred the mines.

Industrials were mixed with the best gains showing in N W L Financial, Portcom, Canadian Javelin and Great Pacific Idusries.

Coppers Lead

TORONTO (CP) — A big advance in copper stocks and industrial issues powered the market to its highest level in almost a year.

On index, industrials gain of 1.61 to 182.55 was the largest on the industrial index since Nov. 30, 1970. The climb boosted the index to its highest level since April 10 of last year.

The base metal index gained strength as several copper stocks shot sharply upward.

Among the big advancers, Falconbridge was up 4 to 144, Hudson Bay Mining ⅝ to 23¼, Opemiska ¾ to 11⅝, Lake Dufault ⅝ to 15½ and Noranda ¼ to 34¾.

World copper prices were strong, said analysts, because of reports that Chilean producers were having difficulty filling copper contracts.

Strongest sectors were industrial mining, papers, pipelines and steels.

Chrysler was up 1⅞ to 29⅛, United Funds Management 1⅝ to 14⅝, TransCanada PipeLine ⅞ to 32⅞, General Motors ⅞ to 84, MacMillan-Bloedel ¾ to 26⅛, International Utilites ⅝ to 43¾ and Seagrams ¼ to 53¼.

Among declining issues, CPR was down 1 to 67¾, Canadian Tire 1¼ to 29¾, Consolidated Rambler 63 cents to 2.30 and Canadian Superior Oil ⅝ to 36⅛.

New High for Year

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal stock market surged ahead in light trading with industrials, composite and papers setting a new high for the year.

All sectors moved ahead, with highlighting advances, General Motors Corp. was up 10 to 84.00, Falcon rose 4 to 144 and Chrysler gained 2¼ to 28.00.

Strong at Close

NEW YORK (AP) — The Dow Jones closing average topped the 900 level for the first time in more than 1½ years as renewed instutitional activity buoyed heavy trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks closed up 9.86 at 908.20. The last time the Dow finished above the 900 level was June 11, 1969, when it hit 904.60.

Among oil companies with holdings in Libya, reported considering nationalizing foreign oil firms, Occidental Petroleum was unchanged at 18⅛, and Standard Oil of New Jersey was up 1 at 77⅝.

The NYSE index of 1,200 common stocks climbed 0.61 to 55.14.

Volume leader was Avery Products off 1⅛ at 33⅝. Chrysler was up 1⅝ at 29; Kennecott, up 2 at 38; Ford, up 1¼ at 61⅝; American Smelting and Refining, up 1⅛ at 26⅞; and General Motors up 1¼ at 84¼.

Home Shares Back In Trading Today

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Trading will be resumed today in the shares of Home Oil and its associate, Cygnus Corp., on the Toronto Stock Exchange, despite the fact that the future ownership of the two companies remains in doubt.

The decision was taken by the Ontario Securities Commission after the close of stock exchange trading on Monday.

The OSC said briefly that the action was taken "in view of widespread dissemination and comment about the companies."

The ban on trading was placed last Thursday after the Canadian government said it was negotiating with R. A. Brown Jr. president of both companies for the acquisition of his Cygnus shares that control Home.

Since the government's announcement there has been much speculation as to the position of the minority shareholders of both Cygnus and Home who would be effected by the government intervention as possible new owners of the Home group of companies.

The shares of both companies are widely held by the Canadian investing public.

It should be noted that Home Oil Company Ltd. of Calgary is not connected with Home Oil Distributors of Vancouver which operates a chain of gas service stations

Bond Prices Up

Bond prices rose following a keen demand for the Canadian government's new issue of $475,000,000 bonds in three maturities.

The new bonds sold quickly and initial over-the-counter trading reached a premium of between 25 and 60 cents on the various maturities.

The new issues consist of three year 5 per cent bonds at par maturing April 1, 1974; five-and-a-half year 5½ per cent bonds at par maturing on Oct. 1, 1976, and nine year 6¾ per cent bonds at 99 maturing April 1, 1980 to yield about 6.4 per cent.

Pipeline Doubts

Growing doubts as to whether the Trans-Alaska Pipe Line will get its permit has worked to the benefit of Trans-Mountain Oil Pipe Line, which would be one of the major gainers from a change in the method of transportation of Alaska north slope oil to market.

Trans-Mountain is one of the syndicate studying construction of an oil-gas pipeline through the Mackenzie River area which is the alternative method suggested to bring Arctic oil to market.

In addition if the Trans-Alaska route is blocked on ecological or environmental grounds, Trans-Mountain would be the main source of oil supply for the new Atlantic Richfield refinery being built near the Canadian international border, south of Blaine.

In anticipation of at least a hold-up in the Trans-Alaska pipeline, shares of Trans-Mountain Oil Pipe Line have moved up more than three points in the past two weeks. They traded at $24⅝ at one time Monday at Toronto and closed at $24¼.

Bank Offers Rights

Shareholders of the Canadian National Bank (Banque Canadienne Nationale) are being offered rights to buy one new share at $10 each for six shares held.

The offer, which expires April 30 is to shareholders of record March 24. It will increase the bank's capital stock from $12 million to $14 million.

Sawmill Planned

Kamloops Pulp and Paper has announced plans to build a new sawmill near Vavenby in the North Thompson region.

It will be designed to produce in excess of 100,000 board ft. a year of dressed lumber, utilizing wood down to four-inch top.

It will be the seventh interior mill owned by Kamloops, a subsidiary of Weyerhaeuser of Tacoma.

West Faces Oil Cut-Off

TRIPOLI, Libya (Reuter) — Four Mediterranean oil-exporting countries warned Monday night they would cut off supplies if Western oil companies refused to meet Libya's demand for higher prices.

The warning came at the end of a meeting of oil ministers for Iraq, Libya, Algeria and Saudi Arabia.

A joint statement said the ministers were told of the measures Libya has decided to take if the 25 Western companies involved did not respond to the Libyan demand for a $1.20 increase in the posted price of a barrel of crude oil.

With Space in View

Giant crane and hard-working men are trying to beat parking space shortage this summer by providing 150 additional stalls in View Street parking garage before tourist season's full impact. Project is part of $1.5 million expenditure by downtown merchants to relieve chronic shortage of parking space. New Johnson Street parking building, now under construction, and addition to Yates Street parking structure are also part of total project.—(William E. John)

Vehicle Sales Jump

DETROIT (UPI) — The big three car companies posted impressive gains in sales during the first 10 days of March compared with the same period a year ago.

General Motors, Ford and Chrysler recorded deliveries totalling 197,640 for the period, compared with 158,320 in the same period a year ago.

There were nine selling days in the 1971 March opening period, with only eight a year ago, but General Motors and Ford both posted substantial increases in the daily selling rate as well. Chrysler was off slightly in the daily selling rate.

Heath Tells Ford

Britain Licking Inflation Battle

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath told Henry Ford II Monday his government is determined to win Britain's battle against inflation and strikes and that this country will continue to be worth investing in.

The two met informally for two hours over lunch at Heath's No. 10 Downing St. residence. As Ford arrived, striking Ford workers heckled him with shouts of "we're not bluffing, Henry!" and "come and meet the slaves at Dagenham!"

Workers at Ford's plant at Dagenham, east of London, voted Sunday to continue a 32-day-old strike for more pay which was estimated to have cost the company $151.2 million so far.

Ford said on arrival here Saturday he would not recommend new investment in the company's British plants because of the country's labor problems.

But government sources said Heath told him the government is fighting to curb strikes and beat inflation and believes it is winning both battles.

Bruins Demanding Attention But Rangers Worth Watching

New York Rangers have managed their best-ever performance in a National Hockey League season in which developments have been obscured by the scoring proclivities of the Boston Bruins but it might be unwise to forget about the Blueshirts.

They've been playing all month without star-defencemen Brad Park and Rod Seiling and they have an 11-game unbeaten string in which they have allowed only 14 goals.

Now with 99 points, which is seven more than managed by any other Ranger club, the New Yorkers ran their streak to 11 (10 wins) on Sunday night by shutting out Toronto Maple Leafs, 1-0.

Ed Giacomin, fresh for the last part of the season after sharing goaltending duties with rookie Gilles Villemure, stopped 33 shots to record his seventh shutout of the season.

NINTH AS RANGER

The goal he needed for the win was provided by Bruce MacGregor, who has become somewhat of a scoring star since being obtained recently from Detroit Red Wings.

The scoring shot, which came in the last minute of the first period, was his 15th this season, and the ninth since being traded.

Although Rangers have scant hope of catching the Bruins, they are all but certain to be the East Division runner-up. And to increase their hopes of a first Stanley Cup since 1940, Rangers received word Monday that Park and Seiling, both nursing knee injuries, can be expected back in the next 10 days.

While Rangers were consolidating their position, this also happened Sunday:

- Detroit Red Wings overcame 0-3 and 2-4 deficits to score a 9-5 decision which left California Golden Seals winless in nine successive games, a streak in which they have yielded 54 goals;
- Montreal Canadiens, getting a start when Pete Mahovlich scored a first-period goal while out as a penalty-killer, made a third-place finish more likely by blasting by Pittsburgh Penguins, 5-1. Fifth in the West Division, Penguins are winless in five games and 1-7-5 in their last 13.
- Buffalo Sabres reacted to the 9-0 humiliation they took from St. Louis Blues on Saturday night and took it out on Minnesota North Stars, 5-0. Sabres scored in the first minute to end a scoreless streak at 143 minutes for Cesare Maniago, who shut out Penguins on Saturday night and the Blues last Wednesday;
- And Chicago Black Hawks scored twice in the last five minutes to gain a 4-4 tie with the Blues, then learned Monday that Goalkeeper Gerry Desjardins had been lost for the season with a double fracture of the left arm suffered when he was banged into a goalpost by teammate Keith Magnuson.

Up-Island Entries . . . . . . Dominate Colonist Event

Lake Cowichan Bowlers Top Spiel

By JIM TANG

Lake Cowichan bowlers took away top honors in The Daily Colonist's eighth annual Vancouver Island Fivepin Bowlspiel, which concluded Sunday at Town and Country Lanes.

Grandozers weren't caught asleep once, running off seven straight victories to win the Colonist Trophy and $500 in cash.

Alice Miles, Jessie Gueulette and Jean Capella, who list Honeymoon Bay as home and bowl out of Lake Cowichan Lanes, enlisted the help of Victoria's Cyril Shelford, Mrs. Capella's son-in-law, in winning the bowlspiel championship.

The champions bested Campbell River teams in the semi-finals and finals, winning handily on each occasion by bowling well over average.

Lake Cowichan Lanes, a team which has been a previous winner as the Omows, took the Town and Country Trophy and $400 in cash.

It made it quite an event for Up-Island bowlers, who had found the pickings a bit lean in recent years after being prominent in the first few years of the bowlspiel competition.

AVERTED SWEEP

Hot Dogs averted an Up-Island sweep by defeating Courtenay's Stardust Drive-In and taking the Gar's Trophies event. However, Up-Island bowlers, who made up 42 of the record entry of 144 teams, took away $1,350 of the $2,100 in prize money.

In addition to the event victories for Grandozers and Lake Cowichan Lanes and the second-place finish for Stardust Drive-In, Campbell River Bowl took second prize of $250 in the Colonist event, Campbell River Aces won $125 for reaching the semi-finals and Ladysmith Brooins were among the four teams which shared $100 for reaching the quarter-finals of the Town and Country event.

ALWAYS IN CHARGE

Grandozers, led by Mrs. Capella's 834, were always in charge in the Colonist Trophy final. They sported a 199-point handicap edge over Campbell River Bowl and promptly boosted the margin to 303 points by winning the first game, 860-766.

The Campbell River team made a small gain in the second game but lost the third game and were beaten 2458-2431 in the scratch total and by 2909-2683 in the gross total.

It was somewhat the same in the semi-final against Campbell River Aces, who gave up 204 points in handicap but managed to cut that by 64 in the first game.

However, McCauley, who finished with a 782 series, threw in a 296 second game. Grandozers won it by 43 points and took the third game by 89 with McCauley contributing 290.

Campbell River Bowl, led by John Pinter with 772 and Ingles Wiebe with 738, made up 218-point difference in handicap to eliminate Camosun Electric by 104 points in the semi-finals.

Lake Cowichan Lanes, knocked out of the Colonist event in the round of eight by Grandozers, made good use of a 362-point pull in handicap to beat Totem Travel in the Town and Country final.

It was really decided in the first game although the final margin was a mere 35 points. With Betty Mancell coming up with a 281, Cowichan Lanes rolled 824 scratch in the opening game to boost its margin by 31 points. Totem Travel, who had an eight-game winning streak going after losing the first time scheduled, bounced right back to win the second game by 260 points but couldn't make it the rest of the way. The third-game margin was only 98 points as Mrs. Mancell scored 226 and Jim Olson anchored with 248.

DEFENDING CHAMPS

Lake Cowichan Lanes rolled over Family Affair, 2862-2531, in the semi-finals while Totem Travel edged past Yetsies, the defending champions, by 12 points.

Yetsies appeared set to get to the final. They had a handicap edge of 264 and won the first game by 34 points. But Marg Vickery's all-female crew appeared to tire in the rugged last-day grind, had it's lead almost halved in the second game and then failed when the last game produced a team total of only seven strikes.

DIDN'T NEED IT

Hot Dogs, who had a 190-point edge, didn't need the handicap in the Gar's Trophies event final. They won scratch, 2774 —2767, with Karen Mowatt putting in a 781 series and Edith Campbell adding 737.

And it was that way through the bowlspiel — the women, who made up almost half the number of bowlers involved, again outbowled the males on a comparative basis. And particularly in the late going.

Of the 48 bowlers making up the lineups of the 12 teams which reached the semi-finals, 24 are women. The Grandozers included three distaff bowlers, Campbell River Bowl had two and Camosun Electric was an all-distaff outfit.

Only Campbell River Aces in the main event had an all-male lineup.

Three women were involved in the Town and Country final and the defeated semi-finalists, Yetsies and Family Affair, included six women. And there were six women among the semi-finalists in Gar's Trophies event, including two on the championship Hot Dogs.

GAR'S TROPHIES winners, from top, Edith Campbell; Karen Mowatt, Fred Garside, Ray Campbell, the Hot Dogs.

City Bowlers Fare Better For Individual Trophies

Victoria bowlers, who won only one of the three trophy events, did a bit better in trophies for individual performance during the eighth annual Vancouver Island Fivepin Bowlspiel.

They won three out of the four. Mary Ball rolled the women's high three of 900, Barbara Dickinson had the high women's single of 355 and Doug Rowse had an 894 series to take the trophy for men's high three.

Butch Rivers of Courtenay won the men's high single with 363. Trophies were donated by Gar's Trophies.

Allen Powers Buck Victory

Tom Allen scored five goals to lead Ingraham Buckaroos to an 8-3 win over Victoria Automatic Transmission Monday in the opening game of the Stuffy McGinnis Hockey League semi-final at Memorial Arena.

Second game of the best-of-three series will be played Monday at Memorial Arena starting at 8:15 p.m.

Allen, the league scoring champion, had one goal in each of the first two periods and added three more in the final period. Ken Waet, who assisted on all five of Allen's goals, Wes Borkowski and Terry Tweedy scored the other Bucks' goals while Ian Phillips, Sam Desimonie and Dave Rivers scored for VATs.

UVic Jayvees Finish Second

WINNIPEG — University of Manitoba Jayvees won the Canadian junior men's basketball championship Sunday by defeating Memorial University of St. John's, Newfoundland, 67-39, Sunday.

It was the fourth straight win in the five-team championship for Manitoba.

University of Victoria Jayvees took second place by defeating University of Calgary Dinosaurs, 74-70, Sunday. Earlier in the day, Victoria edged defending-champion Windsor AKO, 78-76, in overtime.

Chris Hall of Victoria was named the championship's most-valuable-player and was also selected to the all-star team. Others selected were John Ohler of Windsor, Jim Lathrop of Calgary, Brian Kavanagh of Memorial and Darryl Rumsey and Brad Craig of Manitoba. Ohler and Lathrop tied in the balloting for one of the forward positions.

Jayvees, who blew a lead late in the game and lost, 67-70, to Manitoba in their opening-game Friday, were led by Jim Hunter with 24 points in the final game. Hall, the tournament's leading scorer, had 12 points and was outstanding as a playmaker.

In Sunday's other game, Calgary downed Memorial, 79-64, to finish third with a 2-2 record. Windsor was third at 1-3 and Memorial was winless in four games.

Grexton receives first awards from Wilf Smith, representing Mayfair Lanes in presentation ceremony Monday.—(William A. Boucher)

First Here Since 1948 . . . . . . First Ever by Male

Grexton Bowls Perfect Game

Brian Grexton, who has for some time appeared as the bowler most likely to do it, Sunday became the first male bowler in Victoria tenpin history to roll a sanctioned 300 game.

The 22-year-old righthander did it in the second game of a 16-game marathon competition at Mayfair Lanes.

That made him the second Victoria tenpinner to get the maximum pin fall of 300. The first was Marg Beaney, who did it in 1948.

Grexton went on from his perfect game to a scratch total of 3396 for an outstanding average of a shade more than 212. His gross total was 3508, making him a 126 point winner.

Second place went to Tom Newbegin, who averaged almost 195 with a 3114 scratch and a gross total of 3382.

Derek Leonard, who had the second-best scratch total (3161), Charlie Cowie and Henry Loos also managed to average more than 190. Leonard finished fourth, Cowie ninth and Loo 19th as they lost out to bowlers with bigger handicaps.

Grexton managed his big average although he had four games below 180 and seven below 200. He also had a 267, a 259, a 246, a 235 and four other games of more than 200. He tailed off towards the finish, averaging 184 in his last five games after hitting better than 225 in his first 11.

His first four-game block went 188-300-171-206 for 865, then it was 246-259-181-235 for 921 and 267-210-213-169 for 859. He finished 168-183-178-222 for 751.

The number of awards for Grexton and what they will be is not yet known. But they started with a cheque for $300 from Mayfair Lanes and a lifetime pass for open bowling at any of the more than 50 tenpin establishments operated by Consolidated Bowling Corporation in Canada, the U.S., West Germany and Italy.

And Grexton will take an engraved gold watch as his award from the American Bowling Congress, the Victoria Tenpin Association picking up the tab for any duty.

Somewhat overshadowed by Grexton's performance was the 10-game marathon for women run in conjunction with the men's 16-gamer.

Topping the women's competition was Gail Cutforth, who averaged 164 and won with a gross total of 2123.

Marlene Mitchell, who had the high scratch of 1863, was second at 2066. Evie Weinberger, who finished fifth at 1978, had the high single of 245.

Next games: Tonight — Chilliwack at VICTORIA, Memorial Arena, 8 p.m.; Kelowna at Penticton.

Victoria Cougars, starting tonight at Memorial Arena, are going to spend a lot of time with Chilliwack Bruins during the next two weeks.

Bruins, legislated into the B.C. Junior Hockey League playoffs, are here tonight for a league game and will be opponents for the Cougars in five of their next six games.

Cougars complete their league schedule by hosting Vancouver Centennials Saturday night, then started Wednesday against Chilliwack in a best-of-seven quarter-final series.

Cougar-manager Eric Bishop announced Monday night that tonight will be "Kids' Night" at Memorial Arena — all youngsters 13 years of age and under to be admitted free if accompanied by an adult.

Saturday will also have something special. It will be "Fan Appreciation Night" as well as the night when it will be announced who has won the player awards.

Cougars go into tonight's game in top form. They completed their final tour of the Okanagan on Sunday afternoon by dooming Kamloops Rockets to a third-place finish in the Okanagan Division.

Scoring three goals in less than four minutes after Rockets had managed the first scoring shot, Cougars rolled to a 9-4 win. Ted Plowe continued his bid for the scoring title by getting three goals and two assists.

New Westminster Royals edged Vancouver Centennials, 3-2, in the only game Monday.

In Sunday's other game, the Bruins played to a 4-4 tie with Vernon Essos, who now lead the Okanagan Division by a point but have only a single game left while Penticton's second-place Broncos are three games away from the end of their schedule.

Athletics Bring Memories Of Great Alberni Teams

By SOHAN RAM

PORT ALBERNI — Time was turned back six years on Sunday at Alberni Athletic Hall when Alberni Athletics dumped Victoria's Douglas Hotel, 87-64, to win the Vancouver Island senior "B" basketball championship.

It still isn't quite the same as the senior "A" basketball Athletics used to dominate, but it brought back memories and, more important, hinted at better things to come.

CLASSY NEWCOMERS

Along with them are two outstanding newcomers — guards John Drew, who played with Simon Fraser University Clansmen, and Alex Brayden, member of the Canadian national team — and a promising young Alberni player, Pard Hogeweide.

Lehtonen, who won all-Canadian honors in 1965, and Drew were outstanding Sunday as the Athletics overcame the five-point deficit they faced after a 73-78 defeat in Victoria the previous weekend.

WON GOING AWAY

Both players contributed 22 points as the Athletics took a five-point series lead by winning the first half, 46-36, and then won going away after a few anxious moments spent in solving the zone defence set up by the desperate Victorians in the early part of the fourth quarter.

More than 250 fans watched as Athletics reached the provincial final, scheduled in Vancouver next weekend, and the calibre of play and the interest it roused in the watchers indicated strongly that Port Alberni may be ready to return to "A" competition.

Birdie on 17th Hole . . . . . . Edges Julius Boros

Palmer Wins 56th Tourney

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Arnold Palmer fought off tenacious Julius Boros and scored his second victory of the season Sunday in the $150,000 Florida Citrus Invitational golf tournament.

The 41-year-old Palmer had a final round 68 for 270, 18 under par on the 6849-yard Rio Pinar Country Club course and beat Boros, the 51-year-old National Seniors champion, by a one stroke.

Boros, who twice tied Palmer in the sweltering heat, had a final 69 for 271.

The $30,000 first-prize check for Palmer's 56th career victory placed him at the top of the season's money-winning list with more than $89,000.

Palmer nailed down the victory with an approach shot on the 17th hole that left him with an four-foot putt for the birdie that broke the tie.

SLID PAST CUP

Boros, playing just behind Palmer, had a chance to tie it with a birdie on the final hole. He missed the green to the right and chipped for the birdie but the ball just slid past the cup.

Kermit Zarley, the 1970 Canadian Open champ, was alone in third with a 69 for 273.

Jerry Heard, 23, who shared the first-round lead with Palmer, had a 69 for 274 and was tied at that figure with Tom Weiskopf, who shot 68.

He bolted out quickly, with three consecutive birdies, starting on the second hole.

He put an eight-iron shot 18 inches from the flag on the second hole, missed the green but chipped in on the third and rolled in a 12-foot putt on No. 4.

MISSED GREENS

That gave him a two-stroke lead over Boros, but it dwindled to one when he took consecutive bogeys on the seventh and eighth holes, missing the green each time.

Palmer birdied from 10 feet on the ninth to make the margin two again.

He birdied the 12th hole from 15 feet but bogeyed the 14th when he missed the green and failed on a five-foot putt.

Boros birdied the 14th moments later and they were tied again.

Palmer pulled away again with a 10-foot putt for a birdie four on the 15th hole. But Boros birdied it right behind him, sending it down to the final few holes and the key birdie on the 17th that pushed Palmer's all-time money figure to $1,340,271.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg shot a final-round 70 for a 286 total and a $200 share of the prize money.

Clearwater Case

Loffmark Prevails

The hospital board at Clearwater, B.C., has agreed to the construction of a diagnostic and treatment centre instead of an in-patient hospital, Health Minister Ralph Loffmark said Monday.

Loffmark, who had favored the diagnostic centre, said in an interview he had recently received a letter of request for the centre from the board. He said an architect has been appointed and land purchase is awaiting approval from his department.

Clearwater is about 60 miles north of Kamloops.

Loffmark made the announcement in the wake of the resignation at the weekend of hospital board member Alan Forsyth, who said he was quitting because of "a despicable display of arrogance" by the minister and all the Social Credit party members except Oak Bay's Dr. Scott Wallace.

Forsyth, who is the government's appointee on the board, said there has been a "running battle" staged by the Social Credit party to acquire the tape on which Loffmark's voice is said to be recorded threatening to investigate a doctor's credentials.

Forsyth would not name the "emissary" who he said had been sent to get the tape.

Loffmark said Monday he had not asked for the tape back.

He said that although Forsyth was a government appointee on the board, he did not know him. Four possible names had been submitted to him for appointment to the board, and he had written to the men named and asked if they would serve.

Forsyth had agreed and been appointed by order in council. Another turned out to be a member of the board already, one had declined, and the fourth had never replied to the letter, Loffmark said.

Loffmark said he had always insisted that Clearwater should have a diagnostic and treatment centre rather than a hospital and was acting upon the advice of the B.C. Medical Association and the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service in his stand against small hospitals.

A bylaw had also been passed in Clearwater to allow for the building of a $200,000 facility there, but during the past few months the hospital board had made every effort to change those plans and build a hospital.

He said any delay in building had been caused by the board and not by him, and that he would make every effort to see that building proceeds rapidly now that a start has been made.

Forsyth said he was resigning and turning in his Social Credit party membership card because he had lost faith in the minister and the party; other than Wallace who voted against the minister over the tape issue.

Junk Meats Not Hidden In Packages—Retailer

By NANCY BROWN

Responsible food stores do not hide fat and junk meat in high-priced packages, the House agriculture committee was told Monday by Representatives of the Retail Council of Canada.

A. J. McKichan, council president, and George Hull, representing Woodward's Stores, refuted charges made before the same committee last week by consumers representative Evelyn Caldwell.

They said that they would welcome inspection at the retail level if it were necessary.

Reason for pre-packaging of meat, said Hull, was not to hide the contents. It was done for economic reasons.

Labor costs, he said were at least eight cents a minute, and could run as high as 11 cents a minute, so that power cutting on an assembly line was obviously a factor in keeping prices low.

He said that if store customers didn't see the size or type of cut they wanted they could ask for and get what they did want.

Committee member Eileen Dailly asked about differing prices in various branches of one food chain.

McKichan said differences were the result of competition. Stores were constantly trying to increase the volume of sales by lowering prices, and store managers had authority to compete with other stores in the neighborhood.

Mrs. Dailly suggested such a policy could be against the interest of the consumer with only one store in the neighborhood, but McKichan said any other policy would result in higher prices.

The food companies he said, operated under the strictest discipline of competition. The Canadian retail grocers net profit after taxes has, it is believed, averaged out around 1 cent per sales dollar.

"Even if the whole net profit of the Canadian grocery trade were apportioned among every citizen of Canada, each of them would receive something of the order of 10 to 11 cents per week," said McKichan.

Fatal Capsizing Inquest Set

An inquest will open Wednesday evening into a troller-capsize Saturday morning off Beechey Head which took the lives of two Greater Victoria residents.

Announcement of the probe was made Monday by district Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre who said it will open at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Chaplin's chapel to take preliminary evidence and then adjourn to an unspecified date.

John Parris, 49, of 592 Island, Oak Bay, and Mrs. Marjorie Wick, 41, of 2545 Selwyn, Saanich, died after the 11-ton, 40-foot troller Janola capsized in rough seas.

Walter Wick, 41, owner of the vessel, and Parris' wife Helen were saved in a heroic rescue effort by Becher Bay Marina owner Percy Brown, 55, who tackled the job in a 12-foot outboard motorboat.

Wick was discharged Saturday from St. Joseph's Hospital after treatment for shock and exposure while Mrs. Parris left the same hospital Sunday.

Meanwhile, a Pacific Rescue Centre spokesman said one of the vessels that went to the scene to try and help was not a Canadian Coast Guard cutter, as Brown had thought it was, but a Victoria pilot boat.

Laid-Off Men To Work

B.C. Forest Products Ltd. announced Monday that 75 of its employees laid off last October at its Victoria plywood division will be recalled to work.

The employees will work on a third shift to go into operation at the plant March 29, division manager Walter Pumfrey said. He added recall notices will be sent out shortly.

Pumfrey said BCFP is adding the third shift because of an anticipated upward swing in the plywood market. Poor weather in the east, lower mortgage rates and the general state of the U.S. economy lead the company to think "things have to get better," he said.

In October about 115 regular, 15 semi-regular, and 35 casual employees were laid off when plywood and veneer production were curtailed.

Of these, 40 regular employees have since been recalled at veneer operations in Victoria and Youbou.

Pumfrey said it was hoped the 15 semi-regular employees would also be recalled soon.

This Special Hemorrhoid Remedy Contains A Unique Healing Substance That Relieves Pain As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "Itching Piles." It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day and especially aggravating at night.

If you want satisfactory relief—here's good news. A renowned research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning itch and pain. In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions.

All this was accomplished by a healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—developed by a world-renowned research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H. IN THE LEGISLATURE

All-Terrain Bill Gets Off Ground

Use of snowmobiles and other all-terrain vehicles to harass, chase or kill any wildlife is to be prohibited under legislation introduced Monday.

Bill No. 66, the All-Terrain Vehicles Act, prohibits the operation of such vehicles without a certificate of registration and says no one under 16 may be registered. Rental dealers must also hold a certificate indicating they carry public liability insurance for their vehicles.

Rules for operation of all-terrain vehicles — defined by Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan in an interview outside the House as mainly snowmobiles, but also those operating on balloon tires, and hovercraft — include a ban on careless, reckless or negligent driving.

All accidents involving death or injury or damage of more than $200 must be reported. The superintendent of motor vehicles may suspend the licence of all-terrain vehicle drivers for infractions.

Kiernan also introduced a promised amendment to the Wildlife Act which would allow the government to give added protection to endangered species. The same bill also would establish a licence permitting sportmen to carry guns for purposes other than hunting.

The minister said later the proposed recreational shooting licence would apply to trap shooters and others. No fee has been established yet, he added, but it might amount to as little as $2 for five years.

Bill Aims to Extend RCMP Jurisdiction

Legislation extending the jurisdiction of RCMP, so they can be sent immediately to trouble spots anywhere in the province, was introduced in the Legislature Monday.

Proposed amendment to the Police and Prisons Regulation Act, introduced by Attorney-General Leslie Peterson, would give RCMP officers jurisdiction as police officers throughout the province.

The powers in the bill would allow the attorney-general to send police assistance to any municipality or authorize police chiefs to request such assistance, also allowing other police forces to assist the RCMP at the request of the commanding officer of the force.

The legislation would also allow the Mounties to perform their duties throughout the province but would require them to advise local police of their presence as soon as possible.

Amway

LAUNDRY COMPOUND
Amway

NO PHOSPHATE
LAUNDRY COMPOUND

Launder and clean the LIMITED PHOSPHATE or the NO PHOSPHATE way.

Why two new Amway laundry detergents? Because there is current concern that phosphate, when not removed by sewage treatment may stimulate algae growth in our lakes and streams. So Amway now offers you a choice of two laundry compounds for best laundering results with minimum phosphate use.

Amway S-A-8 Limited Phosphate, the great concentrated laundry compound that gets clothing cleanest . . . that helps make wash-and-wear look like new . . . that has the muscle to clean in hard water, in cool water . . . that does the best job for you, under any conditions. And yet, for the second time, Amway has reduced the phosphorus content (now only 8.7% maximum) without sacrificing its cleaning power. Just 4 grams of phosphorus per washload. If you have a good septic tank system . . . or if your sewage system has phosphate removal equipment, you'll probably use S-A-8 Limited Phosphate for all laundry. Otherwise you may choose it for special jobs, such as heavily soiled clothes, permanent-press, some synthetics, or for washing in hard or cool water.

Amway S-A-8 No Phosphate is the laundry compound that puts absolutely no phosphate down the drain. We believe, based on extensive research and testing, that it is the best "no phosphate" laundry product on the market today . . . bar none! Does an excellent job on cottons, and on general laundry when not too heavily soiled, and when used with good, hot, reasonably soft water. Amway S-A-8 No Phosphate performs when other no phosphate detergents fail. Superior to soap for automatic machines . . . forms no soap curd to settle in fabrics or collect in drains. And your Independent Distributor of Amway products will be glad to prove it to you, by actual demonstration. So, wherever phosphate in sewage is considered a problem, you can use Amway S-A-8 No Phosphate with confidence.

Both kinds of S-A-8 contain non-ionic bio-degradable surfactant ingredients for easy breakdown in septic tanks or sewage systems. Both kinds of S-A-8 are high-density products so you use only a fraction of a cup per washload for real economy. Both kinds of S-A-8 are specially formulated to be easily rinsed away, leaving no harsh residues. Both kinds of S-A-8, like all Amway products, carry Amway's famous unconditional guarantee of satisfaction or your money back.

Amway's other "No Phosphate" and "Low Phosphate" products . . . there are enough of them to clean everything in and around your home. Seven with no phosphate whatsoever . . . L.O.C. "regular" and "high suds" for general cleaning, walls, floors, windows, etc. . . . Dish Drops for dishes, "drifab" to make clothes water-resistant, Fabric Softener and Anti-Soil as laundry additives, and Car Wash for the cleanest car on the block. Three "super muscle" cleaners with negligible (less than 1½%) phosphorus content . . . Industroclean for the toughest cleaning jobs like washing kitchen fans . . . Redu to bleach out iron-stain yellowing . . . and Zoom to spray away grease and grime from walls, woodwork, etc. And three special purpose laundry products (Tri-Zyme stain remover; Smashing White pre-soak; and Dry Bleach) all have phosphorus content limited to not over 8.7%. They're concentrated, with low units of phosphate per washload. You use less for every job . . . put less phosphate down the drain.

Lemieux Plans Rose Appeal

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal lawyer Robert Lemieux is expected to enter an appeal this week on behalf of Paul Rose, convicted Saturday of non-capital murder in the death of Pierre Laporte.

Lemieux said in a weekend interview he would file a writ with the Quebec Court of Appeal contending that the 27-year-old former school teacher was not given adequate opportunity to defend himself during a seven-week trial.

"This case is a lawyer's dream," he said Saturday, moments after Rose had been sentenced to life imprisonment for the strangulation of the former Quebec labor minister who was kidnapped Oct. 10 and found dead a week later.

The lawyer outlined the basis for the proposed appeal after discussions with Rose. He said a writ could be presented today.

Rose's conviction came minutes after court convened at 10 a.m. Saturday morning. The 12-man jury had deliberated only 25 minutes Friday before being excused because of fatigue. The trail began Jan. 25.

The life sentence, mandatory on conviction of non-capital murder, was handed down quickly and an additional one-month sentence for contempt of court was added by Mr. Justice Marcel Nichols.

Rose thanked the jury for what he called "their long hours of deliberation" and left the court with a shout of "Long live free Quebec, long live the Quebec people, we shall overcome."

Rose asked at one point during his trial that Lemieux act as his counsel, but the request was denied because the lawyer was in jail. A charge of seditious conspiracy against the lawyer was quashed but he still faces a charge of membership in the outlawed Front de Liberation du Quebec and is free on bail.

Lemieux acted as the FLQ negotiator with the government in an attempt to set up mechanisms for the release of James Cross, British trade commissioner kidnapped from his home Oct. 5, and Laporte, kidnapped five days later.

Cross was released Dec. 4 after his abductors were given safe passage to Cuba.

Rose, who elected to defend himself after his request for Lemieux was denied, was ejected several times during the trial for shouting slogans, using abusive language and insulting the judge.

His trial proceeded after a lawyer was named to observe the trial in the accused's absence to ensure that his rights were not disregarded.

Lemieux said Mr. Justice Nichols had no right to bar Rose for his actions. The accused's slogan-shouting and comments were basis only for a contempt citation, he said, and legal ejection was possible only if Rose made it impossible for the trial to proceed.

He also charged that the judge's stipulation that Rose apologize and promise to behave if he wanted to return to court was illegal and groundless reason for continuing the accused's expulsion.

Opposition Hits Education Bill

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislature Reporter

The NDP and Liberal member in the Legislature Monday voted against approval in principle of changes in the Public School Act which the opposition claims will centralize the power in education in the hands of a few bureaucrats.

Education Minister Donald Brothers, closing the debate before the House voted 34 to 15 in favor of second reading for the bill, attacked the opposition for using the term "mandarins" in relation to the civil service.

The position of both opposition parties, the minister argued, amounted to a "scurrilous" general attack on the civil service.

Powers Passed

Brothers added the B.C. Teachers Federation had applauded the reorganization proposed in the bill for the education department. And he defended the move to allow teachers to opt out of the BCTF as being requested by "hundreds" of teachers he spoke to during his travels around the province.

Allan Williams (L—West Vancouver-Howe Sound) said the bill enables all the powers of the minister to be passed on to the officials of the education department. He added: "Bear in mind the civil service wrote this bill, not the minister.

"This is a civil service bill, a bill for the bureaucracy."

Williams said he regretted the tendency to pass on powers to the bureaucrats who don't lightly relinquish what is placed in their hands.

Two Organizations

Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby—Edmonds) said the bill makes the minister "the ultimate bureaucrat — the czar in education in this province." He added: "I think it's reprehensible that a group (the cabinet acting as council of public instruction) set up in secrecy can determine the future of eduation in a closed forum with no debate."

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, himself a former teacher, said the profession should set up two organizations — one with a voluntary membership to deal with economic matters and a separate professional organization such as the medical and legal professions enjoy.

He was commenting on a controversial section of the bill which would end compulsory membership in the BCTF as a condition of employment for teachers.

Dr. Scott Wallace (SC—Oak Bay) said the profession has shown to his satisfaction teachers "deserve the right, have the integrity and the motivation" to licence members of their own profession just as doctors do. He said he supported a proposed professional organization with compulsory membership to deal with licensing and ethical standards.

The Socred backbencher said the BCTF could continue with voluntary membership requirements to take care of matters of "economic self-interest" for teachers.

Action Punitive

Liberal leader Patrick McGeer said if the bill had proposed a division of responsibility for teacher organizations along the lines now followed in other professions his party might have been able to support it.

But since it didn't, he said, no other interpretation could be placed upon the government's action than that of the teachers who claim it was punitive.

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett said it was a mistake for Brothers to try to revitalize his own image by absorbing more power. He said the minister with this bill was becoming "the cyclops of education."

"This bill is an attack on the teachers and that the teachers will have to live with," Barrett said. "But it is also an attack on the whole educational system and that is something our children will have to live with. I think state education is best but this bill centralizes power into the hands of the minister so that the system is losing the flexibility it needs."

Hoist Call

Eileen Dailly (NDP—Burnaby-North) asked the government to hoist the bill for another year's consideration because it suggested a dangerous precedent of centralization of authority under the minister.

The essence of the bill, Mrs. Dailly said, was to change the minister's role from that of a political figure to one of a professional educator. She added: "We consider this highly dangerous for the educational procedures in the province."

The bill gave the minister the right to control educational programs as well as expenditures and the NDP member said would vest in him more power than is given to any other minister.

Mrs. Dailly said removal of the automatic members in the BCTF would force the profession to spend more time and money in the recruitment of new members, rather than concentrating on improvement of teachers' status and training.

Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) accused the government of using the bill to punish teachers for past political actions in threatening to strike for higher pensions and asking more financial support for education.

Robert Strachan (NDP—saying the government "doesn't like to see any force out there in society with power, with strength, and with a voice. The crime of teachers, if there is one, is that they have occasionally been critical of government policy in education."

Czar Power Under Fire

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark has the power of a czar over the life savings of sick old people, Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) told the Legislature Monday.

The minister, he said, has the power to decide whether an old person qualifies for care in hospital under the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service at $1 a day, or if he should go into a private hospital and pay $400 or $500 a month for care.

He made his remarks during debate of a bill which would transfer private hospitals, kindergartens and other community care facilities from the rehabilitation and social improvement department to the health department.

There are, he said, 19 private hospitals licensed in B.C., and he understands no more such licences are to be granted.

Those already established, he said, have been awarded the "tremendous privilege of the right to make money out of human illness and sickness."

He said he knew of an old couple, both of them in private hospitals, paying $400 a month, whose entire life savings of $26,000 have gone down the drain for care.

"They are still alive and what little they have left is being drained off, and they are leaving nothing to their families," said Macdonald.

Loffmark said a panel of physicians, not he, decides which patients qualify for hospital care.

Dennis Cocke (NDP — New Westminster) said the bill would do nothing to provide better inspection of existing hospitals, nor does it provide for more to be built to take care of chronically sick old people.

The bill, said Opposition Leader Dave Barrett, was politically inspired and had been hastily prepared.

He said it had been interpreted by some as a sign that the government is taking a first halting step toward provision of more chronic-care hospitals and rest homes. This was not true — the bill simply transferred responsibility from one department to another.

Dr. Scott Wallace (SC—Oak Bay) said the bill did define various levels of care, which was hopefully a move in the right direction.

"The biggest waste of money anybody can imagine arises from the fact that we are providing levels of care in very expensive facilities that could be provided in much simpler surroundings with much less expensive staff and facilities," said Wallace.

By bringing all levels of hospital care under one administration, it would be possible to avoid this.

There has been, said Wallace, "a complete negation of social justice with certain patients looked after by the state, and at other levels of illness totally neglected."

The government should initiate a wider scope of facilities, so the patient using community care facilities is treated on a par with acute and extended-care patients.

The bill received approval in principal, and moved on to the committee stage.

We give you better reasons to buy a new car than anybody else.

A modest price doesn't have to mean a modest car. In Skylark's case it doesn't. Here are the reasons why. Reasons you can believe in.

Trued tires.
Buick builds a better car from the road up. So every tire on every Skylark is trued for roundness. The result, an even smoother Buick ride. Only Buick takes that kind of care.

Semi-closed cooling system.
Skylark is the only car in its class that has a cooling system that should never overheat.

Traditional Buick quality.
Skylark's a Buick, so it gives you the kind of quality Buicks are famous for. Quality you can't see, like, inner-fender construction, flush-and-dry rocker panels and a paint finish that goes six coats deep to help resist rust. GM's complete safety package that includes a rugged steel beam in every door and a steel barrier between rear seat passengers and trunk cargo. Order power disc brakes and a unique proportioning valve helps assure quick, smooth, straight-line stops.

Rezoning Bylaw Upheld

Appeal Succeeds For Oak Bay

An appeal by Oak Bay municipality against the quashing of one of its rezoning bylaws by the B.C. Supreme Court last August has been upheld by the B.C. Court of Appeal.

In a written judgment Friday, Mr. Justice C. W. Tysoe said the municipality was acting "in good faith and in the interest generally of the area" last June when it rezoned a lot on Windsor near Newport from service station use to retail use.

Texaco Canada Ltd., which owns the property, had appealed to the B.C. Supreme Court to overturn the rezoning bylaw, which the court did in August. It was the municipality's appeal against the Supreme Court decision that was allowed last week.

Tysoe, who wrote the decision on behalf of himself, Mr. Justice E. B. Bull and Mr. Justice M. M. McFarlane, dealt in his judgment with each of the points that had been raised by Mr. Justice J. F. Gregory in the earlier decision.

Offended Zoning

In overturning the bylaw, Gregory had said the public hearing held before it was passed was "little less than a farce and waste of time" as Mayor Frances Elford, who cast the deciding vote, had her mind made up before the hearing.

Gregory had also written that the bylaw offended the zoning section of the Municipal Act in that "the rezoning was neither initiated nor supported by the owner or occupant of any neighboring property" and that it was directed exclusively at one property owner "at very considerable expense to it."

In allowing the appeal, Tysoe pointed out that the mayor had made her comments about her mind being made up in reply to a request for adjournment of the planned public hearing. The request had been made because lawyer Hugh Henderson would not be present at the scheduled time.

"Undoubtedly she knew that Mr. Henderson was a member of a large law firm which contained more than one competent counsel who could represent the respondent at the hearing and so his, Mr. Henderson's, presence was hardly necessary," the judgment said.

"As a matter of fact, it was Mr. (Lloyd) McKenzie and not Mr. Henderson who appeared for the respondent at the adjournment hearing."

Intent Apparent

Tysoe wrote that Texaco had been aware that council had the intention of keeping the Windsor-Newport area free of service stations. This intention had been made apparent in November, 1968, when a bylaw was passed excluding service stations from retail zones.

A lot next to that zoned for garage used was zoned for retail use and Texaco had hoped to use both of them for a development.

It was council "that conceived the idea of the bylaw and initiated it, as it was conceded it had the power to do, and the members must have held the opinion that it would be in the best interests of the community to pass and adopt it," Tysoe wrote.

Rejects Conclusion

The appeal court decision also rejected Gregory's conclusion that the public hearing was little less than a farce by writing:

"The plain fact is that the respondent had not succeeded in persuading anyone that the bylaw should not be adopted."

Tysoe cited other decisions in which bylaws relating only to specific properties had been upheld.

Mayor Elford said she was "quite pleased" the decision had been reversed in the municipality's favor and said the case would assist other municipalities.

Quite Normal

"It would have been exceedingly difficult for municipalities anywhere to initiate a rezoning," she said. "This decision indicates it is quite normal."

The mayor also said she hoped the decision would mean that the property could now be developed "so the municipality can rid itself of what is undoubtedly an eyesore."

The service station had not been used since 1947 and the building on the lot had not been used since 1967.

D. M. Gordon, Oak Bay municipal solicitor, had represented the municipality in the appeal. McKenzie and Henderson had represented Texaco. The appeal was heard Feb. 10 in the Victoria Law Courts.

For a price—up to $150—a place is available in a hierarchy of supporters of Victorian Days, being arranged by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce from May 24 to 29.

Ranks for sale range from page or damsel for $5 (two names for $7.50), to captain or lady-in-waiting at $100 each or $150 for two.

In return for the donation, scrolls denoting the various ranks are available, which will be mounted for an additional $5. All money will go to the Victorian Days celebrations.

Violence Emerging In Hospital Strike

Strikers at Sandringham Private Hospital claimed Monday that two pickets were knocked down by a car in the hospital parking area at the weekend.

At the same time, a hospital official said a nurse and two nursing aides were blocked when leaving and entering the building and that one of the women was grabbed by the arm by a picket.

Both sides have said they are considering laying charges.

Adding to the tense scene which has suddenly developed in the 5½-month-old strike of 28 women members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, is the fact guard dogs have been posted with private patrolmen.

Administrator Mrs. Margaret Reynolds said Island Security Patrol was engaged to protect people entering and leaving the hospital at 1650 Fort.

Men from various other unions were added to the picket line nine days ago on a 24-hour-a-day basis to halt fuel oil delivery which was being made late at night. The company delivering the oil has since said it would stop.

A union spokesman said two male pickets from the laborers' union were knocked down and "shaken up" by a car. He said one was using a camera at the time, which he said was damaged.

"The trouble with violence on a picket line," the union spokesman said, "is that once it starts, it's awfully hard to stop."

The strikers are seeking a first contract.

No One Speaks for Tower

Demolition Starts Today

An old tower on the Gorge Road Hospital site was to be demolished this morning.

Hospital officials said Monday an appeal Saturday to save the tower, which was part of an historic home demolished earlier this year brought no response from the public.

"We didn't get one call; nothing whatsoever," Mrs. C. C. Warren, chairman of the Gorge Road Hospital Board told the Colonist.

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock said in an interview "it proved to be impossible to save the tower."

To restore the structure, he said, would have cost at least $20,000.

"There was just no way; the hospital must be functional and there was no virtue in saving the tower," Haddock said.

Demolition of the structure was to start at 8 a.m.

James Nesbitt, member of the Historical Sites Board of Canada, said last week the tower was "historically important."

He suggested the tower be left standing as an historical feature. Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis also said the tower should be saved if possible, but he wanted to see "an expression of broad public opinion" on the matter.

Nesbitt said the tower was built in the mid-1880s as part of Ashnola, the Northing Snowden house, Mrs. Snowden was the fifth daughter of Robert Dunsmuir of Craigdarroch Castle.

The name was changed to Sissinghurst after being purchased by Mr. and Mrs. E. Crow-Baker who lived in it until about 20 years ago when it became the first wing of the Gorge Road Hospital. Once new patient quarters were built, the house was used for office space. The tower was only ornamental.

Pedestrian Injured

Wyman Hammers, 74, of 2209 Oak Bay, was reported in fair condition late Monday at St. Joseph's Hospital after a traffic accident at Douglas and Courtney shortly after 2 p.m. Victoria police said Hammers was walking across a street when he was hit by a car driven by John Phillips, 175 Battleford, and suffered a fractured right leg and chest injuries.

Saanich Ignores Plea

Library Grant Whittled

Saanich council Monday night whittled at the municipality's contribution to the Greater Victoria Public Library despite a plea from Mayor Hugh Curtis to yield all the money the institution is seeking.

Instead of $5.19 per capita, which is what the library board asked for, there will be a contribution of $4.89 from Saanich residents, council decided.

The reception given the library board budget in Saanich contrasted with that of Esquimalt, where municipal council granted $5.19 despite a plea from Mayor Art Young that it would only lead to a "disastrous tax increase."

If Saanich had granted the library $5.19 per capita, the municipality's contribution would have been $305,214, an increase of $61,639 over 1970. Saanich's per capita contribution last year was $4.

Ald. Edith Gunning, Saanich's representative on library board, made a plea for the $5.19 contribution, saying that the library has been reorganized and better things can be expected in the future.

Ald. Gunning said the library in its present state was "very shabby" and the current budget was an attempt to bring it "halfway up to date."

However, after Ald. Alan Newberry pointed out that the library had not spent a provincial grant of $44,000 at the end of last year, the majority of council members felt that the municipal share of the 1971 budget should be calculated on a figure from which the B.C. contribution had been subtracted.

That's how council arrived at $4.89, a figure that was opposed by the mayor and Gunning, Ald. Frank Waring and Ald. Ed Lum. The five other council members supported the contribution.

When the vote was called in Esquimalt, three were in favor, and three opposed, but one abstention was counted as an affirmative vote.

Farming Project Puzzles Council

Several members of Saanich council were perplexed Monday night by a Victoria Youth Council proposal that would involve spending $25,000 to farm three acres of fertile, municipally-owned farmland in one year.

The youth council idea is to lease a patch called Quick's Farm and cultivate it to provide food and jobs for transient youth. The $25,000, explained a VYC spokesman, would be a federal contribution to get the farm started and pay wages.

The farm would be only 15 minutes from downtown Victoria, said a letter from the youth council. In addition, it was arable and water was nearby. VYC hoped to lease it from the municipality for $1 a year for three years.

High-Yield

After hearing that the current lease expires at the end of this month, council decided to advertise its intention to lease the site despite Ald. Ed Lum's suggestion that $25,000 for VYC wages was "quite high."

"This is high-yield land and I think three men should be able to handle an acreage of that size for the summer," added Lum.

The youth council spokesman retorted that it was intended to have the farm in year-round production but Mayor Hugh Curtis pointed out that the land floods during the winter and at that time only yields ducks.

Choir Grant

In other business, council:

● Decided to grant $500 to a choir from Claremont high school to enable 40 of its 60 songsters to go to England this summer. Ald. Leslie Passmore suggested that the 20 who can't go overseas instead be given a trip on the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Dayliner, stopping to sing at Duncan and Nanaimo, but council decided that $100 should not be set aside for that.

● Turned over to its planning committee a request from the Royal Oak Motel represented by Joseph Isherwood, to rezone five of the firm's 58 acres from motel use to general commercial. Among other things, it would allow the firm to increase the size of its signs from a total of 64 square feet to 128 square feet. Ald Foster Isherwood vacated his seat for the duration of the discussion.

● Decided to call a public hearing into a proposal for a 72-unit row housing project at 3987 Gordon Head Road.

Can Dockyard Marriage Survive 71 Pact?

By DON COLLINS

The marriage is on the rocks.

And in this case, while both partners are going to investigate the possibility of divorce, there is some doubt that the ties can be broken.

That's the way things shape up in the aftermath of a contract settlement that came Sunday just in time to avoid a strike Monday by 1,200 tradesmen at HMC Dockyard in Esquimalt.

It also ended a strike that began a week before for 1,700 federal tradesmen at the Halifax dockyard.

And therein lies the trouble.

The Halifax workers were unhappy with a deal that increases the pay lead held over them by their West Coast counterparts and they didn't want to go back to work. But the over-all vote on both coasts counts and the Esquimalt workers voted so strongly in favor of the agreement Sunday that it was accepted by a slim margin, 1,073 to 1,039.

Bernard Dixon, secretary of the Halifax Dockyard Trades and Labor Council, said the Halifax men had been "stabbed in the back" by those in Esquimalt.

His people now would consider regional certification.

Tom Graham, president of the trades council in the Esquimalt yard, said separate bargaining in the future would no doubt be favored by the West Coast workers as well, but he felt this might be prevented by terms of the federal Public Service Staff Relations Act.

There was no doubt, however, that the question would be explored by the Esquimalt tradesmen, Graham said.

This was the first time that the smaller Esquimalt group had ever swung a vote. In former years, when their membership was about 700, they had been at the mercy of the Halifax decision-makers.

The Esquimalt tradesmen, because of their bigger pay, say they have been getting the "heavy end of the stick" in the past.

The idea is that to bring the light end up — in this case Halifax — the heavy end has had to sink a little. As a result, those in Esquimalt didn't do quite as well this time around as they had expected.

This time there was supposed to be a firm stand on the question of cutting the pay gap between east and west.

Tradesmen in Esquimalt were earning $4.16 an hour, while those in Halifax got $3.31. The government offer that brought a vote in favor of a strike — this time the scale was tipped by Halifax — would have increased the disparity from 85 cents to $1.15 an hour.

The offer accepted Sunday still meant the gap was widening, but only to $1.05. The Esquimalt tradesmen get 94 cents, those in Halifax, 74 cents.

Graham and others say the government seems serious about fighting the problem of regional disparity, but that it is something which must be tackled on a much grander scale.

"They are not going to let a little group like us set the ground rules," Graham said.

He said the local vote had been strongly in favor of the last offer because it had become obvious nothing more could be done this time about removing disparity.

"You eventually get to the point when you realize you have done all that you can do," he said.

The Esquimalt vote for the package was 743-47, while it was opposed in Halifax 992-330.

Graham points out that those in Esquimalt had voted earlier about 63 per cent against striking, but had been willing to abide by the strong strike vote registered by Halifax.

Counsellors, Therapists Share Tonight

A group of counsellors and psychotherapists has arranged a series of lectures and discussions, the first of which will be held tonight, for professionals and any other person interested in the topics.

In addition to sharing views on a wide range of topics, the group is also considering establishing an Institute of Counselling and Psychotherapy here.

"We are aiming for as diverse a presentation as possible," said a spokesman for the organizers. "We do not claim, however, that this will be entirely representative of everyone nor do we claim that all professional and non-professional groups interested will be represented."

UVic Faculty

Tonight's lecture, which will start at 8 p.m. in the theatre of the Victoria Mental Health Centre, 2328 Trent Street, will be given by Dr. R. V. Peavy of the University of Victoria's education faculty.

He will talk about small groups.

This will be followed by three 15-minute talks: Mrs. Norman Friedmann, director of nursing at Eric Martin Institute; L. A. Hundleby, executive director of Family Life, and Rev. Franck Patterson, on pastoral counselling.

March Date

The March 23 lecture will be given by Prof. G. A. Milton, chairman of UVic's psychology department. He will be followed by Dr. Philip Ney, a local phsychiatrist who is also associate professor of psychiatry in the University of B.C.'s faculty of medicine, Dr. Pierre d'Estrube, also a local psychiatrist, and Riley Hern of the Family and Children's Service.

The March 30 lecture will be given by Dr. Charles Gregory, executive director of the Pacific Centre for Human Development. The 15-minute talks will be given by Dr. Loren Acker, a UVic psychologist, Dr. H. F. Tryk of EMI's psychology department and Dr. Larry Axmaker, a psychologist with Greater Victoria school board.

The spokesman for the organizers said the series is open to anyone interested in psychotheraphy and counselling.

Lovelier You

Wash And Shine

By MARY SUE MILLER

A teenager asks: Why is my hair so dull looking when my skin is all too shiny? I'd like it better the other way around. What would give my hair some gloss?

The answer: Excess oil is at the base of both problems. Overages of oil put a shine on the skin's surface but, in penetrating through the hair's density, leave behind a dull, wilted effect. Like too much oil on salad greens.

The main step in controlling oily scalp and locks is frequent shampooing — at least twice weekly — with medicated or pH suds. In an emergency, new instant-dry shampoo spray-ons are helpful. A visit to a dermatologist comes highly recommended in the event that blemishes develop on the scalp or the face during a severe bout of oiliness.

In addition to oil, harsh treatment dims gloss — careless waving, coloring and grooming, for instance. Any kind of improper care roughens up the outer layer of each individual strand, a layer that is composed of microscopic scales. To sparkle, those scales must lie smooth in an overlapping formation. So beware, be gentle with your hair.

Lastly, your hair, like all facets of beauty, is affected by your general health and the healthfulness of your living patterns. A balanced diet, sufficient sleep, plenty of exercise and fresh air, a nice mix of work and fun are what make Jill bright and attractive.

Double Ceremony Soon

Calendar Feeling Centennial Fever

Dorothy Wrotnowski

As fine weather approaches (or should do), more centennial events get marked on the calendar.

A tree-planting ceremony on the grounds of the old Craigflower schoolhouse is planned by the Victoria Post No. 3, Native Daughters of British Columbia, Saturday, April 3 at 3 p.m.

This will be a double ceremony — marking the 100th anniversary of B.C. entering Confederation and the 50th anniversary of the founding of Post No. 3.

Navy League Chapter of IODE is holding a tea in the Maritime Museum Saturday from 2 to 4 p.m. There will also be a tour of the museum.

This chapter, formed in 1912, has always maintained an interest in naval affairs.

It was first named Trafalgar Chapter, but, as there was already a chapter by this name in the east, it was changed to Navy League.

During the Second World War the chapter was closely associated with the ship Beacon Hill in supplying comforts for the sailors and entertaining them when ashore. After the war a citation was received from the defence department thanking the chapter for the work it had done for the navy.

Latterly its efforts have been transferred to the Rainbow Sea Cadets. Every year, close to Trafalgar Day a bursary is given to an outstanding sea cadet to help further his education. These bursaries have been presented for the past 15 years.

The ladies section of Colwood Golf and Country Club will hold the annual spring opening March 25. Lunch at 12:30 p.m. will be preceded by nine holes of Monkey Golf.

A sapphire mink fur collar will be the first door prize to be given at the musical review and fashion show being put on by the auxiliary to the Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded.

The show, in the Newcombe Auditorium, is Wednesday at 8 p.m.

The musical review will have singing, dancing and comedy numbers, all contributed by Victoria artists. Art Budd will do the comedy and Reg Stone will play the organ.

Fashions will be from Roma's. Tickets, $2, can be obtained from the Winnifred Clark Centre, 1450 Elford Street, 385-0224, or at the door.

It will be a golden wedding day Saturday for Mr. and Mrs. William Boutell of 948 Maddison Avenue. They have issued invitations to a reception on that day at the home of Boutell's brother, Fred Boutell at 470 Oliver.

The Boutells were married in Winnipeg and Boutell worked for the Canadian National Railway for 47 years, until his retirement in 1947, when the couple came to live in Victoria.

Their three sons, Clyde and William Jr. of Winnipeg and Gordon of Montreal, and daughter, Mrs. Terry Silverthorn (Marguerite), are expected to be here to help their parents celebrate.

Crocs Enjoy Sexiest Life

LONDON (DP) — Crocodiles are the sexiest creatures on earth, says London's Institute of Psychiatry. Rameses, a two-year-old croc, had a miniature set of goalposts immersed in his tank with an electrical stimulus beamed between them. After "wearing himself out" swimming across the bean, Dr. Bert Campbell said: "He's smashed the old belief that lower-order creatures are not sexually conditioned."

Tricia to Wed Earlier

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla, (UPI) — Tricia Nixon, exercising "the bride's prerogative," has moved the date of her marriage to Harvard law student Edward Finch Cox up one week to June 5, it was learned Monday.

The blonde, 25-year-old daughter of the president had planned a White House wedding for June 12, but changed the date after spending the weekend in New York with Cox and his socialite family.

President and Mrs. Nixon will make the formal announcement either Tuesday afternoon or evening, to be followed by a joint celebration of the First Lady's 59th birthday and the engagement at an "Irish evening at the White House" program Tuesday evening.

Cox's parents, Col. and Mrs. Howard Ellis Cox, will stand with the Nixons in the receiving line. Irish Prime Minister John Lynch and Mrs. Lynch will be the guests of honor.

Though Tricia had kept her parents sworn to secrecy until Tuesday, the president was asked on NBC's Today show Monday if her engagement announcement would be forthcoming. "I would imagine something is going to happen in the near future," he replied.

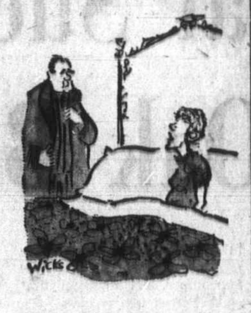
The wedding will be the eighth of a president's daughter in the White House. Lynda Bird Robb, daughter of former president Lyndon Johnson, was the latest to be married in the White House, on Dec. 9, 1967.

Julie Eisenhower, 22, sister of Tricia, is expected to be matron of honor for the ceremony. Cox, 24, is expected to name his brother, Howard Ellis Cox Jr., an army officer stationed at the Pentagon, as best man.

Cox, a former member of consumer advocate Ralph Nader's Raiders, will end his second year at Harvard law school June 4, the day before the wedding. He plans to complete the course next year and then will be eligible to serve in the army.

Cox, whose parents are in the social register, received his B.A. degree from Princeton, where he was a member of ROTC. He also studied one year in Yale's graduate school. He plans to work this summer with U.S. Attorney Whitney Seymour in New York.

There were indications that Priscilla Kidder, known as "Priscilla of Boston," the bridal wear designer, may be chosen to create Tricia's wedding gown.



'When Tricia leaves, will we need such a big house?'

'Just Garbage'

Potent Youth Potions?

Dear Ann Landers: Several months ago someone wrote to ask where to get powdered reindeer horns. The fellow had heard from boys who served in Vietnam that powdered reindeer horns were the greatest sex stimulant of all time and he wanted to try some. You told him to forget it.

Take my word for it, Ann, he won't forget it. He'll go on trying all sorts of phoney junk (some of it pretty expensive, too). He may even do himself some damage. It is an interesting fact that nearly all the fake youth-rejuvenating potions and sex perker-uppers sold in this country are advertised as "French" or "Oriental." The same garbage, when offered in France or the Orient, is called "American."

Please tell your readers that all the aphrodisiacs they see advertised in those crummy magazines are worthless, fraudlent and sometimes dangerous. Also tell your readers that they should not monkey around with hormones unless they are under the supervision of a doctor who knows what he is doing. A woman I work with used to sing soprano in the church choir. She got an overdose of hormones and now she has a beard and sings alto. — The Town Crier.

Dear Crier: Thank you for an informative letter. That last line is enough to make a person mighty careful.

Dear Ann Landers: We are a close family. My wife and I have three teenagers and two married children who have families of their own. Our home is crowded with just the regulars. Our oldest daughter has five kids under 10 years of age. She lives nearby. Our son and his wife have two youngsters and a long-haired dog. Sonny has an excellent job, his salary is larger than mine and he has a beautiful home a few hundred miles away. At every opportunity he piles in with his whole group. Neither Sonny nor his wife (both college graduates) seems to mind the confusion or turmoil. We stumble over bed rolls, dogs and kids for the duration.

It's a ball for them — camping out with a full refrigerator and built-in baby-sitters.

We love our kids but we are getting happier to see them leave each time. To add insult to injury their children are allowed to sass both parents and grandparents, stay up late, and eat what they please.

This happens for several days at a time about every six weeks, plus holidays. I think we could take it if they would at least go to a motel to sleep. What is the best way to deal with this problem?—J.K.D.

Dear J.K.D.: Sing out — loud and clear — or you'll be seeing them more and enjoying them less.

Dear Ann Landers: It's funny how often parents say to their teenagers, "Listen to Ann Landers . . ." Well, there are plenty of times when the parents ought to listen to you. For example, a few months ago you wrote, "If you don't approve of the boy your daughter is going with let her know it, but don't knock the guy too hard or she might hang on — just to prove she has a mind of her own."

I'm in just that spot — going with a guy I don't care for anymore. He has shown me in lots of ways that he isn't the person I thought he was. I'd really like to scuttle him but I'm ashamed to admit my folks were right.

If they would just get off my back I'd dump him. Help me, Ann Maybe they'll see this letter and wise up. — Stubborn Pride.

Dear S.P.: Here it is and I'll bet at least 10,000 parents will think this letter is intended for them. I hope yours are among them. Good luck.

ERMA BOMBECK on Maligning Natives:

Happily, New York Cops It for Us All

As a native Ohioan, I couldn't help but eavesdrop on a conversation, in a restaurant here recently. A customer said to the waitress, "Did I hear you say you're from Michigan?"

The waitress nodded happily.

"Me too," said the diner. "I've been in Ohio for the past seven years. How did you get here?"

The waitress blew a bubble the size of a gall bladder, snapped it and said, "I was a G.I. bride."

"What kind of crack is that?" I whispered to my husband.

"Cheer up," he grinned, "She could have been a POW."

"Is that any way to talk about your state?" I charged. "You're forgetting Ohio has produced seven United States presidents: Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Harrison, McKinley, Taft and Harding."

"And you're forgetting," he said, "Ohio has produced seven United States humorists: Thurber, Hope, Diller, Conway, Winters and the Wright Brothers."

His point was made. In traveling about the country, I have noted people can laugh at their kids, their domestic quarrels, their golf scores and their operation, but a light remark about their home state is like a declaration of war. (Once at a luncheon, I saw a Pennsylvania man bite a fork in half when someone remarked, "The second prize was two weeks in Philadelphia.")

Take any given group. Put them in a circle and within minutes they will malign all 50 states for one dumb reason or another. I have seen Florida put down for having chill temperatures during a $70 a day room in Miami . . . Georgia criticized because the baby threw up on the luggage while passing through Atlanta at 5 p.m. . . . Nebraska for having a gas station restroom without a key . . . and New Mexico for a crummy hotel room that was too depressing to commit suicide in.

Happily, there is one city that takes it for us all. New York. It's polluted, crowded, strike and crime ridden, under-serviced and overcharged. Yet, there are more comedians making a living at New York's expense than there are people producing automobiles. Why? Because they laugh at themselves first.

As my husband was telling me the other day, "Did you hear about the New York waitress from Michigan who was asked how she came to New York and she said, "I was a G.I. bride?"

Now, that's funny.

It's Canvas Now For Blonde Co-ed

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A 23-year-old co-ed at El Centro Junior College here has given up apartment dwelling to live in a tent.

Monica Lutz says it's been fun except for the time recently when snow collected on her roof and the green canvas shelter collapsed on top of her.

"I've never been so scared," she said.

The petite blond, who works as a model, moved into her 8-by-12-foot tent last August after she ran short of funds to maintain a $200-a-month apartment.

She has moved her home four times, most recently to the backyard of a house occupied by seven students.

For the first time in eigth months of tent living, Monica has electricity for her heater and lamp via an extension cord from a nearby garage.

Pregnancies 'Skyrocket'

OTTAWA (CP) — Skyrocketing pregnancies among Toronto school girls demands a statement on birth control programs by the federal government, Grice MacInnis said Monday.

She asked in the Commons when Health Minister John Munro planned to make his "promised statement on his program for birth control in Canada."

Mrs. MacInnis said a recent study showed that the number of school-girl pregnancies in metropolitan Toronto outstrips the number for all of Sweden, a country where birth control programs are numerous and easily accessible.

Munro said he had not studied "the particular figures for Toronto." But his department had already indicated willingness to support any national organizations wishing to start birth-control information programs.

The department had also indicated there were opportunities for federal-provincial cost sharing in the area of birth control studies.

Veils Off for Freedom Among Arab Women

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — For girls, the social revolution among Arab peoples seems deeper than in the West, says Lottie Farquharson.

It shows in clothes, in education and in the freedom girls are given, and Miss Farquharson says it represents a profound change in attitude among people in predominantly Moslem countries.

She speaks from the vantage point of a woman who has worked for 36 years at a girls' school in Beirut, Lebanon. Miss Farquharson went to Beirut from Scotland in 1935 with a new degree from Aberdeen University to teach mathematics and science at the Lebanon Evangelical School for Girls.

In 1935 the school had 200 students. It now has 850. They represent as many as 20 nationalities because some are the daughters of people living in Lebanon for business reasons.

Most are Lebanese, though, and Miss Farquharson says the growth reflects not only a growth in the city's population but a growth in the interest in education and in the education of girls, especially.

The 110-year-old high school has its classes in English. About seven of the staff are foreigners, and the remaining 30-odd are Lebanese.

"The development of education has opened up life very fast," she says, "and there is a tremendous liberation from social restrictions, especially for girls."

She says Lebanon is different from other countries in the Middle East because about half its population is Christian. In the Moslem tradition, women were considered inferior and until recent years were veiled and otherwise kept out of sight.

"Because of the Moslem influence they are still not keen about co-educational schools, but there has been a great increase in the freedom of women. It is like a different life altogether now.

"Many of the girls are even working before and after marriage, as they do here."

Miss Farquharson says she prefers not to comment on the effect the Arab-Israeli struggle has on the life of the school.

"We feel the tension all the time, but I'd rather not talk about the crisis."

For the past six years it has been her job to keep in touch with former students, and that is why she is visiting North America.

"Our aim is to introduce the students to Christ as a vital part of life, and we feel a great deal of our work is curtailed if we don't keep in touch with them after they leave.

"My job is almost like a pastor's work. I pay visits in connection with births and deaths. But I also pay social visits. I'm on furlough this year and I got permission to visit graduates here. There are about 200 in the United States and Canada.

Tommy Elkin age 12 decorated his room with Armstrong Place 'n Press Excelon floor tile in 90 minutes.

Place 'n Press is the easiest do-it-yourself tile ever. Gooey "guck" is gone. The adhesive is already on the back. It sticks by itself.

1. Peel off the paper. 2. Place tile in position. 3. Press down. It's as simple as that!

Cover up old tile, linoleum or most basement concrete. Goes anywhere as long as the floor is flat. It's neat and so fast people are "racing" for beautiful floors.

Place 'n Press cuts with household scissors. Use leftover tiles to cover tables, line cupboards, drawers or shelves.

Remember the name is what you do.

Teachers Turning to Specific Needs

Equality Theory Disproved?

The notion that all people are created equal has been disproved in the field of education and teachers are beginning to understand the great inequalities, the University of Victoria's sixth annual neuropsychology workshop was told Sunday.

Dr. Charles Strother, director of the child development and mental retardation centre at the University of Washington, Seattle, explained that educators are understanding individual differences to the degree that they are abandoning instruction on a group basis and instead are turning to the specific needs of each student.

He said education is a few steps behind medical practice. Years ago, medicine was based on empiricism, that is to say the individual practitioner's experience.

Medicine then veerd toward a scientific approach, a path that it still is on. No longer is a doctor's training solely what he has learned from experience with patients.

"We are just beginning to see this trend in education," said Strother. "We are coming to the stage in the learning theories of psychology that there is a practical application."

He said that in addition to educators taking a more scientific approach, they also are in the middle of a revolution.

"This is a period of great and rapid change," said Strother. "For example this afternoon (Sunday), I am competing with a teach-in on the campus of this university. This would have been unheard of three years ago."

Most sessions of the two-day workshop, sponsored by the provincial secretary's department and organized by UVic's psychology department, discussed chronic reading disabilities that occur in childhood but often clear up before adulthood.

There were two general methods of handling such difficulties: the cognitive approach, based on a model of what underlies the reading process, and the operant approach, which reinforces

Paul's Wife Claims Share in Song

LONDON (Reuter) — The American wife of Beatle Paul McCartney has become the centre of a financial battle between her husband and his song publishers over whether she helped write Paul's latest hit, Another Day.

Paul, who is currently taking steps to end the legal and financial aspects of the Beatles, claims Linda McCartney helped him write the song. He is thus claiming her share of the copyright earnings from Northern Songs, which has exclusive rights to all John Lennon and McCartney music.

But press reports here quoted Jack Gill, chairman of Northern Songs, as saying: "we will require Mrs. McCartney to prove that she is capable of composing such music if she persists in her claim.

"We find it extremely strange that a person who never wrote music before her marriage should have helped write Another Day."

If Mrs. McCartney is successful in her claim — and it may now go to court — the other three Beatles, Lennon, George Harrison and Ringo Starr, could have their profits from the song cut down.

Driver 'Careless' In Road Fatality

A coroner's jury ruled Monday night that William Smith of 790 Canterbury, Saanich, was driving with "lack of due care and attention" when his car struck Linda Dianne Hughes, 11, of 668 Canterbury in a crosswalk at the intersection of Ralph and Douglas March 2.

The jury ruled the girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nimbley died March 4 in St. Joseph's Hospital as a result of severe head and internal injuries.

It recommended the proper authorities be instructed to install "whatever safety devices are necessary to make this crosswalk safer," suggesting pushbutton controls.

Trustees Relax Boundary Law

Greater Victoria school board voted Monday to give parents the right to decide which school their child will attend — within regulations still to be developed.

Trustees said there would be "nominal boundaries" for attendance purposes, but that changes within them would be made according to the limitations and capacities of the buildings involved.

Members of the administration advised the board that on the basis of preliminary studies, they thought there wasn't a great enough difference between schools to cause much demand for change.

They also explained that any wishes to move from school to school would be influenced by courses and facilities available, as much as by teachers.

In other business, the board approved a new schedule of rental fees for school facilities that will make 13 schools available for both evening and weekend use.

The evening use will be a new feature and the already existing Saturday rates will be halved. The changes stem in part from a clause of the board's recent settlement with janitorial staff that will allow some of them to work a Tuesday - through - Saturday week.

The board also decided to seek approval of the provincial education department for permission to establish a class for autistic children, to be located in a regular school if possible.

Liberals Oppose Funds

Liberals in the Legislature Monday night voted against a bill establishing a series of special funds totalling $50 million.

The vote taken just before midnight when the House rose, was 44 to four with the NDP and Social Credit parties favoring the principle of the bill.

None of the Liberals spoke in the debate Monday night but the party went on record earlier as opposing the creation of special funds. The funds under discussion were: a $25 million perpetual fund with the interest to be used for drug, alcohol, and tobacco education and rehabilitiation; $20 million for the home acquisition fund, and $5 million for crop insurance.

The House rose at 12:05 a.m.

Where Grass Will Grow

Pavement at Upper Nursery Road, south of cricket field in Beacon Hill Park, was broken up Monday morning in first stage of removal of strip 300 feet long and 20 feet wide. Victoria Ald. Clyde Savage officially removed first chunk, and as members of Beacon Hill Park Association looked on, its president, Mrs. Ed Gould, was ready with grass seed. Change from roadway to grass is part of general plan to reorganize park traffic in which several portions of road will be removed.—(William E. John)

Pacific Salt Band Performance

It'll Take a Lot of Getting Used to

By BERT BINNY

If memory serves right, there used to be a popular song with the refrain: "It's going to take a lot of getting used to!"

This would certainly seem to apply to the music of the Pacific Salt Band. It's certainly not bad; it's just different. If it seems unacceptable, it is not due to the performance but to the form.

After all, the six members of the band do have imposing records. Two hold music degrees, one from UBC and the other from the Berklee School of Music in Boston. One has toured with Jeunesse Musicale: others with such well-known names as Ted Heath, Lance Harrison and Woody Herman.

Drummer George Ursan has accompained Mel Torme, Frankie Laine, Earl Grant et al: pianist Ron Johnston recorded with TV's Poppy Family. Trombonist Ian McDougal played for a BBC orchestra and five of the six are CBC performers.

They refer to themselves in the program as placed "in the avant-garde of today's music" which, as another popular song said: "nobody can deny!" "Pacific Salt's music is innovative!" further proclaims the program. And, as yet another memorable ditty puts it: "of this there is no possible doubt: No possible, probable shadow of doubt: No possible doubt whatever."

Pacific Salt played a full and vigorous concert at the McPherson Playhouse Sunday evening with the main floor about half full plus a sprinkling in the balcony. A few departed quite early in the proceedings: perhaps the restlessness of the music proved infectious.

The program consisted just about exclusively of compositions or arrangements by band members. Thus there were items with (as the song says) "strange sounding names" such as Raw Toast, Oklahoma Weird Bruse, Django, So Be It, Bossa Bossa Jo-Jo, Tree Climber, No Hope No Fear and others.

This is strident music with amplifiers all over the stage. Better appreciation might have accrued had one set up a deck chair on Wharf Street, hard by the E & N terminal.

But to comment too freely on this frankly new musical form appeals like immediate criticism of a surgical operation. There will be better basis for remark when time has been allowed to determine the condition of the patient after anaethesia.

Fund-Raising Effort

Swimmers Aim At Big Splash

Victoria Amateur Swim Club will hold its third annual swimathon April 10 to 12.

Members and volunteers will splash the length of the Crystal Garden pool as often as they can manage in an effort to boost the swim club's financial assets.

The idea of the swimathon is to get sponsors who are willing to pay a certain amount of money for each length the participant of their choice can manage to swim.

No competitor will be allowed to swim longer than two hours, or more than 200 lengths.

Last year's swimathon raised about $4,000. Of the total amount raised, 20 per cent goes to the club's provincial association, 10 per cent to the national body and the remaining 70 per cent to the local club.

Coco Hepburn, That Is

Coco Ponders Acting Career

TORONTO (CP) — With three academy awards and 35 movies behind her, Katharine Hepburn still hasn't decided whether she wants to be an actress.

In Toronto to star in the musical Coco, which opened Monday at the O'Keefe Centre, Miss Hepburn told an interviewer: "I enjoy work and overworking enormously because I have a great deal of energy.

"I have led several lives in my own life. I haven't made up my mind whether I want to act. I still draw.

"One of the reasons I wanted to come on tour with Coco is that I hadn't done my best in the role."

Like the French couturiere Gabrielle (Coco) Chanel, Miss Hepburn has a reputation as a strong-minded individual. She offered little support for the women's liberation movement.

Women have been badly treated in the world, she agreed, but "if you have a family and a husband, and you are not there to do it — well, somebody has to."

Three Plays Presented

Sooke Festival Launched

By BERT BINY

The second annual Sooke Schools Drama Festival opened Monday night with the presentation of three plays at Edward Milne school.

First came The Case of the Giggling Goblin with a cast of 26 from Sooke elementary school.

The adjudicator, Mrs. Gloria Peyton, found this to be "a first class choice of play: a fantasy with a real theme."

George Graham as the Judge was complimented for his "good command." As Mrs. Goblin, Colleen McDonald had relatively little to do but "what she did she did well." David Hansen's Phantom of the opera showed "good beginnings" and Ian Robertson's Dr. Dracula came "close to characterization."

But, in general, it appeared that the players were too conscious of the audience.

Edward Milne junior high's The Love Beads was another local world premier being written by student Jeanne French and slightly edited by the players.

"Malcolm Dunnett as R. J. Wilburn III made an extremely good attempt," said Mrs. Peyton. "He understood the part and the play."

Lynn Elder, as Tess, was "very sincere" but underplayed slightly while Chris Bender, as Bo, tended to "play for comedy."

The final presentation of the evening was When Men Are Scarce by Edward Milne high. Here Jeannette Robertson, Leslie McTaggart and Shawna Gilks were particularly efficient and believable.

Today's program, 8 p.m. at Millstream school, is changed slightly and now consists of Puss In Boots (Glen Lake), The Missing Princess (Langford), and Pepe and the Cornfield Bandit (Glen Lake).

Actress Suing For Privileges

NEW YORK (UPI) — Actress-activist Jane Fonda said Monday her anti-war entertainment troupe is suing the U.S. army for the same privileges and financial backing given the Bob Hope travelling show.

The suit, is to be filed in U.S. district court in Washington, D.C., later this week, according to an associate of Miss Fonda, former Army Doctor Howard Levy. He said that under free speech guarantees, the soldiers should have the same access to the anti-war group as they do the more conservative Hope tours.

Whether or not the group wins the access to army posts plus travelling and lodging expenses as they say the Hope show gets "there can be no stopping us now," Miss Fonda said.

With CBS 23 Years

Big Shew Will End

NEW YORK (UPI) — Comedian Joe Lewis once said television's Ed Sullivan "will last as long as other people have talent."

Sullivan has lasted 23 years and his variety show goes down as the longest running program in television history. But he will not be back on the Columbia Broadcasting System network this fall, a network spokesman said Monday.

Sullivan, who will be 70 in September, joins Red Skeleton and Jackie Gleason as CBS discards in the new fall program lineup to be announced shortly. It was reported there will be no direct replacement for Sullivan and CBS will use the time for a new series running 90 minutes or two hours.

Sullivan's son-in-law Robert Precht said there has been "talk" of Sullivan doing specials for CBS next season "but it's still very much up in the air." Precht produces the Ed Sullivan show.

Sullivan Productions Inc. has started work on a syndicated variety series of five one-hour shows a week with a different host each week, Precht said. It was not known whether Sullivan will appear on the program.

The Sullivan show made its debut June 20, 1948, as "the toast of the town." It had a $1,000 budget and featured Martin and Lewis, who got $200 each. Ten years later his budget was 50 times that amount and Sullivan combed the world — even behind the Iron Curtain — for talent.

Sullivan never varied his format, which he said was "open big, have a good comedy act, put in something for the children, keep the show clean." When Elvis Presley appeared on the Sullivan show the lower part of the screen was blacked out to hide his pelvic gyrations.

The showman sandwiched reigning diva Joan Sutherland between a comedian and an acrobat. He introduced the Beatles to America. Always a friend of the underdog, he had harmonica player Larry Adler and actress Ingrid Bergman on his show when they were objects of controversy, and helped them make a comeback.

Actress Helen Hayes once said she had fathomed Sullivan's secret: "He's so altogether stage struck that one can actually feel it. It comes shining through the inarticulate face, the chewed up words and the cold mechanics of the TV set."

Bruce Lowther

People have started asking me what shows will be back next season and what shows won't be, so here's the latest information I have.

Definitely finished this season are Ed Sullivan, Gleason reruns, Bill Cosby, Jim Nabors, Julia, Andy Williams, Red Skelton, Lassie, That Girl, Beverly Hillbillies, Green Acres, Don Knotts, To Rome with Love, Men at Law, Interns, High Chaparral, Men from Shiloh, Kraft and Four in One.

Probable casualties include Andy Griffith, Mayberry, Hee Haw, Name of the Game, Young Lawyers, Lawrence Welk, Hogan's Heroes, Johnny Cash and Arnie. Sure to return are Ironside, Dean Martin, Flip Wilson, Lucy, Adam-12, Carol Burnett, Mannix, Doris Day, Gunsmoke, Laugh-In, Marcus Welby, Glen Campbell, Family Affair and Mission: Impossible.

Indications are growing that ABC may pick up some shows dropped by NBC and CBS, like Williams and Skelton, and it's definite that Lassie will return via syndication while leaving CBS. If your favorite isn't mentioned above, its status is unknown at present — and you'll note that includes All in the Family, which still has a chance.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Saturday's answer — Five fine big-band sidemen were Lester Young, tenor sax with Count Basie; Rex Stewart, the Duke Ellington horn man; Bill Harris, Woody Herman's great trombonist; Jack Jenney, trombone with Artie Shaw, and Ray Nance, the Duke's trumpeter, fiddler and sometime singer. Bijou by Harris remains my favorite big-band recording.

Today's question harkens back to famous three-named people. Kindly give the last name of movie producers Cecil B. and David O. and sports stars Grover Cleveland and John L. Answers Wednesday.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	1 NT	Pass	3 NT
All Pass

Opening lead: Five of hearts.

Renewing contacts with foreign pressroom colleagues is not the least enjoyable aspect of playing in international tournaments and on a recent visit to Deauville we got a good hand from our trusty friend Jose le Dentu, bridge editor of the famous Paris daily Figaro.

The deal shows the old master of French bridge, Pierre Albarran, in action with the South cards. Albarran's one notrump overcall may seem crazy, but nevertheless it is the kind of bid he frequently made with success, in company that varied from the finest players in the card clubs of the Champs de-Elysees to the wildest gamblers of the Riviera.

On this occasion Albarran's bold overcall had the effect of dissauding West from leading a spade against three notrumps. Rightly or wrongly, West chose to lead a heart instead.

The queen was finessed and all seemed sweetness and light until declarer played the Q-A of diamonds, East showing out on the second one and signaling with the nine of spades.

Undismayed, Albarran gave West a diamond trick, at the same time discarding dummy's king of spades on it! West led a spade and after winning with the ace East was obliged to shift (since a spade continuation would have given South a spade trick, five diamonds and three hearts).

East did the best he could when he exited with the A-K-5 of clubs, hoping to lock declarer in dummy. Albarran was careful, however, to unblock with dummy's Q-J.

Thus he was able to win the third club with the eight, underplaying it with the seven in dummy. He was then able to cash his diamonds and make the contract.

Indians Review Fishing

ALERT BAY—Indians from all parts of British Columbia are taking part in a five-day conference that started Monday at Alert Bay.

Spokesmen for the group say the chief topic will be recent changes in salmon fishing regulations, some of which they say place a greater hardship on native fishermen than on others fishing on the west coast.

The regulation which calls for fishermen to make at least $1,200 annually in order to retain their Class A licence is very hard on many of the natives, as well as others who, with small boats, have eked out a living by day fishing in the immediate vicinity of their homes.

"Twelve hundred dollars a year may not be much to Mr. Davis," one Indian fisherman said, "but for people living in quiet places who have their own homes, burn the wood which grows around them and who live mainly from their gardens and hunting and fishing, $1,200 a year means the difference between independence or living on welfare."

In one village alone, the fishermen claim, more than 300 people are now dependent on welfare because they no longer have this modest income as a mainstay.

However, those earning below the minimum are not the only ones in trouble. The man with the large, costly fishboat is dependent on selling to the big canneries. He can also find himself with difficulties if the canneries decide they no longer want to buy from him.

In addition, Indian women formerly employed in canneries during the season are being put out of work as canneries are closing and merging in various areas along the coast, the Indians say.

It appears likely the five days will not pass without the problem of Indian bands living within the boundaries of the new West Coast National Park coming up for discussion.

Although the crisis in the fishing industry is of prime importance at the conference, the situation on the west coast is such an issue among the native people that it appears certain it will be discussed either formally or informally during this major meeting of the Indian bands.

237 Claims Total $15 Million

VANCOUVER (CP) — A total of 237 claims involving more than $15 million were brought into British Columbia Supreme Court Monday in a winding-up procedure against Commonwealth Trust Co.

Dismissed were 129 claims, most of them against other companies in the Commonwealth group. A number of the firms are in bankruptcy as a result of a police raid in November, 1968, which resulted in seizure of records of 35 companies and charges against three former top executives.

Commonwealth Trust is being liquidated on a ruling by the B.C. Supreme Court.

The Canada Deposit Insurance Corp. paid more than $7 million to persons who had left savings in the company's deposit department and now the corporation is the major claimant against Commonwealth Trust.

Caretaker Drinking, Court Told

NANAIMO—A Bible camp caretaker killed at Pachena Bay on or about Oct. 31 last year had been drinking before his death, Nanaimo Supreme Court was told Monday.

Miss N. L. Pawlovich of the alcohol section of the Vancouver Crime Detection Laboratory, said blood taken from Gordon Kralt's body had a blood alcohol reading of .08, enough to put him "in all probability in a state of euphoria."

Miss Pawlovich was testifying in the fourth day of the non-capital murder trial of 43-year-old Dr. Glen Gold Stewart, charged in connection with Kralt's death.

The witness said urine samples from Kralt's body also indicated the presence of alcohol.

Earlier, John Hohns, a Washington State park ranger, told the court he helped Stewart and a female companion after their 35-foot boat broke up offshore of a park near the Washington-Oregon border.

Johns said the boat was first seen Nov. 8 and books, food, sleeping bags and other debris were washed up on the shore.

He said Stewart didn't appear to want any of the articles.

He said he didn't know if Stewart and his companion had saved any of their money from the wreck.

Sgt. J. O. Devison, in charge of the RCMP marine division at Port Alberni, said he last saw Stewart's two-masted ketch Oct. 30 and that it was gone Nov. 2.

The boat had been tied up at McCallum's floats near the patrol boat Ganges, the sergeant said.

He was asked by defence counsel R. F. MacIsaac if it would be wise for someone who had deliberately planned a murder to tie up a getaway craft across from a police boat and Devision said, "It wouldn't make any difference."

Foggy in Canal

Devision said it was foggy in the Alberni Canal at that time and that it would have to be "a matter of life or death" before he would take even the radar-equipped police boat out in that weather.

Devison said there was no radar, only a compass and a form of echo sounder, aboard Stewart's boat, when he searched it Oct. 23.

He said there was no name on the boat or any sign of registration except a ship's bell found in the bilge with the inscription L01-2, 1957.

He told of finding a cheque book aboard in Stewart's name with a Smithers address.

Willie Sport, who lives near Bamfield, told of giving a ride to Stewart from Port Alberni to a Bamfield float Oct. 30.

He said Stewart told him he was going to visit relatives and friends.

The trip usually takes six hours, he said. His automatic bilge pump stopped working and Stewart was sitting at the stern of the 18-foot boat bailing.

His common-law wife Mabel Martin was in the cabin where she caught her hand on a piece of machinery and later had to have a finger amputated.

Sport said he and his wife had been drinking earlier at a hotel in Port Alberni and were passing a jug of wine on the trip down the canal.

He said Stewart offered to help with fuel expenses and at the end of the trip he gave him a five-dollar bill.

Sport said he asked him if he could have a little more and Stewart gave him an additional dollar.

Sport and his wife were both asked if there were any marks and bruises on Stewart's face and said they didn't notice any.

The trial continues today. So far 26 witnesses have been heard.

Awards Family Affair

DUNCAN — Award night Saturday for the 22nd annual Cowichan Music Festival was a family affair for the Louie and Kilian families.

Donna Louie took the Robert Sworder Memorial Rose Bowl for the highest mark in junior or intermediate Bach classes and the MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. Bursary for intermediate piano.

In the Kilian family, Douglas took the Dorothy Paulding Rose Bowl for the highest mark in senior piano Bach classes. He and his brother Ronald tied for the Robert Sworder Memorial Scholarship to an outstanding senior piano student.

Douglas also tied with brother Dagmar for the Gertrude Moyse Memorial Trophy for a promising performer in the piano classes. Ronald also received two individual awards — the Salt Spring Island Lands Company Ltd. Trophy for the highest mark in sonata classes and the North Cowichan Municipality Rose Bowl for senior piano class.

War Help Stains 'Bloody Hands'

LADYSMITH (CP) — "Canadians will stand at the bar of history with filthy and bloody hands" if Canada continued to supply goods to the United States for use in the Vietnam war, Tommy Douglas said Sunday.

The national New Democratic Party leader was speaking to a meeting at which he was chosen by acclamation to seek re-election for the NDP in the next federal election in the Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands riding.

Douglas, who retires as national leader next month, also criticized the Liberal government's policies on American ownership of Canadian businesses and on supplying natural gas to the U.S. with what he called "no regard to Canada's own future needs."

His nomination was seconded by Roger Smith, a teacher from Lantzville, who had earlier said he would contest the nomination.

Smith said he withdrew his bid for nomination because some of this statements were misinterpreted as personal criticism of Douglas. He added that he will seek to organize a Waffle group in the constituency in an effort to bring about changes he would like in the party.

The nomination meeting passed a resolution stating that the NDP should insist the Canadian government ask the U.S. to stop the next nuclear test planned on Amchitka Island in the Aleutians, and that if the U.S. does not agree Canada should close down all border crossings on the day in question as a protest.

Sierra Club Offers Park Alternatives

The Sierra Club of British Columbia has proposed what it suggests will be an acceptable alternative to the current controversy over the boundaries of the West Coast Trail section of the West Coast National Park.

The group made its proposals in a brief prepared by the Victoria branch of the club and submitted Monday to Lands, Forests and Water Resources Minister Ray Williston, and Recreation and Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan.

A buffer zone one and a half miles wide should be established along the boundaires of the trail section of the park, the club said in its brief. This differs from suggestions by some conservationists that the strip should be three miles wide and from other persons that a half mile would be sufficient in many places.

"A wider strip would provide to the trail area, then, a greater degree of isolation from the erosion caused by current logging processes as well as providing the wildlife with necessities of life," the brief said.

The club further proposed that the park boundaries "be extended up the valleys of all major streams to distances varying with the recreational potential of the individual river."

These zones, whose width would vary according to the stream in question, "should extend upstream for an absolute minimum distance of three miles."

With regard to exclusion of the Nitinat Triangle, the club has asked that a triangle, smaller than that earlier proposed and including the Tsusiat, Squalicum, Tsuquadra and Hobiton Lakes and watershed area, be added to the park.

Of a total area of almost 25 square miles, the club's brief says 10,800 acres are contained within the tree farm licence owned by B.C. Forest Products Ltd.

Rose Pruning

On my meanderings around town, I pass dozens of small front gardens, nearly all of them with at least one rose bush in them, but very seldom are these roses performing as they should.

A little common-sense pruning would get them off on the right foot in the spring, resulting in far better blooms. Many of the neglected bushes I see have two or three long, lanky stems devoid of foilage, with a top-knot of weak, twiggy growth, while at the base are gnarled clumps of dead or dying wood.

It takes so little to keep a rose bush in business, but that little must be done for it — the cultivated rose cannot fend for itself like its wild cousin. In a wild rose, nature does the pruning, using frost as her pruning shears, but Mother Nature isn't interested the least bit in turning out long-stemmed, perfectly formed flowers.

Her interest lies entirely in the production of seeds for the perpetuation of the race, and her rough-and-ready tip-pruning — performed by Jack Frost — makes for lots of smallish, short-stemmed flowers, good for her purpose but useless for ours, so this is where we take over.

I should point out here that quite a bit of controversy is going on these days on rose-growing circles as to the best time to prune. One school of thought insists the rose is just another flowering shrub and should be pruned like any other shrub — immediately after the blooming period.

Another faction points out that pruning is a surgical operation — the amputation of unwanted limbs — and as such, it subjects the amputee to considerable surgical shock. This shock is at a minimum when the subject is fully dormant, anaesthetized by winter cold. This is the philosophy that governs the pruning of fruit trees.

However, by far the greatest majority of home gardeners prune their roses in March or early April. This may or may not be the best time — I wouldn't be prepared to argue the point — but certainly it is easier to see WHERE to make your cuts after the bushes have awakened and have pushed out some fat new shoots. Besides, the ground is usually too muddy earlier in the year for comfortable kneeling in the rose bed.

Just HOW you prune will depend, first, on what kind of roses — whether they are hybrid teas or floribundas — and second, whether they are long-established bushes or newly planted ones. I thing we had better discuss the new bushes today, and tomorrow we'll go on to the established roses.

Newly planted roses must be cut back very drastically indeed. In fact, when you finish your pruning, you'll have to look twice to see if there is any plant there at all.

First, let's take a critical look at those bushes you have just planted. There will probably be two or three dead-looking sticks pushing up from the roots, and there may be some pale, blanched sprouts here and there along the length of these sticks.

Disregard these high sprouts and look for a growth bud or eye — with or without a sprout — as low down as possible on each stick, and pointing outward, away from the centre of the plant.

Cut off everythong above this selected eye, making a smooth, slanting cut about half an inch above the eye, with the cut sloping downward toward the centre of the plant. Do the same on each of the other sticks. If you can't find an actual sprout of growth bud suitably placed, select a dormant eye and prune back to it in the same way.

The idea of selecting a low-down bud or eye is to build your new brush from scratch, with ALL the new growth coming from near the ground. An outward-facing eye is chosen so the new shoots will grow away from the centre, thereby keeping the bush open to sun and air. Any inward-growing growth buds or started shoots should be rubbed off with the thumb.

One thing more before we leave your new roses: Don't be afraid to go over them again with the pruning shears in May, taking out any shoots which are not making satisfactory growth. There is no closed season on rose pruning, and any time poor or weak shoots are seen, cut them away regardless of the time of year.

Prune again every time you cut roses for your vases and bowls. Take a good long stem, cutting always well back, and always to just above an outward-facing leaf or eye.

Wanted: Dropins

WASHINGTON — It's become quite a fad for young folks to drop out of society and "return to the land." Everyone is very sympathetic to the people who reject the society they live in, but the big question is: How many people can a country afford to have drop out?

If everyone drops out, this is what could happen in a few years:

Myra Landon and George Coleman, two students fed up with fighting in a world they never made, decide to leave college and join friends who are working on a wheat-germ farm in Florida.

But first they must rent a U-haul trailer to take their belongings. They consult the yellow pages of the phone book, call several companies listed, but get no answer.

So they get in George's battered car and drive to one of the U-haul lots. The office is padlocked. A bearded fellow sitting there whittling says, "Ain't nobody there. They took off for surfing in Hawaii 'bout six months ago. Said they'd had it."

Myra and George drive to several other trailer companies, but find they are also closed down. By this time their radiator is steaming, and they stop at a gas station.

A man comes out and George says, "The car seems to be overheating, and we have to drive to Florida. Could you fix it?"

"Don't have anyone to fix it. Last mechanic I had went off to India to find the secret of life."

"But couldn't you do anything?" Myra asks.

"Don't have no spare parts," the man says. "Haven't been able to get any for 14 months. Nobody works in the auto parts factory any more. Everyone left to do his own thing."

"Well, could you at least give us some water for the car?"

"Don't have no water. All the mains are broke, and we can't get anyone to repair them. Water company says it won't get to this area for another five months. I'll sell you a gallon of gas if you want. Have to ration it."

"A gallon of gas!" George says. "We're trying to get to Florida."

"I'd like to oblige but we're on strict rationing since all the oil workers decided to quit and go on welfare."

"Why do you stay in business?" Myra asks.

"Got two kids living in the bottom of the Grand Canyon and I have to send them money every month or else they'd starve to death."

Myra and George start to get hungry. They walk over to a coffee shop which is locked. So is a hamburger stand and a pizza parlor. So they find a supermarket. They walk in and all the shelves are bare.

An old man sitting by the cash register says, "You folks looking for something?"

Myra says, "A loaf of bread?"

The man laughs. "I haven't seen a loaf of bread in months. The last bakery in the state shut down in July. All the employees took off for a rock festival in Mexico City and never came back.

"Got some pickles back there if you want them. That's about the only food left. As soon as I sell them I'm going on social security."

"But we haven't eaten since yesterday."

"I appreciate the problem. But we just can't get any food. You would think with all the young people going back to the farms that there would be a surplus. But they just say they want to grow enough for themselves, and not make any profit for a capitalistic society."

Myra says, "It's not fair. I think the government should pass a law allowing only a certain number of people to drop out every year."

The old man says, "I couldn't agree with you more. It sure takes the fun out of dropping out when everydoby decides to do it at the same time."

'Sponges' Can't Create

Let me begin with a brief autobiographical note, not because it is important, but to illustrate a point that many people fail to understand.

I don't know how many times over the years people have asked me why I haven't written any novels or plays, and it's too complicated to explain, so I simply tell them that I'm too lazy and let it go at that.

But the real reason would give them a better understanding into the nature of the creative arts — whether it's writing, painting, composing, or what not. The fact of the matter is that what I do every day is almost the direct opposite of what a novelist or playwright does.

Writing essays, or idea pieces, or whatever you want to call them, consists largely of "filling up" oneself. I read and study a great deal, and then try to synthesize and distill this material so that it helps give me a coherent view of the world.

Writing novels or plays consists largely of "emptying" oneself. The genuinely creative artist, in any field, must consciously forget whatever he has read, seen or heard in his field, and approach his work with a blank mind, so that his unconscious creative powers are free to operate for him.

A novelist who did what I do would write a terrible book — it would be derivative, synthetic, rational, and lacking in the imaginative strength necessary to compel belief in his fictional creations. His story would be stiff, his characters would not live, his dialogue would be artificial.

And so many novels, paintings and pieces of music are bad precisely because their creators are working off the tops of their heads and not from the bottom of their unconscious.

They are in charge of the material, instead of the material being in some way in charge of them.

Of course, a creative artist needs craftsmanship — otherwise his work is just shapeless and mushy — but the craftsmanship must be in the service of his particular daemon, and not the other way around.

Lacking this daemon, I am incapable of writing a decent novel or play, and would not even try.

My own special talent lies in the other direction — of concepts and constructs, of trying to associate ideas that seem separate, and to separate ideas that seem associated. It is not as high as worthy a talent as the other, but it is all I have been given.

"Writers" cannot write all kinds of things equally well; Thomas Mann's fiction is towering, but his essays are little more than the organized banalities of a well-educated man of his time.

Even the great Beethoven was not able to handle the operatic form as well as the symphonic, which offered more scope for his unfettered genius.

Ontario Sues Chemical Firm In Major Anti-Pollution Test

Dow Target Of Action

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis announced Monday that Ontario has launched a $35 million damage suit against Dow Chemical Co. of Canada Ltd. and its parent company in the United States for mercury pollution of the St. Clair River and Lake St. Clair.

Davis said a writ has been issued seeking another $10 million to pay for the cost of dredging the bottom of the waterways to remove the pollutants.

Under a mandatory order requested in the suit, the companies would have the option of removing the existing polluting materials, or give the province $10 million to do the job.

It is the first time the province has attempted to sue a company in relation to mercury pollution of provincial waterways.

Attorney-General Allan Lawrence, who attended the news conference along with George Kerr, energy and resources minister, said the suit would be a test case before the Ontario Supreme Court.

If the suit is successful, suits may be launched against other polluters.

In Sarnia, a Dow spokesman said the company had not been informed of any legal action by the province but that when informed of-

Surtax Bite Squeaks By In Commons

OTTAWA (CP)—By a scant 11-vote margin, the Commons Monday approved a government bill that continues for another year a three-percent "temporary" surtax bite on personal and corporate income taxes.

The vote on third and final reading squeaked by 68 to 57, with only Liberals in favor. The bill, extending the tax through 1971, now goes to the Senate.

By the same vote the Commons defeated a Creditiste attempt to delay third reading of the bill for six months.

Along with extending the surtax the bill would allow manufacturing and processing industries to value investments in machinery and structures at 115 per cent of their actual costs in writing them off their taxes.

Both provisions were announced in Finance Minister Edgar Benson's Dec. 3 budget. The capital cost allowances is retroactive to that date. The surtax extends a measure introduced in 1968.

The surtax has been renewed each year since and some opposition MPs expressed fear that it has achieved permanent status.

Women Rob Ex-Minister After Industrialist Slain

Strauss

NEW YORK (UPI) — Franz Josef Strauss, former West German defence and finance minister, was robbed of about $240 in German and American money outside the Plaza Hotel Monday by three women who attempted to force him into a car.

The incident bore some similarity to the fatal stabbing 48 hours earlier of Italian industrialist Pasquale Bottero outside the New York Hilton. Bottero told police before he died that he had been accosted by three women.

Strauss told police he was robbed at 2:45 a.m. as he was walking at Fifth Avenue and 59th Street outside the Plaza, a fashionable hotel at the south end of Central Park, where he was staying. He said a car pulled up and three women got out and told him, "Get into the car."

"Go away," he said. "I'm just out for a walk."

He said the three then tried to drag him into the car. They failed. But one of the women reached into his right rear pocket, Strauss said, and took his wallet containing $160 in American Bills and 300 deutschmarks, valued at about $80.

At about 4 a.m. police spotted a car that matched the description given by Strauss two blocks away. Two women in the car were taken into custody and 300 deutschmarks were found in the glove compartment.

Socreds Firm on Pension Vote

By IAN STREET

A lone Socred voted with the NDP and Liberal members in the legislature Monday night in opposition to the principle of a bill which will provided new pension benefits for active and retired teachers.

Ernie LeCours (SC-Richmond) had indicated he would vote against the government unless he could be convinced the new pension formula would do justice to retired teachers. When the vote was taken shortly before 11 p.m. Opposition leader Dave Barrett shouted: "Scrooge" at the standing Socred majority.

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, in a lengthy account of the workings of the pension plans, ignored opposition pleas to withdraw the bill while consideration was given to improving benefits for teachers who retired prior to 1967.

The minister argued that no other province can match B.C.'s record in this regard and added in reply to a question that the government had received no indication the B.C Teachers' Federation was prepared to share in any additional costs for retired teachers' pensions.

During debate Allan Williams (L—West Vancouver-Howe Sound) said he "implored" Black to "take this bill back and look over it" with the help of actuarial experts to determine how best to provide adequate assistance to retired teachers.

The Liberal member said it was "not so," as the government had claimed, that teachers who retired prior to 1967 would receive a 7 per cent average pension increase. He said the increases range from $10.50 to $21.

The proposed amendments, Williams said, do "an acceptable job" for teachers who are still employed but fail to meet the government's responsibility for upgrading

Ottawa to Shield More Industries

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will expand areas of industry which will not be allowed to fall under foreign control, Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday in the Commons.

He said in reply to George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) that banking, communications and uranium are already areas in which foreign control will not be permitted.

The government would announce as soon as possible other areas where the same rules will apply, the prime minister said.

He did not indicate what industries will be covered or when the announcement will be made.

Last week, he said policy on foreign ownership will be announced "in due course."

Hees raised the matter at the start of the question period by asking why the government was following an apparently inconsistent policy in relation to uranium and oil.

Hees said the government has instructed Denison Mines, a uranium company, not to sell control to U.S. interests. But in the current case of Home Oil Ltd. of Calgary it was negotiating possible pur-

Trudeau Stays Mum On Services' Union

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday the government is looking at "various aspects" of collective bargaining in the public service, but he didn't say whether this involves the armed forces.

The question of possible unions in the forces was raised in the Commons by former prime minister John Diefenbaker who asked assurance from Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey that the organization of such unions would not be permitted. Mackasey said it wouldn't come under his department.

Michael Forrestal (PC—Dartmouth-Halifax East) then asked Trudeau whether he discussed the question with Claude Edwards, president of the Public Service Alliance.

The prime minister said he had correspondence with Edwards in which he said the government is reviewing collective bargaining in the public service. Various aspects mentioned by Edwards were being examined.

Plane Hits Inflation

WEST MILTON, Ohio (UPI) — A single engine plane ran into a cluster of balloons at 1,800 feet Sunday and crashed into a muddy field. The pilot and a passenger escaped injury.

The balloons had been released as a promotional gimmick by the Grace Baptist Church. The plane flipped over and was demolished, but pilot Wayne Kepp, 43, and Robert Dayton, 33, both of Dayton, Ohio, walked away from the wreckage.

Plague on Plague in South Africa

Trains Halted by Locusts

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — A locust attack so bad curtains are being eaten off windows has hit farmers with the worst plague in South African history.

The brown locusts have mutilated crops and many other things that stood in their way in Cape and Orange Free State, two of the country's four provinces, and moved into neighboring Botswana and South-West Africa.

"Infestation occurs in patches over approximately 100,000 square miles," Deputy Agriculture Minister Hendrik Schoeman told Parliament.

Hardest hit has been an area known as the Karoo in central Cape province between the communities of De Aaar and Middleburg.

Several railway trains slithered to a stop because their driving wheels were spinning on masses of mashed locusts.

First caterpillar set back new grazing about two months ago. Then came moths, followed by millions of locusts. Butterflies arrived after the locusts and the latest report is that corn crickets have started swarming.

Householders who neglected to seal premises were invaded in some districts by locusts nibbling curtains, linens, clothing, flowers in vases and uncovered food.

Some experts are convinced the plague is completely out of control and that only the coming of the southern hemisphere winter will curb the plague.

Bail Motion Opposed For 'FLQ Leaders'

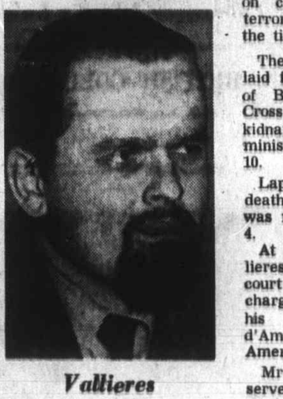
MONTREAL (CP) — Chief Crown Prosecutor Stephen Cuddihy told a bail hearing Monday that Pierre Vallieres and Charles Gagnon are the leaders of the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec.

Cuddihy, opposing bail applications by the two men charged with seditious conspiracy and membership in the outlawed FLQ, said:

"The real reasons for our objections are the events of October. We know that Vallieres and Gagnon are the leaders of the movement."

Judge Francois Chevalier, of Quebec Superior Court in Hull, who presided over the bail hearing, reserved his decision until next Monday.

Vallieres, an author, and Gagnon, a former sociology professor, have been in prison on charges connected with terrorist activities much of the time since 1966.



Vallieres

The latest charges were laid following the kidnapping of British diplomat James Cross last Oct. 5 and the kidnapping of Quebes labor minister Pierre Laporte Oct. 10.

Laporte was strangled to death Oct. 17 and Mr. Green was released unharmed Dec. 4.

At Monday's hearing, Vallieres also was challenging court jurisdiction in a sedition charge laid in connection with his book Negre blancs d'Amerique—White Negroes of America.

Mr. Justice Chevalier reserved judgement on this motion also until next Monday.

the pensions of retired teachers.

He also took issue with a statement by Resources Minister Ray Williston, who told the House Monday night that if the position of retired teachers was to have been treated on a different basis from those still employed, this issue should have been raised at the time of negotiations.

"It is the government's responsibility," Williams said, "to remember these people."

Barrett called Williston's statement "sheer rubbish," saying that the whole question of teacher salaries has been a public issue for the past 18 months.

"Teachers have said very clearly they are prepared to support retired teachers in their fight for better pensions," Barrett said. "Eighty-eight per cent of them have said they are prepared to go on strike if necessary."

The strike vote was completed last fall by the B.C. Teachers' Federation and the executive of the federation recently reaffirmed the stand that the strike should go ahead if a better deal isn't obtained for those already retired.

Barrett cited the example of one of his former high school teachers, who wrote asking his support, disclosing that at age 64 after 35 years in the classroom she was getting a pension of $131 a month.

"I could tell her that by playing it right and rejecting half of her pension she could go on welfare and be much better off financially," the NDP leader said. "One year from now she'll qualify for the old age pension. But do these people have to rely on welfare and charity after all their years of service?

"Emotion," said Agnes Kripps (SC—Vancouver South).

plight of these retired teachers who are getting $131 a month pension after 35 years then you're pretty cold-hearted.

"These aren't deadbeats or ne'er-do-wells; they're not even greedy. So why does the question of a fair pension have to become a political issue?"

Barrett admitted he knows nothing about pension funds but added he does know the fund administered by the government contains $165 million, that it is growing by $18 million annually, and that payments amount to only $8 million for a net yearly increase of $10 million in the fund.

LeCours suggested that present-day teachers might be prepared to contribute a further ⅓ of 1 per cent to make the pension of the retired school teacher a little higher.

Those teachers, he said, had worked for low wages, were able to save very little and were now suffering because the federal and provincial governments had allowed inflation to overtake them and decrease their life savings.

"Now we are going to call on them to suffer some more."

"Unless the minister can convince me that the formula as it is now is just, unless it is doing justice to those who have retired in the past, I plan to oppose this bill, said LeCours.

His objections were echoed by Dr. Scott Wallace (SC—Oak Bay) who suggested that the government has a moral obligation to retired teachers.

ficially it would turn the matter over immediately to company lawyers for study.

Davis said the government was forced into its decision by the failure of Dow to cooperate in resolving "all matters." Dow had indicated early last year that it was prepared to help those who suffered damage and to cooperate in other ways. But Kerr said the company informed the province last summer "they couldn't cooperate."

The damage action also seeks an order to prevent the company from continuing "any process that would create further pollution."

Mercury pollution was first discovered in the St. Clair system a year ago and led to a federal ban on the export of fish from those waters. Since then, the federal and provincial governments have cooperated in establishing loan funds to help fishermen affected by the fishing ban.

Dow was placed under ministerial order a year ago to reduce its discharge of mercury and to report periodically on its pogress to the Ontario Water Resources Commission. A. K. Watt, a member of the commission, said later Monday in an interview the company has cut mercury dumpage into the waterway to less than a pound a day.

chase of controlling interest in the firm.

Trudeau said he did not see any inconsistency though he acknowledged that the two decisions were ad hoc—that is, made for a specific purpose.

The prime minister said that constitutionally the government had authority in the field in uranium, but not in the field of oil.

Hees asked when a consistent policy will be adopted.

Trudeau said one is being brought forward as soon as possible. However, such policy would not cover all cases. There would still have to be specific decisions for specific cases.

The elements of a general policy already existed in that the government had determined that banks, financial institutions and mass communications industries would not be allowed to fall under foreign control.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: About two years ago after a strict routine of diet and exercise prescribed by my doctor, I lost 33 pounds and felt so much better, and needless to say looked much better.

But last year I developed an ulcer. Now I am gaining weight — 14 pounds so far. Is there any way to keep an ulcer under control and not gain weight? I drink quite a bit of milk. — Mrs. A.L.

Yes, there are ways to do it, although they aren't exactly as easy as falling off a log. Still, not too difficult, either.

First of all, keep this firmly in mind: the main principle of an ulcer diet is to keep something in the stomach of a protein nature. It combines with the excess hydrochloric acid in the stomach and, by absorbing such free acid, protects the ulcer from being irritated.

Note that protein-type foods, and not fats, are the main essential element. Milk is a convenient food for this purpose. Whole milk contains 160 calories per cup. Skim milk (with much of the fat removed) contains only 90 calories per cup, a saving of about 45 per cent in calories. So switching to skim milk ought to help quite a bit.

There are other ways. With meat and poultry (both high-protein foods) keep them just as lean as possible. Cut off visible fat; roast or broil rather than frying, because frying adds to the fat and hence the calories.

What do you spread on your bread? A pat of butter or margarine contains about 75 calories. Spreading very thinly can lop off some more calories.

Cheese is a protein food, but some types have fewer calories than others, and cottage cheese is lowest of all.

How do you cook your eggs? Eggs are high-protein, too, and hence helpful in using up excess stomach acid, but the way you cook them can make a vast difference in calories. Poaching or boiling is best.

An automatic lubrication system that can't run dry—so the engine can't burn out. Lightweight rust-proof magnesium housing. Double housing around the spring steel blade—for safety's sake. Biggest muffler on any power mower. Front discharge chute slanted down for safety. Anti-accident lock on the adjustable handle. Bushel-sized mildew-proof, zippered bag on Grass-catcher; it snaps on and off, empties in a shake. 3-point height adjustment on 19" and 21" models, for 6 different cutting heights.

Birdie on 17th Hole . . . . . . Edges Julius Boros

Palmer Wins 56th Tourney

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Arnold Palmer fought off tenacious Julius Boros and scored his second victory of the season Sunday in the $150,000 Florida Citrus Invitational golf tournament.

The 41-year-old Palmer had a final round 68 for 270, 18 under par on the 6849-yard Rio Pinar Country Club course and beat Boros, the 51-year-old National Seniors champion, by a one stroke.

Boros, who twice tied Palmer in the sweltering heat, had a final 69 for 271.

The $30,000 first-prize check for Palmer's 56th career victory placed him at the top of the season's money-winning list with more than $89,000.

SLID PAST CUP

Boros, playing just behind Palmer, had a chance to tie it with a birdie on the final hole. He missed the green to the right and chipped for the birdie but the ball just slid past the cup.

Kermit Zarley, the 1970 Canadian Open champ, was alone in third with a 69 for 273.

Jerry Heard, 23, who shared the first-round lead with Palmer, had a 69 for 274 and was tied at that figure with Tom Weiskopf, who shot 68.

He bolted out quickly, with three consecutive birdies, starting on the second hole.

He put an eight-iron shot 18 inches from the flag on the second hole, missed the green but chipped in on the third and rolled in a 12-foot putt on No. 4.

MISSED GREENS

That gave him a two-stroke lead over Boros, but it dwindled to one when he took consecutive bogeys on the seventh and eighth holes, missing the green each time.

Palmer birdied from 10 feet on the ninth to make the margin two again.

He birdied the 12th hole from 15 feet but bogeyed the 14th when he missed the green and failed on a five-foot putt.

Boros birdied the 14th moments later and they were tied again.

Palmer pulled away again with a 10-foot putt for a birdie four on the 15th hole. But Boros birdied it right behind him, sending it down to the final few holes and the key birdie on the 17th that pushed Palmer's all-time money figure to $1,340,271.

Indians Review Fishing

ALERT BAY—Indians from all parts of British Columbia are taking part in a five-day conference that started Monday at Alert Bay.

Spokesmen for the group say the chief topic will be recent changes in salmon fishing regulations, some of which they say place a greater hardship on native fishermen than on others fishing on the west coast.

The regulation which calls for fishermen to make at least $1,200 annually in order to retain their Class A licence is very hard on many of the natives, as well as others who, with small boats, have eked out a living by day fishing in the immediate vicinity of their homes.

"Twelve hundred dollars a year may not be much to Mr. Davis," one Indian fisherman said, "but for people living in quiet places who have their own homes, burn the wood which grows around them and who live mainly from their gardens and hunting and fishing, $1,200 a year means the difference between independence or living on welfare."

In one village alone, the fishermen claim, more than 300 people are now dependent on welfare because they no longer have this modest income as a mainstay.

However, those earning below the minimum are not the only ones in trouble. The man with the large, costly fishboat is dependent on selling to the big canneries. He can also find himself with difficulties if the canneries decide they no longer want to buy from him.

In addition, Indian women formerly employed in canneries during the season are being put out of work as canneries are closing and merging in various areas along the coast, the Indians say.

It appears likely the five days will not pass without the problem of Indian bands living within the boundaries of the new West Coast National Park coming up for discussion.

Although the crisis in the fishing industry is of prime importance at the conference, the situation on the west coast is such an issue among the native people that it appears certain it will be discussed either formally or informally during this major meeting of the Indian bands.

—Klaus Muenter

'Canada Geese' Off Ground

DUNCAN—Cowichan Fish and Game Association Sunday began the first part of its operation "Canada Geese" by hauling hay to an island in Quamichan Lake from the shore at Indian Road.

Volunteers worked under the guidance of conservation officer Jack Fox. Next Sunday a crew will return to the island and place additional nests in an effort to increase the Canada geese population in Quamichan Lake.

The nests will be made of drums cut in half and filled with hay. Hay was donated by Mrs. George Whittaker, Joe Clarkson and Alec Porter.

Association members recently became concerned about the continuity of the bird sanctuary on the Quamichan Lake island when nests were disturbed and some birds caught in traps.

Unauthorized people landing on the island will be prosecuted and may face stiff fines.

Caretaker Drinking, Court Told

NANAIMO—A Bible camp caretaker killed at Pachena Bay on or about Oct. 31 last year had been drinking before his death, Nanaimo Supreme Court was told Monday.

Miss N. L. Pawlovich of the alcohol section of the Vancouver Crime Detection Laboratory, said blood taken from Gordon Kralt's body had a blood alcohol reading of .08, enough to put him "in all probability in a state of euphoria."

Miss Pawlovich was testifying in the fourth day of the non-capital murder trial of 43-year-old Dr. Glen Gold Stewart, charged in connection with Kralt's death.

The witness said urine samples from Kralt's body also indicated the presence of alcohol.

Earlier, John Hohns, a Washington State park ranger, told the court he helped Stewart and a female companion after their 35-foot boat broke up offshore of a park near the Washington-Oregon border.

Johns said the boat was first seen Nov. 8 and books, food, sleeping bags and other debris were washed up on the shore.

He said Stewart didn't appear to want any of the articles.

He said he didn't know if Stewart and his companion had saved any of their money from the wreck.

Sgt. J. O. Devison, in charge of the RCMP marine division at Port Alberni, said he last saw Stewart's two-masted ketch Oct. 30 and that it was gone Nov. 2.

The boat had been tied up at McCallum's floats near the patrol boat Ganges, the sergeant said.

He was asked by defence counsel R. F. MacIsaac if it would be wise for someone who had deliberately planned a murder to tie up a getaway craft across from a police boat and Devision said, "It wouldn't make any difference."

Foggy in Canal

Devision said it was foggy in the Alberni Canal at that time and that it would have to be "a matter of life or death" before he would take even the radar-equipped police boat out in that weather.

Devison said there was no radar, only a compass and a form of echo sounder, aboard Stewart's boat, when he searched it Oct. 23.

He said there was no name on the boat or any sign of registration except a ship's bell found in the bilge with the inscription L01-2, 1957.

He told of finding a cheque book aboard in Stewart's name with a Smithers address.

Willie Sport, who lives near Bamfield, told of giving a ride to Stewart from Port Alberni to a Bamfield float Oct. 30.

He said Stewart told him he was going to visit relatives and friends.

The trip usually takes six hours, he said. His automatic bilge pump stopped working and Stewart was sitting at the stern of the 18-foot boat bailing.

His common-law wife Mabel Martin was in the cabin where she caught her hand on a piece of machinery and later had to have a finger amputated.

Sport said he and his wife had been drinking earlier at a hotel in Port Alberni and were passing a jug of wine on the trip down the canal.

He said Stewart offered to help with fuel expenses and at the end of the trip he gave him a five-dollar bill.

Sport said he asked him if he could have a little more and Stewart gave him an additional dollar.

Sport and his wife were both asked if there were any marks and bruises on Stewart's face and said they didn't notice any.

The trial continues today. So far 26 witnesses have been heard.

Festival Awards Were Family Affair

DUNCAN — Award night Saturday for the 22nd annual Cowichan Music Festival was a family affair for the Louie and Kilian families.

Donna Louie took the Robert Sworder Memorial Rose Bowl for the highest mark in junior or intermediate Bach classes and the MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. Bursary for intermediate piano.

In the Kilian family, Douglas took the Dorothy Paulding Rose Bowl for the highest mark in senior piano Bach classes. He and his brother Ronald tied for the Robert Sworder Memorial Scholarship to an outstanding senior piano student.

Douglas also tied with brother Dagmar for the Gertrude Moyse Memorial Trophy for a promising performer in the piano classes. Ronald also received two individual awards — the Salt Spring Island Lands Company Ltd. Trophy for the highest mark in sonata classes and the North Cowichan Municipality Rose Bowl for senior piano class.

Other awards went to Alexander school, Chemainus PTA Shield; Joseph Battle, Credit Union Cup for the highest mark in speech arts; St. Joseph's school, B.C. Cement Cup for highest mark in speech choirs; Nicholas Fairbank, City of Duncan Trophy for intermediate piano; Angela Brigden, B.C. Forest Products Pulp and Paper Division Bursary for senior piano classes; Amy Sun, Stanley Gordon Chapter IODE Trophy for the highest mark in sight reading.

In Friday's piano events at Khowhemun elementary school, winners were Lorrie Lewis, Hall MacKenzie Trophy for under 15 years, Grade 5 to 6; Terry Tyndall, Martin's Men's Wear Trophy for under 14 years in Grade 5; Nicholas Fairbank, Isabel Tarlton trophy for under 16 years, Grade 8; Amy Der, CMF Trophy for Grade 10 or over; Ronald Kilian, CMF Trophy for Grade 10 or over on Chopin, and the Commercial Hotel Trophy, Grade 10 or over in own selection.

In Junior piano Saturday, Dougie Louie won Phil Jaynes Trophy for under 9 years in Grade 1; Tarry Horel, CMF Trophy for under 10 years in Grade 1; and Laura Mottishaw, the Bazett and Vickers Trophy for under 11 years in Grade 2.

Bylaws Cover $353,000

DUNCAN — First three readings were given Monday to three bylaws to authorize borrowing $353,000 for various projects by council.

The projects will include storm drain construction, water storage reservoir construction and sewer system improvement construction. The total also includes $180,000 for the city's centennial project — the library-senior citizens centre adjacent to the new law courts building.

Mayor Jim Quaife said he was pleased that council saw fit to agree with bylaws which were providing much needed employment and at the same time enabled the city to carry out important work.

When giving third reading to the revised Budget Bylaw 1970, No. 2, Ald. Allan Kerr remarked that although he had asked the Cowichan school board on many occasions about financing, "the sleeping giant had not come up with an answer."

He said that in the educational budget, thousands of dollars were hidden for Malaspina College.

"We had no say over this amount," Kerr said. Ald. Tom Kilpatrick said maybe the time had come to consider a per capita tax per school child.

"It should be reviewed as well as welfare," and parents should be assessed so much per child attending school Kerr said.

Ald. Martin Lukaitis noted that a proposal should be made to the Union of B.C. Municipalities. "Services for the people should be paid by all the people and not only by property owners."

In other business, council referred to its finance committee two bids for the sale of city property. One, amounting to $80,000, was submitted by credit union for the old municipal hall, the old fire hall and the present library building.

Nanaimo Hits Goal for Seals

NANAIMO — Nanaimo Christmas Seal campaign has gone over the top by $560. Campaign books closed on $6,440 compared to last year's total, $5,880.

On a province-wide basis, the campaign is the best on record with more than $417,000 donated, over $7,000 over last year.

While the campaign set its target this year at $430,000, president C. W. Doodson, B.C. Tuberculosis Christmas Seal Society, sponsors of the campaign, stated: "We are extremely grateful to British Columbians for their outstanding support, which will mean the society will meet its 1971 planned program, with minor rebudgeting of certain projects."

Programs such as Operation Doorstep, the mobile chest x-ray van which travels thousands of miles each year in B.C., research grants, health education and contribution to health centre construction and expansion, all receive support from the annual Christmas Seal campaign.

Instrument Recovered On Quadra

CAMPBELL RIVER — An underwater marine instrument valued at several thousand dollars that went missing two weeks ago was recovered off a beach at Quadra Island about 2 p.m. Monday.

Finder was Campbell River logging contractor Dave Murphy, who discovered the 11-foot instrument three miles north of Cape Mudge lighthouse.

Murphy reported his find to Campbell River RCMP who called the transport department in Vancouver. Murphy said he was waiting to hear from the department. The instrument belongs to the hydro geographic survey, transport department.

Sierra Club Offers Park Alternatives

The Sierra Club of British Columbia has proposed what it suggests will be an acceptable alternative to the current controversy over the boundaries of the West Coast Trail section of the West Coast National Park.

The group made its proposals in a brief prepared by the Victoria branch of the club and submitted Monday to Lands, Forests and Water Resources Minister Ray Williston, and Recreation and Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan.

A buffer zone one and a half miles wide should be established along the boundaires of the trail section of the park, the club said in its brief. This differs from suggestions by some conservationists that the strip should be three miles wide and from other persons that a half mile would be sufficient in many places.

"A wider strip would provide to the trail area, then, a greater degree of isolation from the erosion caused by current logging processes as well as providing the wildlife with necessities of life," the brief said.

The club further proposed that the park boundaries "be extended up the valleys of all major streams to distances varying with the recreational potential of the individual river."

These zones, whose width would vary according to the stream in question, "should extend upstream for an absolute minimum distance of three miles."

With regard to exclusion of the Nitinat Triangle, the club has asked that a triangle, smaller than that earlier proposed and including the Tsusiat, Squalicum, Tsuquadra and Hobiton Lakes and watershed area, be added to the park.

Of a total area of almost 25 square miles, the club's brief says 10,800 acres are contained within the tree farm licence owned by B.C. Forest Products Ltd.

BCFP has been opposing the the suggestion that part of its licence be removed and given over to park purposes.

Boundaries for all three phases of the new West Coast National Park have already been established by the federal and provincial governments and cannot be altered without mutual agreement.

Jet Engines Retrieved

COMOX (CP) — The two engines of a $1,500,000 armed forces Voodoo jet that crashed Feb. 18 have been recovered from Georgia Strait near here. The miniature submarine Pisces was used to locate the wreckage in 225 feet of water.

War Help Stains 'Bloody Hands'

LADYSMITH (CP) — "Canadians will stand at the bar of history with filthy and bloody hands" if Canada continued to supply goods to the United States for use in the Vietnam war, Tommy Douglas said Sunday.

The national New Democratic Party leader was speaking to a meeting at which he was chosen by acclamation to seek re-election for the NDP in the next federal election in the Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands riding.

Douglas, who retires as national leader next month, also criticized the Liberal government's policies on American ownership of Canadian businesses and on supplying natural gas to the U.S. with what he called "no regard to Canada's own future needs."

His nomination was seconded by Roger Smith, a teacher from Lantzville, who had earlier said he would contest the nomination.

Smith said he withdrew his bid for nomination because some of this statements were misinterpreted as personal criticism of Douglas. He added that he will seek to organize a Waffle group in the constituency in an effort to bring about changes he would like in the party.

The nomination meeting passed a resolution stating that the NDP should insist the Canadian government ask the U.S. to stop the next nuclear test planned on Amchitka Island in the Aleutians, and that if the U.S. does not agree Canada should close down all border crossings on the day in question as a protest.

Kinsmen on Ice

NANAIMO — Nanaimo Kinsmen will lead a drive to raise $220,000 to build a new ice surface next to the civic arena.

Preliminary plans, waiting for approval by civic authorities, include construction of a steel frame building with limited seating capacity.

The club considers this a three to four-year project and is prepared to raise a substantial amount of the cost through their service projects, such as weekly Bingo at the Masonic Hall, annual radio auction, a Big Top Circus in July and a proposed beer garden during the bathtub race.

Additional funds will be solicited from other service clubs, private and public donations.

A club spokesman said a major barrier to the project is that amalgamation of the area for recreational administration purposes has not yet occurred. The spokesman said the club is confident that this problem will be resolved before the arena is completed.

Mayor Frank Ney has pledged his support.

The club based its decision to build the additional ice space on the ever increasing pressure on the present facilities.

Currently some minor hockey teams are restricted to less than two hours ice time a week, and some must start as early as 5:30 a.m.

By having the new facility adjoining the civic arena, construction and maintenance costs will be cut by using the same ice-making plant and other equipment.

NANAIMO — Sixteen delegates have been named to attend the Liberal Party convention in Victoria Friday and Saturday at an executive meeting of the Nanaimo Liberal Association and a former candidate for the local riding.

In addition to Greer and Dr. J. E. Boulding, president of the Nanaimo Liberals, other delegates selected were: Alan Field, Miss Ray White, Mrs V. Noble, Mel Coates, Mr. and Mrs. M. Zorkin and their two daughters, Deborah and Marjana, Dr. and Mrs. M. J. Thomas, Mrs. Jeannine Gawthrop, Alan Armstrong, Vic Cameron and Peter McCue, a student at Malaspina college.

Greer, who chaired the meeting, said other delegates may be registered on the opening day of the convention.

A caucus of all Nanaimo delegates was agreed on to take place the first day of the convention. Discussion also took place on making up two tables of Nanaimo Liberals for the forthcoming $50 a plate dinner for Prime Minister Trudeau which is scheduled for Saturday, May 1 in Vancouver.

Greer said that he would stand for re-election as vice-president of the Vancouver Island Liberals during the convention in Victoria this week. There are nine such offices throughout British Columbia.

Drugs Bring Jail

Nanaimo Court

NANAIMO — John David Weatherhead, 21, of Duncan, was sentenced Friday to 18 months definite and one year indeterminate after pleading guilty to conspiring to possess hashish for the purposes of trafficking.

Earlier James Edward Donnelly, 34, had been sentenced to seven years after being found guilty in county court of conspiring to import hashish. Seven years is the minimum sentence for that offence.

Judge Harry McKay said he is sure that there are young people scheming ways to bring marijuana and hashish into the country and that they don't realize that there is a lengthy minimun sentence for this offence.

He said that Weatherhead was the main force at this end of an elaborate plan to import hashish from England.

Crown counsel Dave Williams of Duncan estimated that the street value of the three cookie tins of hashish was $3,000 to $5,000.

Evidence revealed that the cookie tins were intercepted by police.

Coco Hepburn, That Is

Coco Ponders Acting Career

TORONTO (CP) — With three academy awards and 35 movies behind her, Katharine Hepburn still hasn't decided whether she wants to be an actress.

In Toronto to star in the musical Coco, which opened Monday at the O'Keefe Centre, Miss Hepburn told an interviewer: "I enjoy work and overworking enormously because I have a great deal of energy.

"I have led several lives in my own life. I haven't made up my mind whether I want to act. I still draw.

"One of the reasons I wanted to come on tour with Coco is that I hadn't done my best in the role."

Like the French couturiere Gabrielle (Coco) Chanel, Miss Hepburn has a reputation as a strong-minded individual. She offered little support for the women's liberation movement.

Women have been badly treated in the world, she agreed, but "if you have a family and a husband, and you are not there to do it — well, somebody has to."

With CBS 23 Years

Big Shew Will End

NEW YORK (UPI) — Comedian Joe Lewis once said television's Ed Sullivan "will last as long as other people have talent."

Sullivan has lasted 23 years and his variety show goes down as the longest running program in television history. But he will not be back on the Columbia Broadcasting System network this fall, a network spokesman said Monday.

Sullivan, who will be 70 in September, joins Red Skeleton and Jackie Gleason as CBS discards in the new fall program lineup to be announced shortly. It was reported there will be no direct replacement for Sullivan and CBS will use the time for a new series running 90 minutes or two hours.

Sullivan's son-in-law Robert Precht said there has been "talk" of Sullivan doing specials for CBS next season "but it's still very much up in the air." Precht produces the Ed Sullivan show.

Sullivan Productions Inc. has started work on a syndicated variety series of five one-hour shows a week with a different host each week, Precht said. It was not known whether Sullivan will appear on the program.

The Sullivan show made its debut June 20, 1948, as "the toast of the town." It had a $1,000 budget and featured Martin and Lewis, who got $200 each. Ten years later his budget was 50 times that amount and Sullivan combed the world — even behind the Iron Curtain — for talent.

Sullivan never varied his format, which he said was "open big, have a good comedy act, put in something for the children, keep the show clean." When Elvis Presley appeared on the Sullivan show the lower part of the screen was blacked out to hide his pelvic gyrations.

The showman sandwiched reigning diva Joan Sutherland between a comedian and an acrobat. He introduced the Beatles to America. Always a friend of the underdog, he had harmonica player Larry Adler and actress Ingrid Bergman on his show when they were objects of controversy, and helped them make a comeback.

Actress Helen Hayes once said she had fathomed Sullivan's secret: "He's so altogether stage struck that one can actually feel it. It comes shining through the inarticulate face, the chewed up words and the cold mechanics of the TV set."

Three Plays Presented

Sooke Festival Launched

By BERT BINY

The second annual Sooke Schools Drama Festival opened Monday night with the presentation of three plays at Edward Milne school.

First came The Case of the Giggling Goblin with a cast of 26 from Sooke elementary school.

The adjudicator, Mrs. Gloria Peyton, found this to be "a first class choice of play; a fantasy with a real theme."

George Graham as the Judge was complimented for his "good command." As Mrs. Goblin, Colleen McDonald had relatively little to do but "what she did she did well." David Hansen's Phantom of the opera showed "good beginnings" and Ian Robertson's Dr. Dracula came "close to characterization."

But, in general, it appeared that the players were too conscious of the audience.

Edward Milne junior high's The Love Beads was another local world premier being written by student Jeanne French and slightly edited by the players.

"Malcolm Dunnett as R. J. Wilburn III made an extremely good attempt," said Mrs. Peyton. "He understood the part and the play."

Lynn Elder, as Tess, was "very sincere" but underplayed slightly while Chris Bender, as Bo, tended to "play for comedy."

The final presentation of the evening was When Men Are Scarce by Edward Milne high. Here Jeannette Robertson, Leslie McTaggart and Shawna Gilks were particularly efficient and believable.

Today's program, 8 p.m. at Millstream school, is changed slightly and now consists of Puss In Boots (Glen Lake), The Missing Princess (Langford), and Pepe and the Cornfield Bandit (Glen Lake).

Actress Suing For Privileges

Fonda said Monday her anti-war entertainment troupe is suing the U.S. army for the same privileges and financial backing given the Bob Hope travelling show.

The suit, is to be filed in U.S. district court in Washington, D.C., later this week, according to an associate of Miss Fonda, former Army Doctor Howard Levy. He said that under free speech guarantees, the soldiers should have the same access to the anti-war group as they do the more conservative Hope tours.

Whether or not the group wins the access to army posts plus travelling and lodging expenses as they say the Hope show gets "there can be no stopping us now," Miss Fonda said.

Scholars Criticize Isolation of Children

By JOHN MATTERS

Systems that allow children with learning disorders to be isolated in "slots" were criticized by a number of scholars in Victoria Saturday.

The occasion was the sixth annual neuropsychology workshop at the University of Victoria, sponsored by the provincial secretary's department and attended by about 350 persons, most of them involved in special education programs.

Dr. David Kendall, professor of special education at the University of B.C., said children who have difficulty reading, for example, suffer exposure only to what they do the least well when they are assigned to a remedial reading class.

School systems must look for an alternative, said Kendall, senior author of the special education section in the report One Million Children that was published last year by the Council for Exceptional Children in Canada.

Dr. Peggy Koopman, an assistant professor in UVic's faculty of education, said the type of program that depends on the label is objectionable. In such circumstances, the educator or clinician sees only what he is looking for, and the result is that a lot of information that would assist treatment of the child is overlooked.

However, the sharpest attack on the "slot" system came from Dr. Charles Strother, director of the Child Development and Mental Retardation Centre at the University of Washington, Seattle.

He explained that children with reading disorders, for example, have often been looked on as a homogenous group.

"The tendency is as we have provided special education that we put labels on those children and assign them to a special class. Research data simply does not confirm that they are homogenous — the fact is they are highly diverse," said Strother.

"We must individualize instruction — we must approach them on the basis that one child's learning disability is different from that of each other member of the group."

He also said doctors tend to put children in "slots" without adequate evidence.

"I would hope more neurologists would follow the example of weather forecasters and say, for example, 'there is a 70 per cent chance of brain damage', instead of diagnosing brain damage on shaky evidence."

Strother said that just because a child has signs of brain damage, it does not mean that's the problem.

"If you had 100 neurologists examine a child you won't get agreement," he said, adding that the same applies to psychologists' interpretations of test results.

The language used in diagnosis also has added to the confusion. For example, the expression "minimal brain dysfunction" is a "weasel word" that may be used because the person may not have the courage to say "brain damage."

However, said Strother, if "brain damage" was used, it would be of much more help to the therapist.

He also said the use of the term dyslexia to describe the inability to comprehend written or printed symbols — that is to say, the inability to read — has been confusing.

"In the narrowest sense, dyslexia is used as a syndrome or entity. And from a medical point of view this is not applicable, because in medicine when you speak of a disease entity you speak of a range of things."

He said dyslexia must now be considered a "wastebasket term" because it is so broad. Instead, educators and medical personnel should be discussing specific learning disabilities.

Strother also pointed out that very often such disabilities cannot be related to organic problems. For example, learning disabilities can be traced to "bad material or bad instruction."

He recalled that several years ago, when he was with a travelling clinic in Washington State, he came across a group of Grade 4 students who were inadequate readers. He traced their problem to their Grade 1 teacher, who was inexperienced in reading instruction and was subsequently fired.

Dr. John Crichton, assistant professor of pediatrics at UBC, estimated that about 310 children will enter the Vancouver city school system this year with disorders affecting reading. This was about 5 per cent of the school entrants.

He also pointed out that Canada's bilingualism policy might present special problems for the person with such a disorder. It should be decided whether those problems should be solved by health or education authorities.

Crichton added that the disability is the problem it is, only because of the preoccupation with a written language.

He recalled a two-year-old child explaining to his parents, both of whom were deaf, an outdoor scene. The child used sign language and "the most beautiful description" was offered.

Seemed Like A Good Day

DON COLLINS

It seemed like a good day to rally 'round the flag.

There was enough wind to give it that proud flutter. And the sun no one but George Burnham had expected ("I knew we'd get good weather right after a full moon") added just the right touch.

At the moment, there was just one problem: what flag to rally 'round when there's suddenly a choice of two?

There wasn't supposed to be, you know.

The day was supposed to belong to the 80-year-old Burnham and the Red Ensign he has doggedly been trying to restore as Canada's official flag for six years.

It was the sixth anniversary Saturday of the birth of his Red Ensign Club and to mark the occasion he had called a "grand rally" for Centennial Square at 1 p.m. and a meeting at Norway House, on Hillside, at 2 p.m.

By 1.30 p.m. his "grand rally" ("This is where the people from out of town are meeting") consisted of five people, including Burnham himself.

The sides were soon even. Five boys from High Rock junior high school, noticing what was taking place, darted across Douglas Street and purchased a 41-cent Canadian flag. They planted it in the grass a few yards behind the spot where Burnham's people were hoisting two Red Ensigns on high.

"We wanted to see what reaction we could get," one of the boys explained.

They weren't disappointed. Burnham, they said, lectured them on the history of Canadian military achievements.

It wasn't just a matter of a generation gap. A middle-aged man, who had been walking his poodle, argued with Burnham and told him: "We aren't a colony anymore, you know — we're a new breed."

The man and others spoke proudly of the new Canadian flag. Some of Burnham's group referred to it as a "rag."

At this point Burnham's followers included 75-year-old Capt. A. G. Carter, a pipe-smoking man in beret; George Goodlake, 54, described as Burnham's "right-hand man," Nicholas Salvablancos, who operates the right wing House of Free Speech in Vancouver, and Salvablancos' wife, Beatrice.

Salvablancos, who speaks with a Russian accent, wanted the Colonist to note that he wasn't an Anglo-Saxon, but that he was fighting for the return of the Red Ensign because he feels he owes it a debt of gratitude.

"And I feel gratitude is a characteristic of an honest man," he said.

Burnham said all the other supporters would be at Norway House for the meeting he would address. When he reached the building his group of five swelled to 16 — 10 women (nine of them elderly) and six men. Seven were from the Mainland, the rest from Greater Victoria.

Oak Bay Tops Sandpipers

Oak Bay scored three goals in the second half to defeat Sandpipers, 4-2, in a Vancouver Island Women's Field Hockey Association first-division match at Beacon Hill Park Saturday.

The splurge overcame Sandpipers' 2-1 lead at halftime. Leslie Kerr, Judy Robbins, Anne Shaw and Nita Hibbert scored for Oak Bay while Jill Hawkins got both goals for Sandpipers.

In second-division play, University of Victoria "B" downed Castaways, 5-3, and Evergreens battled to a 3-3 draw with Pirates.

Exhibition matches between two Vancouver teams, Britannia Tigers and Kitsilano, and two Vancouver Island rep teams will be played today starting at 11:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. at Lansdowne Junior High School and Beacon Hill Park.

No. 80—113th YEAR — VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, TUESDAY, MARCH 16, 1971 —  — 10 CENTS DAILY 20 CENTS SUNDAY

'GHOSTS' CAST SHADOWS

It really is 1971 and today's corner of Pandora and Douglas with all its modern buildings, despite this parade of 19th-Century costumes. Victorian dress was worn by members of Victoria Days committee as they headed for Mayor Courtney Haddock's office Monday for signing of proclamation. Victoria Days, to take place May 24 to 29, will include ethnic dances in city squares, treasure hunt, Indian cultural festival, street dances and sports events. — (William E. John.)

Surtax Bite Squeaks By In Commons

OTTAWA (CP)—By a scant 11-vote margin, the Commons Monday approved a government bill that continues for another year a three-percent "temporary" surtax bite on personal and corporate income taxes.

The vote on third and final reading squeaked by 68 to 57, with only Liberals in favor. The bill, extending the tax through 1971, now goes to the Senate.

By the same vote the Commons defeated a Creditiste attempt to delay third reading of the bill for six months.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberal, 151, Conservative 72, New Democrat 23, Creditiste 13, Independent 1, vacant 4.

Along with extending the surtax the bill would allow manufacturing and processing industries to value investments in machinery and structures at 115 per cent of their actual costs in writing them off their taxes.

Both provisions were announced in Finance Minister Edgar Benson's Dec. 3 budget. The capital cost allowances is retroactive to that date! The surtax extends a measure introduced in 1968.

The surtax has been renewed each year since and some opposition MPs expressed fear that it has achieved permanent status.

Ontario Launches Anti-Pollution Test

Chemical Firm Sued

Dow Target Of Action

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis announced Monday that Ontario has launched a $35 million damage suit against Dow Chemical Co. of Canada Ltd. and its parent company in the United States for mercury pollution of the St. Clair River and Lake St. Clair.

Davis said a writ has been issued seeking another $10 million to pay for the cost of dredging the bottom of the waterways to remove the pollutants.

Under a mandatory order requested in the suit, the companies would have the option of removing the existing polluting materials, or give the province $10 million to do the job.

It is the first time the province has attempted to sue a company in relation to mercury pollution of provincial waterways.

Attorney-General Allan Lawrence, who attended the news conference along with George Kerr, energy and resources minister, said the suit would be a test case before the Ontario Supreme Court.

If the suit is successful, suits may be launched against other polluters.

In Sarnia, a Dow spokesman said the company had not been informed of any legal action by the province but that when informed of-

Women Rob Ex-Minister After Industrialist Slain

NEW YORK (UPI) — Franz Josef Strauss, former West German defence and finance minister, was robbed of about $240 in German and American money outside the Plaza Hotel Monday by three women who attempted to force him into a car.

The incident bore some similarity to the fatal stabbing 48 hours earlier of Italian industrialist Pasquale Bottero outside the New York Hilton. Bottero told police before he died that he had been accosted by three women.

Strauss told police he was robbed at 2:45 a.m. as he was walking at Fifth Avenue and 59th Street outside the Plaza, a fashionable hotel at the south end of Central Park, where he was staying. He said a car pulled up and three women got out and told him, "Get into the car."

"Go away," he said. "I'm just out for a walk."

He said the three then tried to drag him into the car. They failed. But one of the women reached into his right rear pocket, Strauss said, and took his wallet containing $160 in American Bills and 300 deutschmarks, valued at about $80.

At about 4 a.m. police spotted a car that matched the description given by Strauss two blocks away. Two women in the car were taken into custody and 300 deutschmarks were found in the glove compartment.

Socreds Firm on Pension Vote

By IAN STREET

A lone Socred voted with the NDP and Liberal members in the legislature Monday night in opposition to the principle of a bill which will provided new pension benefits for active and retired teachers.

Ernie LeCours (SC-Richmond) had indicated he would vote against the government unless he could be convinced the new pension formula would do justice to retired teachers. When the vote was taken shortly before 11 p.m. Opposition leader Dave Barrett shouted: "Scrooge" at the standing Socred majority.

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, in a lengthy account of the workings of the pension plans, ignored opposition pleas to withdraw the bill while consideration was given to improving benefits for teachers who retired prior to 1967.

The minister argued that no other province can match B.C.'s record in this regard and added in reply to a question that the government had received no indication the B.C Teachers' Federation was prepared to share in any additional costs for retired teachers' pensions.

B.C. Teachers' Federation president James Killeen said in an interview from Vancouver the federation would not take any action at this point. The teachers were waiting, he said, to see if the government would make any changes in the bill at the committee stages, before deciding the strike or take other action.

During debate Allan Williams (L—West Vancouver-Howe Sound) said he "implored" Black to "take this bill' back and look over it" with the help of actuarial experts to determine how best to provide adequate assistance to retired teachers.

The Liberal member said it was "not so." as the govern-

Ottawa to Shield More Industries

OTTAWA (CP) The government will expand areas of industry which will not be allowed to fall under foreign control, Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday in the Commons.

He said in reply to George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) that banking, communications and uranium are already areas in which foreign control will not be permitted.

The government would announce as soon as possible other areas where the same rules will apply, the prime minister said.

He did not indicate what industries will be covered or when the announcement will be made.

Last week, he said policy on foreign ownership will be announced "in due course."

Hees raised the matter at the start of the question period by asking why the government was following an apparently inconsistent policy in relation to uranium and oil.

Hees said the government has instructed Denison Mines, a uranium company, not to sell control to U.S. interests. But in the current case of Home Oil Ltd. of Calgary it was negotiating possible pur-

Trudeau Stays Mum On Services' Union

OTTAWA (CP) Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday the government is looking at "various aspects" of collective bargaining in the public service, but he didn't say whether this involves the armed forces.

The question of possible unions in the forces was raised in the Commons by former prime minister John Diefenbaker who asked assurance from Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey that the organization of such unions would not be permitted. Mackasey said it wouldn't come under his department.

Michael Forrestal (PC—Dartmouth-Halifax East) then asked Trudeau whether he discussed the question with Claude Edwards, president of the Public Service Alliance.

The prime minister said he had correspondence with Edwards in which he said the government is reviewing collective bargaining in the public service. Various aspects mentioned by Edwards were being examined.

Plane Hits Inflation

WEST MILTON, Ohio (UPI) — A single engine plane ran into a cluster of balloons at 1,800 feet Sunday and crashed into a muddy field. The pilot and a passenger escaped injury.

The balloons had been released as a promotional gimmick by the Grace Baptist Church. The plane flipped over and was demolished, but pilot Wayne Kepp, 48, and Robert Dayton, 33, both of Dayton, Ohio, walked away from the wreckage.

Plague on Plague in South Africa

Trains Halted by Locusts

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — A locust attack so bad curtains are being eaten off windows has hit farmers with the worst plague in South African history.

The brown locusts have mutilated crops and many other things that stood in their way in Cape and Orange Free State, two of the country's four provinces, and moved into neighboring Botswana and South-West Africa.

"Infestation occurs in patches over approximately 100,000 square miles," Deputy Agriculture Minister Hendrik Schoeman told Parliament.

Hardest hit has been an area known as the Karoo in central Cape province between the communities of De Aar and Middleburg.

Several railway trains slithered to a stop because their driving wheels were spinning on masses of mashed locusts.

First caterpillar set back new grazing about two months ago. Then came moths, followed by millions of locusts. Butterflies arrived after the locusts and the latest report is that corn crickets have started swarming.

Householders who neglected to seal premises were invaded in some districts by locusts nibbling curtains, linens, clothing, flowers in vases and uncovered food.

Some experts are convinced the plague is completely out of control and that only the coming of the southern hemisphere winter will curb the plague.

Rezoning Bylaw Upheld

Appeal Succeeds For Oak Bay

An appeal by Oak Bay municipality against the quashing of one of its rezoning bylaws by the B.C. Supreme Court last August has been upheld by the B.C. Court of Appeal.

In a written judgment Friday, Mr. Justice C. W. Tysoe said the municipality was acting "in good faith and in the interest generally of the area" last June when it rezoned a lot on Windsor near Newport from service station use to retail use.

Texaco Canada Ltd., which owns the property, had appealed to the B.C. Supreme Court to overturn the rezoning bylaw, which the court did in August. It was the municipality's appeal against the Supreme Court decision that was allowed last week.

Tysoe, who wrote the decision on behalf of himself, Mr. Justice E. B. Bull and Mr. Justice M. M. McFarlane, dealt in his judgment with each of the points that had been raised by Mr. Justice J. F. Gregory in the earlier decision.

Offended Zoning

In overturning the bylaw, Gregory had said the public hearing held before it was passed was "little less than a farce and waste of time" as Mayor Frances Elford, who cast the deciding vote, had her mind made up before the hearing.

Gregory had also written that the bylaw offended the zoning section of the Municipal Act in that "the rezoning was neither initiated nor supported by the owner or occupant of any neighboring property" and that it was directed exclusively at one property owner "at very considerable expense to it."

In allowing the appeal, Tysoe pointed out that the mayor had made her comments about her mind being made up in reply to a request for adjournment of the planned public hearing. The request had been made because lawyer Hugh Henderson would not be present at the scheduled time.

"Undoubtedly she knew that Mr. Henderson was a member of a large law firm which contained more than one competent counsel who could represent the respondent at the hearing and so his, Mr. Henderson's, presence was hardly necessary," the judgment said.

"As a matter of fact, it was Mr. (Lloyd) McKenzie and not Mr. Henderson who appeared for the respondent at the adjournment hearing."

Intent Apparent

Tysoe wrote that Texaco had been aware that council had the intention of keeping the Windsor-Newport area free of service stations. This intention had been made apparent in November, 1968, when a bylaw was passed excluding service stations from retail zones.

A lot next to that zoned for garage used was zoned for retail use and Texaco had hoped to use both of them for a development.

It was council "that conceived the idea of the bylaw and initiated it, as it was conceded it had the power to do, and the members must have held the opinion that it would be in the best interests of the community to pass and adopt it," Tysoe wrote.

Rejects Conclusion

The appeal court decision also rejected Gregory's conclusion that the public hearing was little less than a farce by writing:

"The plain fact is that the respondent had not succeeded in persuading anyone that the bylaw should not be adopted."

Tysoe cited other decisions in which bylaws relating only to specific properties had been upheld.

Mayor Elford said she was "quite pleased" the decision had been reversed in the municipality's favor and said the case would assist other municipalities.

Quite Normal

"It would have been exceedingly difficult for municipalities anywhere to initiate a rezoning," she said. "This decision indicates it is quite normal."

The mayor also said she hoped the decision would mean that the property could now be developed "so the municipality can rid itself of what is undoubtedly an eyesore."

The service station had not been used since 1947 and the building on the lot had not been used since 1967.

D. M. Gordon, Oak Bay municipal solicitor, had represented the municipality in the appeal. McKenzie and Henderson had represented Texaco. The appeal was heard Feb. 10 in the Victoria Law Courts.

Violence Emerging In Hospital Strike

Strikers at Sandringham Private Hospital claimed Monday that two pickets were knocked down by a car in the hospital parking area at the weekend.

At the same time, a hospital official said a nurse and two nursing aides were blocked when leaving and entering the building and that one of the women was grabbed by the arm by a picket.

Both sides have said they are considering laying charges.

Adding to the tense scene which has suddenly developed in the 5½-month-old strike of 28 women members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, is the fact guard dogs have been posted with private patrolmen.

Administrator Mrs. Margaret Reynolds said Island Security Patrol was engaged to protect people entering and leaving the hospital at 1650 Fort.

Men from various other unions were added to the picket line nine days ago on a 24-hour-a-day basis to halt fuel oil delivery which was being made late at night. The company delivering the oil has since said it would stop.

A union spokesman said two male pickets from the laborers' union were knocked down and "shaken up" by a car. He said one was using a camera at the time, which he said was damaged.

"The trouble with violence on a picket line," the union spokesman said, "is that once it starts, it's awfully hard to stop."

The strikers are seeking a first contract.

No One Speaks for Tower

Demolition Starts Today

An old tower on the Gorge Road Hospital site was to be demolished this morning.

Hospital officials said Monday an appeal Saturday to save the tower, which was part of an historic home demolished earlier this year brought no response from the public.

"We didn't get one call; nothing whatsoever," Mrs. C. C. Warren, chairman of the Gorge Road Hospital Board told the Colonist.

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock said in an interview "it proved to be impossible to save the tower."

To restore the structure, he said, would have cost at least $20,000.

"There was just no way; the hospital must be functional and there was no virtue in saving the tower," Haddock said.

Demolition of the structure was to start at 8 a.m.

James Nesbitt, member of the Historical Sites Board of Canada, said last week the tower was "historically important."

He suggested the tower be left standing as an historical feature. Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis also said the tower should be saved if possible, but he wanted to see "an expression of broad public opinion" on the matter.

Nesbitt said the tower was built in the mid-1880s as part of Ashnola, the Northing Snowden house, Mrs. Snowden was the fifth daughter of Robert Dunsmuir of Craigdarroch Castle.

The name was changed to Sissinghurst after being purchased by Mr. and Mrs. E. Crow-Baker who lived in it until about 20 years ago when it became the first wing of the Gorge Road Hospital. Once new patient quarters were built, the house was used for office space. The tower was only ornamental.

Pedestrian Injured

Wyman Hammers, 74, of 2209 Oak Bay, was reported in fair condition late Monday at St. Joseph's Hospital after a traffic accident at Douglas and Courtney shortly after 2 p.m. Victoria police said Hammers was walking across a street when he was hit by a car driven by John Phillips, 175 Battleford, and suffered a fractured right leg and chest injuries.

Saanich Ignores Plea

Library Grant Whittled

Saanich council Monday night whittled at the municipality's contribution to the Greater Victoria Public Library despite a plea from Mayor Hugh Curtis to yield all the money the institution is seeking.

Instead of $5.19 per capita, which is what the library board asked for, there will be a contribution of $4.89 from Saanich residents, council decided.

The reception given the library board budget in Saanich contrasted with that of Esquimalt, where municipal council granted $5.19 despite a plea from Mayor Art Young that it would only lead to a "disastrous tax increase."

If Saanich had granted the library $5.19 per capita, the municipality's contribution would have been $305,214, an increase of $61,639 over 1970. Saanich's per capita contribution last year was $4.

Ald. Edith Gunning, Saanich's representative on library board, made a plea for the $5.19 contribution, saying that the library has been reorganized and better things can be expected in the future.

Ald. Gunning said the library in its present state was "very shabby" and the current budget was an attempt to bring it "halfway up to date."

However, after Ald. Alan Newberry pointed out that the library had not spent a provincial grant of $44,000 at the end of last year, the majority of council members felt that the municipal share of the 1971 budget should be calculated on a figure from which the B.C. contribution had been subtracted.

That's how council arrived at $4.89, a figure that was opposed by the mayor and Gunning, Ald. Frank Waring and Ald. Ed Lum. The five other council members supported the contribution.

When the vote was called in Esquimalt, three were in favor, and three opposed, but one abstention was counted as an affirmative vote.

Ald. Art Cuthbert, Ald. Art Mebs and Ald. Joe Gourlay voted in favor of approving the budget; Ald. Terry Prentice, Ald. Ken Hill and the mayor voted against; Ald. E. L. DeCosta abstained from voting.

Farming Project Puzzles Council

Several members of Saanich council were perplexed Monday night by a Victoria Youth Council proposal that would involve spending $25,000 to farm three acres of fertile, municipally-owned farmland in one year.

The youth council idea is to lease a patch called Quick's Farm and cultivate it to provide food and jobs for transient youth. The $25,000, explained a VYC spokesman, would be a federal contribution to get the farm started and pay wages.

The farm would be only 15 minutes from downtown Victoria, said a letter from the youth council. In addition, it was arable and water was nearby. VYC hoped to lease it from the municipality for $1 a year for three years.

High-Yield

After hearing that the current lease expires at the end of this month, council decided to advertise its intention to lease the site despite Ald. Ed Lum's suggestion that $25,000 for VYC wages was "quite high."

"This is high-yield land and I think three men should be able to handle an acreage of that size for the summer," added Lum.

The youth council spokesman retorted that it was intended to have the farm in year-round production but Mayor Hugh Curtis pointed out that the land floods during the winter and at that time only yields ducks.

Choir Grant

In other business, council:

- Decided to grant $500 to a choir from Claremont high school to enable 40 of its 60 songsters to go to England this summer. Ald. Leslie Passmore suggested that the 20 who can't go overseas instead be given a trip on the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Dayliner, stopping to sing at Duncan and Nanaimo, but council decided that $100 should not be set aside for that.
- Turned over to its planning committee a request from the Royal Oak Motel, represented by Joseph Isherwood, to rezone five of the firm's 58 acres from motel use to general commercial. Among other things, it would allow the firm to increase the size of its signs from a total of 64 square feet to 128 square feet. Ald Foster Isherwood vacated his seat for the duration of the discussion.
- Decided to call a public hearing into a proposal for a 72-unit row housing project at 3987 Gordon Head Road.

Can Dockyard Marriage Survive 71 Pact?

By DON COLLINS

The marriage is on the rocks.

And in this case, while both partners are going to investigate the possibility of divorce, there is some doubt that the ties can be broken.

That's the way things shape up in the aftermath of a contract settlement that came Sunday just in time to avoid a strike Monday by 1,200 tradesmen at HMC Dockyard in Esquimalt.

It also ended a strike that began a week before for 1,700 federal tradesmen at the Halifax dockyard.

And therein lies the trouble.

The Halifax workers were unhappy with a deal that increases the pay lead held over them by their West Coast counterparts and they didn't want to go back to work. But the over-all vote on both coasts counts and the Esquimalt workers voted so strongly in favor of the agreement Sunday that it was accepted by a slim margin, 1,073 to 1,039.

Bernard Dixon, secretary of the Halifax Dockyard Trades and Labor Council, said the Halifax men had been "stabbed in the back" by those in Esquimalt.

His people now would consider regional certification.

Tom Graham, president of the trades council in the Esquimalt yard, said separate bargaining in the future would no doubt be favored by the West Coast workers as well, but he felt this might be prevented by terms of the federal Public Service Staff Relations Act.

There was no doubt, however, that the question would be explored by the Esquimalt tradesmen, Graham said.

This was the first time that the smaller Esquimalt group had ever swung a vote. In former years, when their membership was about 700, they had been at the mercy of the Halifax decision-makers.

The Esquimalt tradesmen, because of their bigger pay, say they have been getting the "heavy end of the stick" in the past.

The idea is that to bring the light end up — in this case Halifax — the heavy end has had to sink a little. As a result, those in Esquimalt didn't do quite as well this time around as they had expected.

This time there was supposed to be a firm stand on the question of cutting the pay gap between east and west.

Tradesmen in Esquimalt were earning $4.16 an hour while those in Halifax got $3.31. The government offer that brought a vote in favor of a strike — this time the scale was tipped by Halifax — would have increased the disparity from 85 cents to $1.15 an hour.

The offer accepted Sunday still meant the gap was widening, but only to $1.05. The Esquimalt tradesmen get 94 cents, those in Halifax, 74 cents.

Graham and others say the government seems serious about fighting the problem of regional disparity, but that it is something which must be tackled on a much grander scale.

"They are not going to let a little group like us set the ground rules," Graham said.

He said the local vote had been strongly in favor of the last offer because it had become obvious nothing more could be done this time about removing disparity.

"You eventually get to the point when you realize you have done all that you can do," he said.

The Esquimalt vote for the package was 743-47, while it was opposed in Halifax 992-330.

Graham points out that those in Esquimalt had voted earlier about 63 per cent against striking, but had been willing to abide by the strong strike vote registered by Halifax.
